To those who gave us
our heritage,
and
To the living, may they preserve the memory.

I believe that I shall see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living!

Wait for the Lord;
be strong, and let your heart take courage; yes, wait for the Lord!

PREFACE

This compilation has been a labor of love, covering a period of thirty years of my efforts and many years of gathering and saving letters by my mother. I am sure I know more about my ancestors than my parents did, but like so many others, I didn't ask questions that I am sure they knew the answers to. However, one doesn't know what to ask until one does extensive research, and then it is too late, the loved ones are gone.

This search was done mostly by correspondence. Libraries that were visited and used were: The Library of Congress, The Daughters of the American Revolution Library both in Washington, D. C.; the New England Historical and Genealogical Library in Boston, Mass.; the Western Reserve Library in Cleveland, Ohio; The Multnomah County Library and the Multnomah Chapter DAR Library in Portland, Oregon, the Latter Day Saints Church Library in Salt Lake City, Utah, the California State Library in Sacramento, Calif. and the Oregon State Library in Salem, Ore. and Hartford, Conn. Library.

Court Records in Courthouse of Lockport, New York and correspondence with County Historians and Clerks in many counties in New York State, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, Connecticut, Minnesota, Michigan and Indiana as well as some other states was done.

Many hundreds of rolls of microfilm were read at the Branch Library of the L.D.S. Church in Eugene, Oregon, as well as at the DAR Library and the Library of Congress and in the Library at Salt Lake City, Utah.

It would be hard for anyone not experiencing such an undertaking to comprehend the amount of patience it takes and the disappointments and frustrations that come in searching for records, sometimes to find they were lost or destroyed. The rewards for one's efforts come when an answer is found in some unexpected source, and the wonderful cooperation and help that is offered by many.

The compiler has used every means in her power to make a complete lineage from Solomon #29 to date. If the letters she has written had all been answered, it would have made a more complete record.

There are, no doubt, errors due to inability to read hand written answers and by proof readers not catching them. It is her hope that the reader will let her know, so they may be corrected.

This is submitted with its imperfections with the wish that the reader will be understanding.

The compiler has not carried down records from Rev. Coon's book where she did not have new material to add. This explains why some of the children of Daniel #6 and some others are not carried forward. She has attempted to complete the families of her direct lineage from Solomon #29 to the present. She decided to do just her line now while she still has her health. The task of updating all the LeVan lines is too big for just one to do.

An attempt was made to form a LeVan Family Historical Association for the purpose of bringing the LeVan Family Record up to date, and a meeting was called on Dec. 2, 1972 at the George Washington Motel at King of Prussia, Pennsylvania. Those attending were: Capt. and Mrs. James H. LeVan, Robert J. LeVan, Rev. Raymond Walter LeVan, Raymond Kensil and Jane Oetwiler LeVan, Lee M. LeVan, Effingham Humphrey, Jr. and Florence LeVan Spicer. Jane LeVan was voted Chairman. A second meeting was held April 14, 1973 at Holliday Inn, Lionville (or Downington), Pa. Articles of Association and Bylaws were discussed and legal advice was recommended. Several LeVan Lawyers were contacted, but none took the job. It seems that an association is the only way to get help on rewriting and updating the book that Rev. Warren Pattan Coon published in 1927. The LeVans are numerous in the United States. Recently, in Sidney Australia, while waiting in the Airport, the compiler found LeVans listed in that telephone directory.

It is hoped that an Association will be formed and that the records will be updated some day.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Florence Lucile LeVan was born on a farm near Simpson, Minnesota on October 4, 1907. The family moved to Eugene, Oregon in March of 1911. She received all of her formal education in Eugene.

She attended the University of Oregon, majoring in Business Administration. On May 18, 1929, she married Iven Ree Spicer. They were partners in the Spicer Lumber Company from 1939 to 1951.

She has been active in many civic and patriotic organizations. She was a charter member of the Soroptimist Club of Eugene and was the President in 1955-56, later taking Life Membership; charter member of the Oregon Genealogical Society, and a past officer of it; charter member of the Oregon Huguenot Society, past Registrar, and currently the President. A member of Oregon Lewis & Clark Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution and past Regent. She was State Vice Regent of the DAR and State Regent in 1964-66, and Vice President General from Oregon in the National Society DAR 1966-69. She is a Life Member of the Friends of the DAR Museum. She is a member of Daughters of Colonial Wars, Daughters of American Colonists, Mayflower Descendants of Oregon, United States Daughters of the War of 1812 and Magna Charta Dames and a charter member of her chapter in the Colonial Dames of the XVII Century and a Past State President of that Society.

She has worked in various capacities of civic interests and was one of a committee to restore the first Lane County Clerk's office building, and for several years during the sixties, she represented her DAR Chapter in welcoming newly naturalized citizens at those ceremonies.

She was named Senior Woman of Achievement in 1972 by the Council of Women's Organizations in Lane County.

She has attended the Continental Congress meetings of the DAR in Washington, D.C. and done research in that city almost every April for the past twenty years.

Her travels have taken her to many libraries and County Courthouses in the nation and for pleasure, to Europe, Greece, Turkey, Thailand, Singapore, Maylaysia and Indonesia.

She published The Campbell-Ree Families History and Genealogy in 1973. Her hobbies are genealogy, gardening and travel.

She is on her last year of a three year term as Western Division Chairman (13 Western States) NSDAR American History Month, a program for 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th grade pupils, writing essays on historical subjects. She has been active in the Lane County Historical Society.

She is past President of the Domestic Art Club of Eugene.

In 1950, Ivan and Florence bought a farm west of Eugene and stocked it with Registered Aberdeen-Angus Cattle. Florence became a charter member of the National Aberdeen-Angus Breeders Auxiliary when attending the livestock exposition in Chicago. They sold the cattle and later sold the farm in 1956.

She has studied Parliamentary Procedure and is a member of the National Association of Parliamentarians, and organized a local unit of Parliamentarians. She has served as Parliamentarian for several organizations.

She has membership in the Bristol Family Association and the Eddy Family Association and several Genealogical and Historical Societies in states other than Oregon. She has held Chairmanship of many committees, and offices from P.T.A. to Lane Co. Republican Women.

Florence has served Jury duty and was selected the foreman of the Grand Jury by the Presiding Judge.

NUMBERING SYSTEM

This brief explanation may be helpful to those not familiar with reading a Genealogy.

EXAMPLE:

(21) Smith, George, born---- married (1) Mary Mack married (2) Jane White

CHILDREN First Marriage: None

CHILDREN Second Marriage

104. I. Sally, born----
105. II. Susie, born---- married----
106. III. Mary, born---

EXPLANATION:

A. (21) This number is George Smith's individual number. He can be found by turning back to his parents' narrative and further information about his brothers and sisters, if any, can also be found.

B. Second marriages, indicated by (2) before the second spouse's name.

C. 104, 105, 106 are the individual numbers of the children and they may appear later on if these children had their own families. The number is in brackets ( ) at the border to indicate the head of the family.

D. I. Roman numerals are used to indicate the order of the birth from the oldest to youngest child in the family. Except, in the Roberts, Metzer and Dicken Families, which were typed at a different time, the children were numbered with #1, #2, #3 and so forth.

E. Abbreviations:

b.	Born	bur.	Buried
d.	Died	dau.	Daughter
m.	Married	twp.	Township

Le VAN FAMILY

HISTORICAL SECTION

"In the strictest sense, every LeVan descendant in this Genealogy has the blood of the Huguenots flowing in his veins. Many other Huguenot tributaries have by inermarriage swelled the coursing "mainstream", among them -- the Balliets, Mickleys (Michelets), Woodrings (Vautrine), Bertolets, Boyers, DeLonge, Deturks and others. All of these families are of Huguenot name and descent. We must not overlook the many daughters of other names than LeVan, but LeVan descendants nevertheless, and who, by marrying and having children, have still further hidden the course of the LeVan mainstream. All these are of Huguenot strain, an honor second to none.

The Huguenots were French citizens from all walks of life, who, following the protests of Luther the German and Calvin the Frenchman against conditions, traditions and outworn dogmas of the Roman Catholic Church, formed and constituted the Reformed Church of the great Reformation. Incidentally, let us remember that John Calvin, the earliest great spiritual leader of the Huguenots, was born in 1509 at Noyon, France, in the Province of Picardy, the native Province of our progenitors, Daniel LeVan and Marie Beau." Quoted from book compiled by Rev. Warren Patten Coon and published in 1927.

"Jacques Lefevre, born at Etaples in Picardy, is credited with having been the one who initiated Protestantism in France, where as a professor at the University of Paris he published a commentary on the Gospels and the Epistles of St. Paul.

In 1516 Francis I signed the Concordat with Pope Leo X, when he obtained the right to choose the bishops and to apportion ecclesiastical benefices, he found that it was to his financial advantage to support the Roman Churh, and his interest in religion was purely nominal. This is the reason Protestantism never received the support in France as it did in England and Germany. At the death of Francis I, secret, if not avowed Protestants were to be found diffused in every French province save Brittany. In 1559, Charles IX came to the throne a mere boy and both he and the state were dominated by Catharine de Medici of the renowned Guises. Cardinal de St. Croix conceded the fact that France was half-Huguenot. Admiral Coligny informed the Queen Mother that the French Protestants had two thousand churches and 400,000 men capable of bearing arms.

In 1525 the Huguenot Jean Le Clerk was burned at the stake.

There came that terrible day when the Duke of Guise leading his army through the village of Vassy heard the strains of hymns issuing from a barn. There the Huguenots, after the fashion followed later in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, by Otterhein, the founder of the United Brethren Church, and his followers, had assembled for Divine worship within the rude shelter of a barn. The Duke ordered his soldiers to raid that crude and improvised house of worship. When they had completed their cruel depredations, sixty men were numbered among the slain and two hundred souls lay on the floor in dire agony. On his return to Paris, the Duke was acclaimed as a contender for the faith, and Te Deums were chanted to hail his signal victory over a defenseless company of the devout overtaken at prayer.

The frightful climax of the persecution was reached on a day that lives in infamy, even among those who remain in the ancient church, which perpetuated its bloodshed. Standing opposite the eastern entrance of that repository of art treasurers, the Louvre, is the Church of St. Germain L*Auxerrois. In the small hours of Sunday morning, August 24, 1572, the bell of that Church sounded as the signal for the massacre of the Huguenots. The massacre had been instigated by Duc Henri de Guise, desirous of revenge on Admiral Coligny, and the Italian widow of Henry II, Catherine de Medici, the daughter of the gifted but immoral Lorenzo de Medici of Florence and the mother of three French kings. She was defended by the novelist Balzac on the ground that being a woman she could only maintain her influence and control by the exercise of those arts of which her countryman, Nicholas Machievelli, was the principal exponent and who further asserted that she held her place proudly among diverse and conflicting forces "Like a great monarch". Throngs of Huguenots had gathered in Paris for the royal wedding of Margaret of Valois, daughter of Henry II and Catherine de Medici. Admiral Coligny was the first to fall at the hand of his assassin, the Duc de Guise, in the Hotel de Ponthieu. The blood-thirsty cries resounded through the Parisian streets, "Kill, kill -- Down with the Huguenots". Massacres prevailed in Paris that St. Bartholomew's Day and for three days thereafter. 100,000 Huguenots went to their deaths in that sanguinary time.

The Huguenot wanted personal salvation. Driven to the Bible, he found peace of mind through direct contact with God. Huguenots were not voluntary colonists, but refugees ready to sacrifice everything but their religion. They became exiles who had lost their rights and fled for life. They were of all social grades, nobelemen, gentlemen, professional men, merchants, bankers, and artisans. It would be hard to estimate the contribution of the French Protestant to the building of the countries they fled to.

In 1598 The "Edict of Nantes" was proclaimed by Henry IV giving full freedom of worship and other privileges to all his people.

In 1685 on October 22nd, the "Revocation of the Edict of Nantes" by Louis XIV, followed by such persecution that entire towns fled to other countries. The result of the revocation was a climax for the persecution, which had begun in Henry IV time. Many of the nobility went to Geneva; tradesmen and artisans to the Netherlands to settle at Leiden or Amsterdam. In France or elsewhere the Huguenots were often prosperous citizens who were pietists and pacifists interested in setting up their churches, academies and parish schools without interference and directing the country's wealth into industry and agriculture rather than armaments.

When they fled France they were eager to forget the corroding ways and chose to let themselves merge with the cultural and economic life of their newly adopted lands, accepting their ways and modes in the new home with eagerness. This made a highly important influence on European politics. It contributed to establish religious and political freedom in Switzerland. It strengthened the foundation of liberty in the later monarchy of Prussia; it fostered the strength and increased the power and commercial wealth of Holland, and materially contributed to the success of the English Revolution of 1688 and to the establishment of the British Constitution on its present basis.

They owe their final liberation, paradoxically to the American Revolution. Lafayette returning to France after fighting in the American Revolution persuaded Louis XVI to sign, on November 17, 1787 the "Edict of Toleration", which restored the Civil Rights of the Huguenots. Voltaire, a supposed Atheist, came to the rescue of the Houguenots, and freedom of religion was restored.

THE LeVAN FAMILY IN HOLLAND

The LeVan Family were among the refugees who fled from France to Holland, probably after the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes (1685). Family tradition says they were manufacturers of brocade and taffetas in their native country, and that they were of considerable wealth. The same tradition states that the mother, -- Marie (Beau) LeVan, wife of Daniel, -- thrifty and ingenious, employed an odd but clever ruse to bring some of their wealth out of France. She made a dress of "squares", into which blocks or squares she sewed gold pieces.

As so many other Huguenots did, the LeVans affiliated themselves with the Amsterdam Refugee Church of the Walloons who had preceded the Houguenots to Holland. We learn this from the baptismal records of this church, in which it appears that Abraham, son of Daniel LeVan and Marie Beau, was born May 20, 1698, and was baptized by Monsieur H. Colviens in the presence of Abraham Fabre and Susana LeVan as witnesses. A baptismal certificate, with the above record, was made out at Amsterdam the 18th of September, 1751, by Josias Belisargne, "ancien" or Clerk of said church, and was evidently secured by post from Holland by Abraham LeVan, son of Daniel LeVan and Marie Beau, who in 1751 was located in Oley Township, Berks Co., Pennsylvania. The original transcript of this baptism is now (1927) in the possession of Miss Hester Moyer LeVan, 1020 Chestnut St., Reading Pa., a great-great-great-granddaughter of said Abraham LeVan.

THE LeVAN FAMILY IN EUROPE

The following was presented to the Editor, Warren Patten Coon by Mr. John J. Lewis of Mt. Carmel, Pa., and purports to come from Vienna Heraldry, Vol. III, p. 177, and other sources. Unfortunately Vienna Hearldry cannot be regarded as 100% authentic, but I incorporate the data, true or imaginary, as provocative of surmise.

THE LeVAN FAMILY

An old French family of Knights and Nobles, who originally came from Norway and Sweden, from whence they spread themselves through France, Germany and England.

The first of the name, Kuebach LeVan, a leader of a Norvegian band, which he conveyed by ship to France, where they landed in the most northern coast of Normandie. He conquered the early inhabitants and made them submissive and tributary to him. Later he stormed the castle of Count DeBonneville, when all the inhabitants of the castle were slain except Beatrice DeBonneville, the beautiful daughter of the Count, who was spared and was married to Kuebach LeVan against her will. He died A.D. 952, and left a son, Hugo LeVan.

Several of the decendants joined Norman Grand Duke William, the Conqueror and after the conquest of England, returned to Normandie. Nothing is known of them, only Bertram LeVan married in France, that is in Normandie. This descendant flourished and was held in high esteem during his lifetime.

Louis LeVan was a physician, who lived in La Rochelle in 1695. From France he went to Pfalz and studied at Heidelburg. He married Marie Kremer, and afterward finished his medical course. Soon after, the French invaded the Pfalz region, and Louis moved away from the Rhine. Where he went, and where his descendants settled is not known.

The Coat of Arms was borne by the first ancestor. In the shield is a lion. The crest is also a lion. The LeVan genius is a lion. The crown in the crest is that of one of the family who won the first prize in a tournament. (See Vienna Heraldry, Vol. III p. 177.) Above information is from Rev. Coon's book. It is questionable as to its accuracy.

The LeVan Family in America, The LeVan Family in Holland, The LeVan Family in Europe and the material following it on the LeVan Family were all copied from Rev. Warren Patten Coon's book.

Mickley (Michelet) Family was copied from Rev. Warren Patten Coon's book.

LeVan Family Historical Section was partly copied from the Rev. Warren Patten Coon's book and parts of it came from "The Trail of the Huguenots" by G. Elmore Reaman and, reprinted by Genealogical Publishing Co. 1972. Some of the facts were from "Western Civilizations, Their History and Their Culture" by Edward McNall Burns, publ W. W. Norton & Company, Inc. New York Fourth Edition, 1955. Some of the information came from "National Huguenot Society" publications.

THE LeVAN FAMILY IN AMERICA

Rev. A. Stapleton, in his "Memorials of the Huguenots in America", published in 1901, and now out of print, says, — "about 1715 four sons of the refugee (Daniel LeVan) set out for Pennsylvania. They were Abraham, Isaac, and Joseph, the latter of whom died at sea. These were followed in 1727 by their brother Daniel, and all of whom settled in the limits of Berks County (Pa)."

Morton L. Montgomery,in his "Historical and Biographical Annals of Berks County, Pa.", published 1909, says, p. 608,— "The family (LeVan) was founded in America by three brothers, Jacob, Isaac and Abraham, who fled from their native land in 1715 to escape persecution and came to Pennsylvania " On pages 1048 and 1052 he also says these three brothers came to America "in about 1730, this fact being established by the record of land grants made to him (Isaac) bearing the dates 1731, 1734, and 1737-38, as well as grants made him along the Schuylkill river, this land aggregating in all over one thousand acres, most of which was in Exeter Township, (Berks Co., Pa.). Some of the property has remained in the family ever since." Again, on p. 1066, he says,— "Jacob LeVan . . . came to America in 1717 with his two brothers . . " Both Rev. A. Stapleton and Mr. Morton L. Montgomery agree as to the date of arrival of the fourth brother, Daniel LeVan, namely 1727. Naturally, for the State of Pennsylvania first began to keep record of its immigrants in 1727, and the name of Daniel LeVan, stands third on the list that numbered thousands, as witness the Pennsylvania Archives in loco. See also page 7, "Names of Foreigners of Penna., 1727-1808", by William H. Egle, late Librarian of the State of Pennsylvania.

"In the summer of 1727 Daniel LeVan embarked at Rotterdam in the good ship 'William and Sarah', Captain William Hill. The ship touched port at Dover, England, and then started on the long voyage to Philadelphia, where it arrived early in September. There were upwards of three hundred persons on the ship, of which 117 were males over sixteen years of age, and of this number sixty-two were ill on board at the time of arrival, and four had died on the voyage. Those who were well signed the Declaration, and the sixty-two who were ill, were signed by the Clerk of the Board of the Provincial Council held at Philadelphia, September 21, 1727. Among the latter so signed was that of Daniel LeVan." (See p. 1190, Montgomery's "Hist. & Biog. Annals of Berks Co. Pa., 1909).

Messers. Stapleton, Montgomery and Egle all drew much, if not all, of their LeVan data from the researches of the late Rev. Franklin Klein LeVan, one of the Founders of the Pennsylvania-German Society. As the names of Jacob, Isaac and Abraham LeVan, brothers of Daniel, do not appear in the record lists of arrivals after 1727, it is only logical to conclude they must have arrived here before that date. As to the "about 1715" or "in 1717" statements of Stapleton and Montgomery, I presume they followed the data of Rev. F. K. LeVan, who in turn, must have followed family tradition. This is not unlikely, as the Rev. LeVan was born a mere one hundred years subsequent to the arrival of his progenitor, Jacob LeVan, one of the four brothers.

The four pioneer brothers, and the one sister, Anna Elizabeth settled within the confines of Berks County, Pa. — Abraham in Oley, Isaac in Exeter, Jacob in Maxatawny Tp., as also Daniel and the sister Anna Elizabeth.

Abraham LeVan (No. 2 in this gen.) lived a quiet, agricultural life in the beautiful Oley Valley a few miles from Reading, Pa. The roomy stone homestead he built about 1740 is still standing in the midst of its fair acres (179), owned in 1927 by his descendants, Heyman E. and Katie M. (LeVan) Bertolet. A tenant works the farm for Mr. Bertolet. The pioneer lies buried with several generations of eldest sons and their wives in the private cemetery of the pioneer, a few hundred feet from the old homestead. His unrecorded will, a copy of which is in possession of his descendant, Mrs. Hannah (LeVan) DeTurk of Friedensburg, B. C., Pa., gave original date on the children and grandchildren of the pioneer. A transcript of said copy of Abraham LeVan's unrecorded will is (1927) in the possession of the Editor of this genealogy, Rev. Warren Patten Coon.

Isaac LeVan, who settled at what is now Jacksonwald, Exeter Tp., B. C., Pa., was probably the most well-to-do of the four pioneer LeVan brothers, owning over 1,000 acres of land, including numerous lots in the city of Reading. In 1770 he removed to Reading, where he died in 1783, as witness a caveat by two of his sons issued to hold up the settling of his will until they had a chance to dispute it. He was associated in business with the celebrated Conrad Weiser of Reading and Womelsdorf, Pa., who for so many years, was interpreter and intermediary between the Pennsylvania authorities and the Indians, preventing many uprisings of the latter. Together, Weiser and Isaac LeVan secured the original property for the congregation of the oldest Reformed Church in Reading, Pa. Isaac's niece, Esther, daughter of Daniel LeVan of Maxatawny Tp., B. C., Pa. married Conrad Weiser's son Benjamin, who lived in Heidelberg Tp., B. C., Pa., and Isaac's own daughter, Judith, married Samuel Weiser. No greater factor in the early settlement of Pennsylvania existed than Conrad Weiser, save William Penn, and it is of note how closely allied the Weiser and LeVan Families were.

Stapleton first made the mistake, and then all historians who followed fell into the same error, of believing and stating that Daniel LeVan, son of Daniel the pioneer in Maxatawny Tp., B. C., Pa., was the individual who "was admitted to the Bar at Reading, Pa., in 1768, and became a lawyer of considerable prominence", filling every political office within the gift of the County. In the will of Daniel LeVan drawn in 1776, he says, "until my son Daniel LeVan shall arrive to the age of twenty-one years (if he lives so long.)" Supposing him to have been as old as possible, that is twenty, and yet under twenty-one in 1776, he would have been born in 1756, making it an utter impossibility for him to be admitted to the Bar in 1768 at the age of twelve. The noted Daniel LeVan who was elected to nearly every County office, was a son of Isaac, the pioneer of Exeter Tp., B. C., Pa., as witness Deed, B2—78, "indenture made Nov. 11, 1774, between Isaac LeVan, Senior, of the Town of Reading . . . Gentleman and Mary Margaret his Wife of the One Part and Daniel LeVan of Heidelberg Township Berks County Attorney at Law of the other Part, witnesseth that the said Isaac LeVan and Mary Margaret his Wife, for the Natural Love and Affection which they have and bear for the said Daniel LeVan, their Son . . " The Deed proceeds in detail concerning two tracts of land, and is "recorded Feb. 28, 1775, witnesses, — Henry Christ and George Nagel". A Deed of June 10, 1779, B7—37, shows Daniel LeVan, Attorney at Law, of Heidelberg Tp., B. C., Pa., had removed to Reading, Pa. The Deed is one of sale to him from his father, of Lot 72 in the Ground Plan of Reading, and proceeds to say,— "It is the same Lot of ground which Ann Eve Weiser, the widow and Relict, and also a Devisee of Conrad Weiser, deceased, by Indenture of the 5th day of January, 1761, recorded in the office for Recording of Deeds at Reading in and for the County of Berks in Book A., Vol. 2., pp. 252, 253 . . " This property is now, 1927, the N. W. corner of 5th and Court Sts., Reading. Daniel LeVan, Attorney at Law, was an Indian interpreter prior to the Revolution, and of the 4th Company, Berks County militia. While Judge at Reading he was Chief Burgess. He was one of the judges of the Court of Justice established under the Constitution of 1776. He served as Treasurer of the County from 1779 to 1789, and as such had charge of the monies raised in the County for the militia; as Sheriff of the County from 1777 to 1779; as Prothonotary from 1779 to 1789, and again in 1791; and as Clerk of Quarter Sessions from 1780 to 1791. It will be noted that he was, at one and the same time, County Treasurer, Prothonotary, and Clerk of Quarter Sessions. He was buried at Sixth and Washington Streets, Reading, Pa., and after interment of eighty-seven years, his dust was removed to the Charles Evans Cemetery in the same city. In his will 1792, 8-288, he provides for the disposal of his properties, totalling 1561¼ acres.

Jacob LeVan (No. 4 in Rev. Coons book) settled at Eagle Point, Maxatawny Tp., B. C., Pa. He was one of the first settlers of that region, and an extensive land owner, the present flourishing Borough of Kutztown being built on part of his estate. He erected the first grist mill in this section of the country. The mill is still standing (1927), an interesting and romantic symbol of bygone industry. He and his family used the front part of the mill as their home until their massive mansion was built, patterned after Jacob LeVan's ancestral home in Northern France. On the inside lintel of the door leading into the great hall was carved "1740", the date of its erection. To the Rev. John Baer Stoudt of Allentown, Pa., we are in "The Centennial History of Kutztown, Pa."

"The building was razed in 1844. The cellar, containing a spring of water, was arched, the masonry of the arch being so firm that it was only with difficulty it could be demolished. What a pity that this splendid example of colonial architecture was destroyed! The hospitality of its owners was famed far and wide, and under its roof were entertained many noted men of the Colonial and Revolutionary periods. It was from the balcony of the mill that Count Zinzendorf, of the Moravian Church in America, preached to the settlers in the fall of 1742, and also that Rev. Michael Schlatter, the organizer of the Reformed Church and the first Superintendent of Public Instruction (of the State of Pa.), preached to a large multitude of people,June 28, 1747.

The LeVan home was the stopping place for the Moravian missionaries on their journeys to the various German settlements in Pennsylvania and adjoining colonies and to the Indians, the most noted of whom were Count Zinzendorf, Bishop Augustus Gottlieb Spangenburg, Bishop John Christopher Frederick Cammerhoff and Rev. Leonard Schnell . . . In 1756, the period of the French and Indian war, the Indians began to make incursions into the County, and massacred many of the settlers in Heidelberg and Albany townships in Berks County, and Lynn and Heidelberg townships in Lehigh County. Jacob LeVan was instrumental in organizing a volunteer company to protect the settlers . . so they 'could plant their crops and repair their fences', It was called the Maxatawny and Allemangle Independent Guard, and consisted of 24 men, who served . . from April 3 to May 11. In 1758 Jacob LeVan was commissary for the following frontier forts: Peter Doll's Block House, Fort Lehigh, Fort Allen, A Block House and Fort Evert. (See Pennsylvania Archives.) He was judge of the County Courts from 1752 to 1762."

Colonel Sebastain LeVan (No. 21) in Rev. Coon's book, the eldest son of Jacob LeVan, first became active in the cause of the patriots when on Dec. 5, 1774, he was elected a member of the Berks County, Pa., Committee of Observation, upon which he served, one of 15 members. From this Committee he was chosen a delegate to the Provincial Convention, Feb. 2, 1775. He was a delegate from t he 7th Battalion to the Lancaster Convention in July 1776, and subsequently served up to 1777, with the rank of Colonel of the 7th Battalion. He was elected a representative on the Standing Committee, serving later in the State Assembly during 1779-80, and also as a Councillor on the Supreme Executive Council for 1782-1784.

Daniel LeVan (No. 6 in Rev. Coon's book), settled in Maxatawny Tp. B. C., Pa., a mile or so from his brother Jacob of Eagle Point. He built his stone homestead just over the hill from the present eastern terminus of the Borough of Kutztown, and beside the unimproved highway that ran from Reading to Easton. In 1755 this road was improved by order of the State after petition of thirty citizens of Berks and Northampton Counties, the list being headed by Conrad Weiser, and included two of the LeVan brothers, Jacob and Daniel. Traffic soon grew to such a volume that Daniel LeVan enlarged his original homestead, built probably as early as 1740, and, in 1765 (?), made it practically double its original size, and set up in business as proprietor of what is said to be the oldest hostelry in the eastern part of Berks County. In one of the longest and most explicit wills imaginable, and drawn up by his nephew, Colonel Sebastian LeVan, Daniel LeVan left this property to his son Daniel. In 1788 it came into the possession of Susanna LeVan Kemp and her husband, Captain George Kemp of the American Revolution, who conducted it for fifty two years. It is still (1927) owned and conducted by the Kemp descendants of Captain George and his wife Susanna LeVan.

From Reading, in 1775 the First Defenders of the nation to be marched to Cambridge over the road that passes immediately in front of the LeVan Tavern, now Kemp Hotel. At the approach of Howe's army, the Continental Congress, in session at Philadelphia, adjourned precipitately Sept. 18, 1777, to meet in Lancaster, making their journey thence by way of Bethlehem, Allentown, Kutztown and Reading. In the "Diary of John Adams" he mentions stopping over night at the LeVan Tavern. On the evening of November 12th, 1777, there was a group of half a dozen men at LeVan's, whose conversation one might wish had been more fully reported. One was the Hon. William Ellery, a Signer of the Declaration of Independence, and, as Representative from Rhode Is land, at this time a Member of the Continental Congress sitting at York, Pa. From his Diary under that date we learn, "From thence to LeVan's about 15 miles from Snell's where we lodged. Here we met Col. John Brown and four other New England men. Brown gave us an account of his expedition to Ticonderoga and of the Mode of Surrendry of the vaunting Burgoyne."

It is quite certain that most of the noted characters of the American Revolution passed over this "Easton Road", en route to and from York, Pa., where the Congress sat so long, and, with every probability, many of them "dined" or remained over night at the LeVan Tavern.

Abraham LeVan (No. 34 in Rev. Coon's book), according to the Deed (parchment), now (1927) in the possession of Mrs. Henrietta (LeVan) Wagner of North ampton, Pa., - for his Siegfried, Pa., (now Northampton, Pa.) farm of 200 acres, was "late of Maxtawny Township, County of Berks". The deed is dated in the year 1769, and is recorded in the Recorder's Office, Easton, Pa., Book #, Vol. 3, p. 142. Abraham was 21 years of age at the time, and it is obvious, by his father's will, that the father bought the farm for the boy in trust, but liquidated the debt in his will. In recent years Abraham's descendants sold about 50 acres of this property to the Atlas Cement Company, and from this property this Company turns out over 75,000 barrels of cement every twenty-four hours.

Abraham LeVan (No. 34 in Rev. Coon's book), June 18, 1777, was Adjutant of the 4th Battalion, Northampton Co., Pa., militia, which was under the command of Colonel John Siegfried. (See Pena. Archives, 5th Series, Vol. VIII, p. 303). Colonel John Siegfried,— after whom Siegfried, no. Northampton ., was named, - and his Adjutant, Abraham LeVan, were brothers-in-law, each marrying the other's sister. The Colonel married his Adjutant's sister Mary, and Abraham LeVan married his Colonel's sister Magdalena. The Colonel and his eight Companies participated in the battles of Assunpink, Trenton, Princeton, Germantown, White Marsh, Monmouth and Red Bank. (See monument erected to Col. John Siegfried at Northampton, Pa., by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Solomon LeVan (No. 176 in Rev. Coon's book), was married in Lehigh Co., Pa., (see "Hist. of Col. and Montour Counties. Pa." - J. H. Battle, 1887), to Mary Magdalena Balliet, daughter of John Balliet, Captain in the American Revolution, and his wife, Catharine Mickley, daughter of John Jacob Mickley, Jr., granddaughter of John JacobMickley, Sr., gr. gr. grand-dau. of Louis Michelet of Metz and his wife Suzanne Mangeot, a Huguenot. (See "Mickley Genealogy", by Miss Minnie Fogel Mickley, Allentown, Pa.).

From Stapleton's "Memorials of the Huguenots", pages 83 and 84, we learn— "Paulus Balliet arrived in the Lehigh Valley in 1738 . . The family was of patrician origin . . The Balliet Family is traced in many important relations until the XVth century, when a reformer of this name was one of the first to suffer for the cause of the Reformation in the Province of Languedoc,

At a later period, when the horrors of the Revocation (1685) burst upon this Province, Jacques Balliet fled for refuge to Salm, a small District between Alsace and Lorraine. The family soon found there was no safety for Protestants in France, and sought refuge in foreign lands. Of this Family were Paul and Joseph, grandsons of Jacques.

Paul Balliet was married prior to his emigration to Pennsylvania, to Magdalena Vautrin of Lorraine. The name is known in Pennsylvania, as"Woodring". Several of Mrs. Balliet's relatives, among them Abraham Vautrin and John Vautrin (Woodring), also came to Pennsylvania. The former settled in Lehigh and the latter in York County.

Stephen, the 3rd son of Paul Balliet, was a prominent man in his day, and filled many important positions (see Penna. Archives). He was a Colonel in the Revolution, in which capacity he rendered distinguished service to his country. Col. Stephen Balliet was given command of a Battalion at the opening of the Revolution. At the head of his command he participated in the Battle of Brandywine in 1777; he was Member o f the Supreme Executive Council 1783-1786, Member of the Convention to ratify the Federal Constitution 1787, Member of the General Assembly 1788-1790, Member of the House of Representatives (Congress) 1794-1797, Revenue Collector 1797. He died August 4, 1821."

LE VAN. The Le Van families are of French Huguenot lineage, and in common with other families of like religious faith were subjected to persecution, which caused their emigration to America. From "Memorials of the Huguenots," by Rev. A. Stapleton, the following information is taken:

"Among the members of the Huguenot Church at Amsterdam, Holland, were Daniel LeVan and his wife, Marie Beau, refugees from Picardy, France. From a baptismal certificate, it seems that some of the children were born at Amsterdam. About 1715 four sons of the refugee set out for Pennsylvania. They were Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and Joseph, the latter of whom died at sea. These were followed in 1727 by their brother Daniel, and all of them settled in Berks county. In 1748 Peter Le Van arrived, whose identity and place of location is not known."

Abraham Le Van, as already noted, who was born in Amsterdam in 1698, was married to Catherine Weimer, daughter of Mrs. De Turk by a former husband in France. He located at Oley, situated in a beautiful valley in the eastern part of Berks county, about fifty miles northwest of Philadelphia, and near the De Turks, and his beautiful home is still in the possession of his descendants, after a lapse of almost two centuries. He died in 1771, leaving a number of children. His wife, Catherine, born in France in 1706, died in 1768.

Jacob Le Van located in the Maxatawny valley, of which he was one of the first settlers. He was an extensive landowner, the present village of Kutztown being built on a part of his estate. He erected the first gristmill in this region, which is still in the possession of his descendants. There is a family tradition that Count Zinzendorf, the eminent Moravian, preached from the balcony of this mill during his episcopal tour in America in 1742. Jacob Le Van was an important personage in the Province. He was one of the judges of the County court from 1752 to 1762. He bore an important part in the defense of the frontiers during the French and Indian war, and was commissioned to provision Fort Allen in 1759. He died in 1768, leaving seven children. His son, Sebastian, was a man of great prominence. At the outbreak of the Revolution he represented his district in the Committee of Safety. He was a member of the State Assembly in 1779-89, and of the Supreme Executive Council from 1782 to 1784. He was also a colonel of militia. He died in 1794.

Daniel Le Van, the emigrant, also settled in Maxatawny. His son, Daniel, Jr., was admitted to the bar at Reading in 1768, and became a lawyer of considerable prominence. After filling many important offices, he died in 1792.

Isaac Le Van, also an emigrant, located in Exter, near Reading, where he died in 1758.

It is significant that in the same vessel in which Peter Herbein came to Philadelphia in 1732 there also appears in the list of women and children the names of Anna Le Van, Christian Le Van, Margaret Le Van, Philip Le Van and Barbara Le Van (Pennsylvania Archives, XVIII). In 1733 Anna Elizabeth Le Van was married to Sebastian Zimmerman, in Maxatawny. She was probably a sister of Jacob Le Van, who lived there.

According to another account, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob Le Van came Jan. 9, 1729, in the ship "Mary Galby," and landed at Philadelphia. Abraham Le Van bought 150 acres of land, Isaac 230 acres, and Jacob 250 acres, in Philadelphia county. Peter Le Van came Sept. 7, 1748, in the ship "Queen of Denmark." Daniel Le Van came Sept. 21, 1727, in the ship "William and Sarah." As to the time of arrival of Peter and Daniel Le Van, this account agrees with that of Mr. Stapleton.

It does not appear from which of the emigrants mentioned in the foregoing accounts the families in Columbia county, bearing the name of Levan, are descended.

Benjamin Levan, grandfather of Mrs. Rebie Fox, wife of Charles S. W. Fox, was married to Mary Pohe and had the following children: Daniel P., father of Mrs. Fox; Benjamin, married to Lucy Hess; John P., who married Mary Ellen Lee; Samuel P., who married Charlotte Fox and (second) Ruthanna Gable; Sarah, wife of Nathan Driesbach; Mary, wife of John Fetterman; Eliza, wife of John Holderman; Phoebe Ann, wife of William Fox, and three children besides who died in childhood.

Daniel P. Levan, father of Mrs. Fox, was born May 21, 1830, and died July 1, 1911. He was a blacksmith and farmer by occupation. In politics he was a firm adherent of the Republican party, in religion a member of the Methodist Church and for years a trustee of the church. He married Sarah J. Christian, who was born Dec. 29, 1838, and died Feb. 7, 1911. Her father was William Christian. They had children as follows: Anna Mary, born Feb. 25, 1860, married Henry J. Perry; Emma Corinda, born May 5, 1861, died July 11, 1868; Rebie, born Sept. 20, 1863, married C. S. W. Fox; Flora Alice, born Nov. 26, 1865, married William N. Williams; Benjamin Franklin, born Jan. 15, 1868, was killed by lightning July 10, 1877; Walter, born May 23, 1873, married Elizabeth Tobias; Elmer, born Jan. 2, 1875, married Catherine Knittle; Amy Sarah was born Sept. 6, 1877; Raymond D., born May 29, 1879, married Ella Fetterman; William Christian was born May 18, 1883.

Le Dan

LeVAN CREST

Quoting from a letter written to Florence Spicer by Edna Wolfe, National Registrar of the Huguenot Society. Letter dated Jan. 24, 1964.

"I believe the LeVan is an old Crest and I found it under a prominent family in a Vol. we can trust of Colonial and Rev. Fam. French ones are generally only one.

I sent word to the gentleman who commissioned me and he accepted my findings.

It too is very elegant. Blue- gold; 3 gold roses and a bordure silver. I have designed a lovely matting for this one. The helmet is silver blue - - and mantling Blue & gold."

INTERPRETATION

"He beareth for Arms: - Azure a fesse vivre having 3 indentations or between 3 roses of the same 2 in cheaf 1 in base a bordure dancette arg.

Translated into non Heraldic terms a blue (azure) shield on which is charged a fesse (one of the honorable ordinaries occupying part of the shield vivre (ordancette) between 3 roses in chief (applied to anything borne in the chief part of the escutcheon (upper part of shield, a bordure (dancette) wider than indented.

Bordure: Were ancierilly used for distinguishing one part of a family from the other. They were thus used as a differance but now are generally borne as charged.

Charge; A figure borne on a Coat of Arms: LeVan C. of Arms.

Arms are officially confirmed by the College of Heraldry simply on the strength of a family having borne such a Coat for 3 or more generations. They have been as a rule used in the form in which they were 1st brought to this country either on old documents or in print or seals. No error is more common than the idea that Heraldry is a completed science and that crests devices and coat armour are only to be found in the musty pages of old records. "Heraldry is an exact living and progressive art science. With the love of ancestry which exists in the hearts of all tru Americans it is very natural that they should cling with tenacity to the relics and heraldic insignia of their forfathers.

The family Coat of Arms can be interpreted making it more interesting and personal it connects history and literature with the study of Heraldry. It is technical and perhaps little known to the average person, but surely everyone can remember that it originated about the time of the Crusades and served as means of identification and an honor system achieved in some manner, therefore the Coat of Arms became a family emblem. Surely we can be inspired to noble living if we are aware of noble ancestry. Crusades covered the years 1095-1291 and probably had much influence on the development of Heraldry." Copied by Edna K. Wolf (Mrs. Daniel Dorsey) in February 1964

Colors for LeVan Coat of Arms:
Blue: signifies truth and loyalty
Gold: generosity and elevation of mind.
Silver: sincerity and peace.

"In those early days heraldic insignia were used chiefly because they were quickly identified the wearere and all the members of the family as well as the retainers wore the distinguishing colors and emblems. The shield and helmet were of course used in battle as well as in tournament and when the helmet was closed the markings and colors of shield were the only identification."

The following is from a letter written to Florence Spicer by Mrs. William B. Barr, 733 Turner Street, Allentown, Pa. 18102 on Feb. 2, 1967 in answer to a letter about marking the graves of the Revolutionary Ancestors of Mrs. Spicer.

"Abraham LeVan was buried in the Mennonite in Christ Cemetery (no connection to the Mennonite Religion), This was the Seigfried Cemetery, Northampton, Pa. The cemetery has been practically covered by the surrounding land and I believe there is a factory across the street. There are a few remaining grave stones, but in bad condition. Also several large stones, one which is Colonel Siegfried's. The Revolution soldiers graves had been marked by the Liberty Bell Chapter, in fact all the graves through out Lehigh Valley over the years. Mrs. Robert Canning a former registrar of the chapter had been to the cemetery this past year and found no trace of the DAR markers."

" The following is the information concerning your ancestor, John Jacob Mickley . John Jacob Mickley with his wife were buried in the Egypt, Pa. Cemetery, and in 1864 the bodies were removed and buried on his grandson's plot at Mickleys Cemetery, Mickleys, Pa.
There was an unveiling of a Huguenot and NSDAR Memorial by the Michelet Chapter (Note the different spelling), Liberty Bell Chapter at Mickleys Cemetery, on October 12, 1917. The names of John Jacob Mickley and his two brothers are on the marker.
Miss Minnie Mickley, a descendant of John Jacob Mickley, organized the Chapter, and the regent from 1892 to 1900."

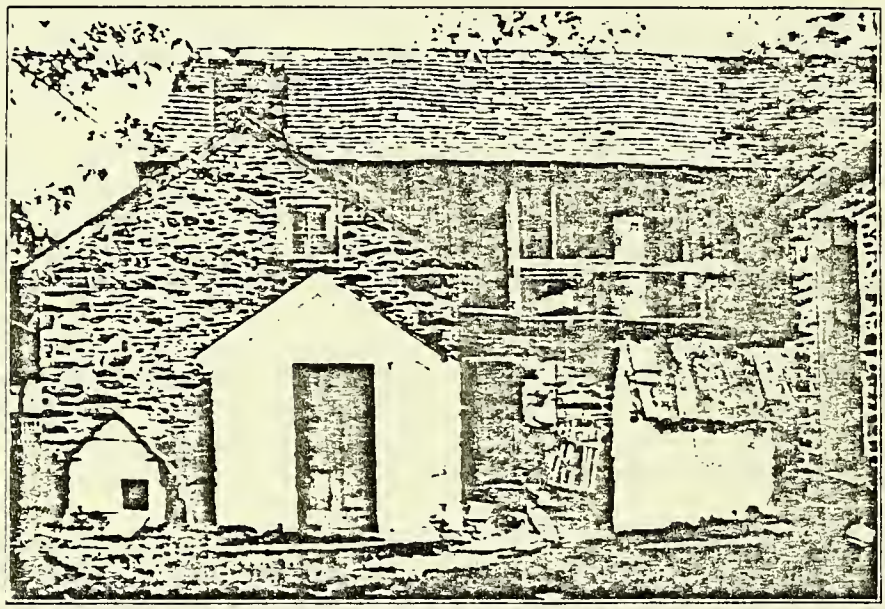
THE LEVAN FAMILY (LeVan)

The founder of this large and honored American family was Daniel Levan and his wife, Mary Beau, of Amsterdam, Holland. The ancestral home of this staunch Huguenot (French Reformed) family was Picardy in France, whence he fled to Amsterdam, where they were members of the Huguenot Church. In 1715 four of their sons, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and Joseph, set out for the land of William Penn, of whom the last named died at sea. Abraham settled in Oley, Isaac in Exeter, and Jacob in Maxatawny township, at what is now called Eaglepoint. The exact date of the latter's settling in Maxatawny is not definitely known, but it was before 1734, at which time he is recorded as having paid quit rent. Prior to 1740 he erected a grist mill and before it a saw mill. These two mills were the first of their kind in the Maxatawny valley.

The Levan home was the stopping place for the Moravian missionaries on their journeys to the various German settlements in Pennsylvania and adjoining colonies and to the Indians, the most noted of whom were Count Zinzendorf, Bishop Augustus Gottlieb Spangenburg, Bishop John Christopher Frederich Cammerhoff and Reverend Leonard Schnell.

In a letter dated November 17, 1747, by Cammerhoff to Count Zinzendorf he says: "[Came in the] evening to Jacob Levan's in Maxatawny [Rev. Michael] Schlatter commanded by the Reformed Classis of Amsterdam has crept in here. He tried to preach then to raise £60 per annum for a Reformed clergyman solely."

Rev. Leonard Schnell, who in 1743 made a missionary journey on foot to Georgia, frequently lodged with Jacob Levan. In one of his diaries



LEVAN'S MILL, EAGLEPOINT—EXTERIOR VIEW

Prior to the erection of the grist mill the settlers took their grain to Loesley's mill. In the front part of the mill the family lived until the massive mansion, in the style common in northern France, the ancestral home of the family, was built. On the inside lintel of the door leading into the great hall was carved 1740, the date of its erection. The building was razed in 1844. The cellar, containing a spring of water, was arched, the masonry of the arch being so firm that it was only with difficulty that it could be demolished. What a pity that this splendid example of colonial architecture was destroyed. The hospitality of its owners was famed far and wide, and under its roof were entertained many noted men of the Colonial and Revolutionary periods. It was from the balcony of the mill that Count Zinzendorf, of the Moravian Church in America, preached to the settlers in the fall of 1742 and also that Rev. Michael Schlatter, the organizer of the Reformed Church and the first Superintendent of Public Instruction, preached to a large multitude of people, June 28, 1747.

he incidentally mentions that Bishop Spangenberg was entertained by the Levan family.

"January 15 [1747] journeyed [from West Oley] across Weydenthal to Maxatawny, where I made an appointment to preach at Jacob Miller's. He said that he had wished for this for quite some time. I stayed over night with Jacob Levan, who told me much good concerning [Bishop Augustus Gottlieb] Spangenberg, who had lodged with him. I could not talk much to, but I could weep and pray for the six single persons in the house."

"January 19 [1747] I preached with blessing in Jost Hinckle's house [in Allemangel] on the blessings of the Gospel. Then I, together with several others, went to Carl Volk's and at his request baptized a child. I still set out for Maxatawny and stayed over night with Jacob Levan. We had a talk concerning religion and faith."

When in 1756, the period of the French and Indian War, the Indians began to make incursions in the county and massacred many of the settlers in Heidelberg and Albany townships in Berks county, and Lynn and Heidelberg townships in Lehigh county, Jacob Levan was instrumental in organizing a volunteer company to protect the settlers in Albany and Lynn townships, so the settlers "could plant their crops and repair their fences." It was called the Maxetam and Allenmaengle Freien Wacht Companie the Maxatawny and Allenmaengle Independent Guard. It consisted of 24 men, who served 30 days, from April 3 to May 11. The names of these soldiers were:

Johannes Hergereder, Captain

Casper Schmick, Serg't	George Jorgon
Jacob Tholand	David Missenug
Georg Bruner	Solomon Bacher
Fridrich Zirn	Martin Unangst
Johannes Klein	Carl Weinmueller

Adam Schnebely	Georg Knir
Conrad Bauer	Michael Kraul
Nicolaus Dehof	Nicolaus Arnhold
Henrich Schweitzer	George Sauselin
Conrad Frey	Johannis X. ———
Henrich Fullweiler	Stephen Gross

The captain was paid five shillings per day; the sergeant two shillings six pence; and the privates sixteen pence. Six pence per day was allowed for rations, and a gill of rum, costing eight pence per quart, was served daily to each man. The total outlay was £104 11 4.

The following is an itemized account:

Jacob Levan, who engaged the men, advanced the deficiency of £7 11 6. He, with David Schultze, was one of the trustees to receive and disburse the moneys. They rendered the above account, made a statement of the character of the work performed by the Guard, and asked for further contributions, on the 17th of November, 1756, all of which was published in Sauer's Germantown paper of December 25, 1756. They said:

"Also fehlen noch £7 11 6, welche summa Jacob Levan, weil er die Companie gedinget, bissher von seinem eigenem Geld hat zu setzen muessen, und auch verlieren muss, so nicht noch einige Freunde etwas beytragen.

"Diese Wacht Companie ist die obgemelte Zeit sorgfaeltig in den Grentzen postirrt gewesen, um die Gegend von Albany Taunschip, in Bercks County, und haben biss weilen gestreifft biss in Linn Taunschip, Northampton County; sonst aber sind sie sonderlich nachtzeit in Theil verteilt gewesen, so dass nur 3 Mann in einem Hauss postiret waren, damit sie einen desto grosern Bezirck bewachen, und so viel mehr Leuten dienen konten, weil dazumal die Einwohner mit einern solchen vorlieb nahmen, und es damit wagten, dass sie auf ihren Plaetzen arbeiten und also die Sommer-Frucht aussaehen konten; also auch ihre Fensen repariren, woran die Companie auch selbst behilflich gewesen.

The following extract from the diary of David Schultz, farmer, surveyor and conveyor, of New Coshenhoppen, Montgomery county, show that Jacob Levan and Sebastian Zimmerman presented a petition to the authorities at Philadelphia, and that apparently he was authorized by the colonial government to organize the company and to solicit funds for its maintenance:

"Feb. 24, 1756.

"This evening came here Jacob Levan and Bastian Zimmerman and framed a petition. Went to Philadelphia.

"March 2—Jacob Levan was at Christopher Shultz and I. Then circular letters sent about.

"March 28—Jacob Levan was at Mels S.

"April 5—Again a guard of 15 men marched up to the scene of the Indian uprisings.

"April 10—Went to Jacob Levan, Esq.

"November 16—Went to Jacob Levan in Maxetawny."

In 1758 Jacob Levan was commissionary for the following frontier posts: Peter Doll's Block-House, Fort Lehigh, Fort Allen, A Block House, and Fort Evert.

Jacob Levan was appointed one of the justices of Berks County and continued to serve until the time of his death in 1763.

In the fall of 1742 Count Zinzendorf preached at Jacob Levan's from the balcony of the old mill.

Bishop Cammerhoff in a letter to Spengenberg dated Bethlehem, Sept. 27, 1747, states:

"From Allemaengel [Lynn township, Lehigh County,] we went down to Maxatawny and lodged with Jacob Levan, in whose house the Count [Zinzendorf] once preached."

ADDITIONAL EXTRACTS FROM SCHNELL'S DIARY:

Friday, January 23 [1747].—To-day I together with Brother Gottshalk very reluctantly set out from Bethlehem. We stayed over night with Jacob Wens in Maxtawny. They showed themselves very friendly toward us.

Saturday, January 24 [1747].—To-day Jacob Wensh beseeched us to visit him frequently in the future. I like these two people. Things were more agreeable here than when I was at Miller's place the last time.

December 23rd [1749].—We [Schnell and Brandmiller] journeyed [on our return from Virginia] with difficulty on acc unt of the ice, but we safely crossed the Schuylkill [river] the Ontelaunee and came to Jacob Miller in Maxatawny, who sold his plantation.

DANIEL LEVAN

In 1729 Daniel Levan followed his brethren to the new world and settled in Maxatawny not far from his brother Jacob and married Susan Seigfried, a daughter of Johannes Siegfried. He was an elder in the Maxatawny Reformed Congregation in 1740 and gave land for a church and school house. He died in 1777, leaving a wife, Susan, nee Siegfried, and children: Peter, Barbara (Reeser), Catharine, Mary (Siegfried), Susan (Kemp), Magdalena, Margaret and Daniel Jr. The latter was admitted to the Berks County Bar in 1768 and obtained considerable prominence as an attorney. He held numerous positions of honor and trust during the Revolutionary period. He was one of the judges of the Court of Justice established under the Constitution of 1776. He served as treasurer of the county from 1779 to 1780, and as such had charge of the monies raised in the county for the militia; as sheriff of the county from 1777 to 1779; as prothonotary from 1779 to 1789 and again in 1791; and as Clerk of Quarter Sessions from 1780 to 1791.

The home of Daniel Levan, Sr., is located on Schultz's map and has been identified as what is now Kemp's Inn. During the Colonial and Revolutionary period it was known as Levan's, and under its roof were entertained many notables of that period.

SEBASTIAN LEVAN

Sebastian Levan (1734-1794), the oldest son of Jacob Levan, succeeded his father both on the old homestead and in public affairs. He was married to Susanna Schneider, of Oley, and they together were widely known for their hospitality and kindness. On December 5, 1774, at a meeting held at Reading he was elected a member of the committee of observation and on January 2, of the year following was elected to the Provincial Committee for the colony which met at Philadelphia January 23, 1775. He was colonel of the militia of the northeast section of the county and a member of the Committee of Safety, which, together with Baltzer Geehr, he represented at the convention of the associated militia, which met at Lancaster July 4, 1776. It was to him as a friend and an assemblyman that Rev. Christopher Schultz, a Schwenkfeldian minister, appealed in behalf of the members of his sect in a letter dated Coshehoppe (Goshenhoppen), August 12, 1777, extract of which appeared in the Pennsylvania German Magazine for November, 1910:

"I desire to talk with you as a member of a house that gives laws to the inhabitants of a once free land Pennsylvania and also forces those laws upon the said inhabitants with the power of arms, fines, imprisonment and exclusion from all the rights of citizenship without taking counsel of their consciences. The recent Test act and the treatment of innocent, conscientious people show us this. * * * You know quite well that Pennsylvania was originally the property of such people who have conscientious scruples about killing other people and are very careful not to allow themselves to be drawn into anything, into which they should not be quite sure that they could continue in the truth and hold out to the end and you know also quite well that many of these people are still about and form a great part of the most influential, best established and least offensive inhabitants. * * * Does it not become evident that you regard these as the most worthless offal, that you seek to tread them under foot and drive them from the country? If this is not so why is my friend (George Kriebel) in the Easton jail and compelled to listen to the words, 'If you will not take the oath as we tell you, you can not leave this jail until your family is delivered to the enemy and your property abandoned?' Why do you rob us of all our rights of conscience and citizenship that nothing is to be ours, that we are to have no right to deal and move on God's earth, that we are not even to live, merely because we consider the peace of our minds and souls, because we are not willing to bind ourselves by oath to things that we must regard in the highest sense doubtful, when we do not even know whether we can hold out. This is the highest offense in the whole matter that you expect things of us and impose at the risk of all that one holds dear in life, things that no tyrant, or Mohammedan or Turk, much less Christian government ever demanded, that one under present most passionate war is to renounce allegiance to a former lord before the matter is even decided. * * *

"We are freeholders no more; as witnesses we are no longer to be regarded; from our land we are not to depart until we are driven to Howe or into the wild sea; any one may beat, scourge, mock, abuse us as Satan may prompt him, but we are to find no help or protection under the present government except that we are to be placed in secure imprisonment to perish. And all because we will not promise under oath or its equivalent what we do not know whether we are able to carry out and what we therefore cannot do without offence to conscience. * * * Even were I to lose my all, I would not be a partaker in such unjust measures for ten such rich estates as yours. I shall go to Philadelphia tomorrow to see whether restraint may be secured from that quarter, for thus we can not live.

"My dear friend, take this to mind for a quarter of an hour. You see one lying in his hidden chamber before his God confessing to the great Ruler the sins of himself and his people in burning tears, imploring mercy and forbearance through the only Atoner and Mediator and pleading for the renewal and bettering of the hearts of all the people, who out of a sense of the love with which God loves all men and gives them life and breath, will not take the life of his fellow man. On the other hand you see one of our ordinary military gents, be he officer or private in his ordinary posture, as he is wont to show himself or as he executes his military duties. * * * I should like to know your conscientious judgment, which of these two is the better protector of his land? I believe that the former does as much by way of true protection as a whole battalion of the latter. I feel that I may tell you that protectors of the country like the former are yet to be found in our poor Pennsylvania, who indeed may make little ado with their exercises, but whom God has placed on his rolls, whose tears he counts and saves. O, my Sebastian (Levan), guard yourself that you offend not these fathers and protectors of this country, as I fear you have done with some of your recent acts."

From 1782 to 1784 he represented the county in the Executive Council of the State. Col. Levan died in 1794, leaving a widow and three children, John, Jacob and Margaret.

JACOB LEVAN, JR.

Jacob Levan, Jr., resided on a plantation of more than three hundred acres lying along the Saucony Creek, southeast of Kutztown. The homestead is designated on Schultz's draft of the Easton Road. This tract was purchased from Jacob Wentz, of Worcester Township, Philadelphia County, in 1753. Upon the death of Jacob Levan, Sr., the son Jacob became the owner and upon his death it was divided according to the conditions of the will between the two sons John and Jacob. The deed for the divided plantations bears the date of December 20th, 1797. In this deed mention is made of the land set aside for church and school purposes, these being the only contemporary references to the old Maxatawny church thus far discovered they are quoted in full. After mentioning the number of acres to be divided this phrase is added. "Five acres and one hundred and six perches alloted for a meeting house excepted."

In describing the boundary the following statements appear: "To a corner of land whereon a house is erected destined for a place of public worship and to a stone, a corner of the land alloted for a school house of the above mentioned place of worship."

Jacob Levan, Jr., in his will provides for his wife Catharine and three sons, John, Jacob and Daniel, and a daughter Maria.

DANIEL R. LEVAN

Col. Daniel Rose Levan was born May 6, 1815, on the Levan's old homestead, the farm on Park avenue, now owned by James Treichler, whose wife is a Levan. He was the youngest of eight children, born to Jacob Levan, Esq., born Sept. 7, 1769, and his wife Mary, nee Rose, born Sept. 13, 1771. Col. Levan was married to Mary Levan, a daughter of John Levan and his wife Mary, nee Gore. He was educated in the old Academy at Milton, Lycoming county. After his father's death, December 3, 1849, he lived on the farm for many years, where the following seven children were born: the oldest, Allen A., Reading; Margaret Brecheiser, Reading; Mary Alice Dotts, Philadelphia, and Thomas S., Kutztown. William E., Isabella and Sarah Jane, died when young. From the farm, Col. Levan moved into one of the double houses built by his father, which are still in good condition, on the corner of Main and Greenwich streets, the building soon to be occupied by the post office, and the one occupied by the shoe store. Col. Levan was appointed a Lieutenant Colonel in the militia of this commonwealth by William F. Johnston, governor of Pennsylvania, in the year 1840. He was a member of the Reformed Church. In politics, he was a stanuch Republican, at one time a "Whig." He was considered quite an authority in political affairs. He was a bright and prominent Mason and Odd Fellow. Before the branch railroad was built to Kutztown, Col. Levan drove a passenger coach and carried the mail from Lyons Station to Kutztown. After the road was finished he conducted a similar route for many years from Kutztown to Schnecksville, better known as the "Schnecksviller's Mail." Thos. S. Levan has in his possession many old and valuable relics at one time belonging to his grandfather Levan and great grandfather Rose.

known as Pleasant View Stock Farm, a part of a large tract of 550 acres which Jacob Wentz had inherited from his father Peter Wentz, the original patentee of 1000 acres.

The crossing of the Saucony, being midway between Allentown and Reading, was a propitious site for a town, and the settlement that grew up in this neighborhood soon become of importance on this great artery of travel . . . the through line from New York to Baltimore and the Carolinas." Not much before the Revolution, perhaps, but certainly shortly before the beginning of that war, and during its continuance this road was one of the noted highways of the State. Over it passed in that early time bodies of soldiers bound to or returning from the wars. Civilians of note traveled this once famous highway. Nevertheless, and strangely too, its importance has not been recognized in the histories of Berks county. Strangest perhaps is the fact that no mention of this really historic road is made in the exhaustive "History of Travel in America" by Seymour Dunbar, published within the last few months.

Along this highway, in order to accommodate the increasing throngs of travelers, hostelries were erected. One of the first, if not the very first, was the tavern now known as Kemp's Hotel, just over the hill from the present eastern terminus of the borough of Kutztown. It was in all probability not erected as a tavern, but was originally a farm-house opened to accommodate the needs of travelers and was subsequently enlarged and made a road-house which is probably correct for several reasons: (1) It is nearly half way between Allentown and Reading, a half day journey from Bethlehem; (2) It is at the intersection of the Easton Road and the "New Maxatawney Road" from Oley to Levan's mill (Eagle Point. See map). The main part of the hotel, which is still standing, is said to have been erected in 1787. If this part was erected in 1787 it must have been preceded, in whole or in part by a still earlier structure, for "Levan's" is mentioned as an inn on the Easton Road much earlier than that year. Montgomery says (old "History of Berks Co.," p. 1043): "It was opened probably as early as 1740, by Daniel Levan, and since 1788 has belonged to the Kemp family. George Kemp [he was son-in-law to Daniel Levan] kept the tavern fifty-two years and was succeeded by his son, John Kemp. The legend on the present sign board gives the date as 1705. For many years the 'Half-Way House' in Richmond township and this one were the only public-houses on the state road between Reading and Allentown. . . . It is a long stone building, and though large was often taxed to its uttermost to accommodate the many travelers who visited or passed through that section before the era of railroads. Not only were all the sleeping rooms occupied, but the bar-room was frequently filled with sleeping teamsters and peddlers."

KEMP'S HOTEL

As matters of interest in themselves and also as stimuli to further research the following references to this road, which deserves more of fame than it has received—are not told. Next morning the caravan went on its way, crossing the "Tulpehocken," (possibly the Schuylkill at or near the Great Bend). From this narrative the conclusion is derived that (1) a road ran through the valley in much the same general direction as the present highway; (2) that its course did not altogether coincide with that of the present road but, several miles west of Kutztown, turned to the right to Moselem creek which, probably, it followed to the Ontelaunee, and thence to the Schuylkill; (3) that it did not lead directly to Reading, although, possibly, it did connect with that town by means of the "Maidencreek Road;" and (4) that it was a road over which wagons could pass.

This early road, however, did not long answer the growing necessities of the settlers. Consequently, in 1733, a petition signed by thirty inhabitants of Berks and Northampton counties and headed by Conrad Weiser was presented to the Governor and Council of Pennsylvania, asking for an order for the laying out of a road from Easton to Reading.

The request was granted and the court appointed Francis Parvin, Jacob Levan, Benjamin Lightfoot, James Boone, Sebastian Zimmerman, and Joseph Penrose as viewers for Berks county, and William Parsons, Peter Trexler, John Trexler, Timothy Horsefield, John Everat, and Ludwig Klutz as like executors of the judicial order for Northampton county, which, at that time, included what is now Lehigh county.

The road was surveyed and built. A map of it, drawn by David Shultze in October, 1755, may be seen at the rooms of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. It seems to have the route taken through Maxatawny and Richmond townships and indicating crossroads, the location of the homes of a number of settlers, and the distances in miles from Easton. It will be noted that no house is marked as existing in 1755 in the territory now included in Kutztown. (See "The First House.")

This road, known as the "Easton Road" (because its eastern terminus was at Easton), or as "The Great or High Road" (so given in early deeds), was calculated to be fifty miles in length from Easton to Reading, "but to count from the center of both the said towns fifty miles and one-half." It entered Reading by what is now Eighth street.

This "Easton Road," on its completion, constituted an important link in the chain of roads that connected "with the ancient Minnisink Road, whose outlet was Kingston on Hudson's River, and beyond, by a second chain of thoroughfares with the busy towns east, as far as Massachusetts Bay."

In this year, 1755, June 16, according to a statement in Montgomery's "History of Berks County," (p. 855) there was conveyed to Jacob Kutz, by Jacob Weitz[1] and his wife, Elizabeth, 130 acres in Maxatawny township, along the Saucony, the tract now

[1]Jacob Kutz was a brother of Nicholas Kutz, who settled near Eaglepoint. The brothers were natives of Switzerland. The name was spelled Coots, at least by Englishmen. Nicholas Coots came to America in 1729, or earlier. Jacob seems to have arrived later, coming (according to the "History of Berks County," p. 1104) "on the ship 'Pink Plaisance,' which qualified at Philadelphia in the fall of 1732." Where Jacob lived from

A devout Catholic, Mr. Finnigan has been one of the most active and effective workers and members of St. Joseph's Church for years. He belongs to the choir and is connected with various church organizations, belonging to the Total Abstinence Society (of which he was an organizer and its first president), the Montour County Society of the A. O. H. (of which he was also an organizer and first county president), and the St. Vincent de Paul Charitable Association (which he is serving as treasurer).

CHARLES D. LEVAN, a retired farmer of Limestone township, Montour county, was born there Aug. 15, 1837, son of Charles Levan, who passed all his mature life in the township. The family is of French Huguenot origin, four brothers coming to America from France in pre-Revolutionary days, and settling in the lower part of Pennsylvania, in what is now Northampton county. (One account says the ancestor was one of three brothers, another that he came with three brothers, and another that five brothers came.)

Solomon Levan, grandfather of Charles D. Levan, came from Northampton county to what is now Montour county, settling here permanently, and he died near Limestoneville in 1828. His wife, Mary (Balliet), long survived him, dying in 1868, and they are buried in the Paradise Church graveyard in Northumberland county, Pennsylvania.

Charles Levan, eldest son of Solomon, was born in 1800 in Northampton county, Pa., and was but seven years old when he moved with his parents to Northumberland county (now Montour). After reaching maturity he came to Limestone township, in what is now Montour county, where he established a home and passed the remainder of his life. Mr. Levan died Feb. 13, 1881, at the age of eighty years, and was buried in the Paradise Church cemetery. His wife, Mary (Follmer), afterward lived at Watsontown with her daughter, Mrs. Mowrey, dying July 2, 1892, aged ninety-one years. She was a daughter of Henry and Mary Follmer, natives of Berks county, and the Follmers have been in this country for several generations. Eight children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Levan, of whom but two now survive, Susan L. and Charles Daniel, the former the widow of Morgan Mowrey, of Williamsport, Pa. Of the others, John lived in Shelbyville, Shelby Co., Mo.; Margaret J. married Oscar Craig, of Anthony township; Jacob died in Michigan; Catherine married George Price; Elizabeth married Benjamin Housel, and died at Vicksburg, while visiting her husband, who was serving in the Union army; Henry died when one year old.

Charles D. Levan was educated in the schools of the home locality, and though his opportunities were limited he acquired sufficient education to enable him to teach, being thus engaged for seven terms between the ages of sixteen and twenty, in Northumberland and Montour counties. He has been trained to farming from early boyhood, and after giving up teaching followed that work altogether, in Montour county, in the winter season also doing threshing. Thus he continued until 1875, when he bought his present farm, a tract of 192 acres, which under his able and intelligent management has become one of the most modernly conducted properties in Limestone township. He carried on general farming and stock raising throughout his active years, and the burden of his work is now attended to by his son. Mr. Levan has always been considered one of the worthiest and most desirable citizens of his locality, where his industrious and useful life has won him deserved esteem. He has held township offices, including that of member of the school board, giving faithful service.

On Jan. 26, 1875, Mr. Levan married Sarah Catherine Watson, who was born Nov. 9, 1852, in Northumberland county, and they have had five children, namely: Anna, born June 10, 1877, was well educated, finishing the three-year course at Bloomsburg normal school, and in 1899 married Daniel Montgomery, a merchant, of Hazleton, Pa., by whom she has two children, Edward Watson and Robert; John, born April 23, 1879, a farmer of Limestone township, married Ada Faust; Mary, born July 17, 1881, took the three-year course at the Bloomsburg normal school and taught for six years in Montour county before her death, which occurred June 29, 1911; Grace, born June 1, 1886, took a two years' course at the Bloomsburg normal school and also attended Millersville (Pa.) normal school, and she has taught five years in Limestone township, Montour county; William, born March 7, 1888, lives at home. This family has been reared in the teachings of the Presbyterian Church, of which Mr. Levan and his family are members. Politically he is a Democrat.

In 1862 Mr. Levan enlisted from Montour county for nine months in the Union army, joining Company G, 178th Regiment, Pennsylvania militia, mustered in Oct. 21, 1862. He served under Capt. William G. Adams and Col. William Johnson, being mustered out July 27, 1862, at Harrisburg. His command was attached to the Army of the Potomac, and was engaged in operations in Virginia. Mr. Levan was orderly sergeant.

The Watson family, to which Mrs. Levan belongs, is descended from old Pennsylvania stock, her great-grandfather, John Watson, having come from the vicinity of Muncy Creek with his parents, who lived in the neighborhood of Jerseytown, Columbia county, until they died. John Watson removed to what is now Anthony township, Montour county, in the early part of the last century and located where Samuel Watson later lived. Here John resided until his death in 1837, his wife having preceded him by several years, both being buried in the Derry churchyard.

Hugh Watson, son of John, some years after his marriage removed to Anthony township, and bought 200 acres of land, afterward owned by Mr. Gearhart, a foundryman of McEwensville. Thence he removed to Muncy Creek township, Lycoming county, Pa., bought land, and resided there for the remainder of his days. He and his wife are buried in the Muncy cemetery. They were the parents of seven children: Eliza, John, Sarah, Jane, Margaret, Mollie and Allen.

John Watson, Mrs. Levan's father, was born May 15, 1830, in Madison township, Columbia county, and made his home with his parents until twenty-three years of age. He then moved to Dewart, Pa., renting land, taking an interest also in the building of the York & Erie railroad, which was surveyed through his farm. He bought a farm near Milton in 1862, removed to it in 1863, and lived on it until 1869. The first piece of land he ever owned was that part of Turbotville now occupied by the fair grounds, but he never occupied it. In 1869 he sold the farm near Milton and bought one of 250 acres in Anthony township, Montour county, for $20,000. He also at that time owned fifty acres of timber and pasture land in the same township, which he afterwards sold. He removed to his largest farm the year after he bought it. He was married at Jerseytown Dec. 15, 1852, to Louisa Catherine, daughter of John and Julia Ann (Levan) Steiner, the former of whom died Sept. 3, 1883, and the latter Dec. 27, 1910. Mr. and Mrs. Watson were the parents of eight children: Sarah Catherine (Mrs. Levan); Harriet; Julia Ann; Mary Jane; Emma; Clara; Blanche, and Hugh Allen. All of the family were members of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Watson was one of the progressive men of his township, and assisted in securing the location of the Watsontown & North Mountain railroad, which passes through his farm.

ELI APPLEMAN, farmer and stock dealer of Derry township, Montour county, belongs to a family which has been settled in that section for eighty years, his father having come here in 1832. His grandparents, Baldy and Mary (Melick) Appleman, were natives of Pennsylvania and of German and Dutch descent, respectively. They had a family of eight children. Baldy Appleman was a soldier in the war of 1812, and his wife's father, Peter Melick, served in the Revolution.

Caleb Appleman, sixth in the family of Baldy and Mary (Melick) Appleman, was born April 12, 1812, in Frosty Valley, Columbia Co., Pa., and received his education at Bloomsburg, that county. In 1832 he came to Valley township, in what is now Montour county, and for many years was successfully engaged in farming, retiring from active pursuits in the year 1885. He subsequently made his home in Danville, where he died in 1894. Mr. Appleman not only looked after his private affairs well, but was active in church work and other matters affecting the public welfare, being a school director for six years and constable twenty-seven years, serving part of the time when his township was included in Columbia county, and later when it was in Montour county. At one time a member of the Episcopal Church at Bloomsburg, he served many years as superintendent of its Sunday school. When the Methodist Church in Valley township was erected, he was a member of the building committee, and though never a member of that church he served as one of its trustees for many years at Bloomsburg. Politically he was a Democrat. In 1831 Mr. Appleman married Mary M. Rishel, daughter of Henry Rishel, who was of German origin, and ten children were born to them: Elmira, deceased, was the wife of John Carr; Sarah Ann, the widow of Charles A. Rentz, lives at Williamsport, Pa.; Agnes is the widow of James M. Van Devender and lives in Northumberland county, Pa.; Mary E., deceased, was the wife of John C. Patterson, of Danville; Margaret J., deceased, was the wife of Hon. Jesse C. Amerman, a prominent farmer; Amos B. served in the Civil war, in the 132d Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry; Harriet, deceased, was the wife of Peter E. Rentz; Eli is mentioned below; Car-

The following is from a letter written by Norman A. Peirce and sent to Florence Spicer.

"Abraham LeVan moved into the house on old home farm near Pekin New York on the day Letitia Paulina was born, April 1st, 1844.

After the Civil War was over Abraham LeVan went to Missouri and bought land near Sedalia (60 miles south). In 1869 on 1st of May, Mortimer and Letitia Peirce, Ambrose and Lorette LeVan, and Sidney and Ursula Campbell left for Missouri. They took up the farm that great grandfather LeVan bought. It was near Appleton City, at a place now called Chalk Bluff (Jan. 13, 1969). They got off the train at Sedalia and took wagons to their farm. They all lived together in a small shack (probably log cabin) until Mortimer Peirce couldn't put up with things and moved out to another place. I have the deed to the place that Mort. Peirce bought. My grandparents just couldn't take the bad living conditions along with fever and ague, so they came home to Pekin in late 1870. My Aunt Alice Peirce Keeler was born there in 1870 as was Clinton LeVan. Mort Peirce and family drove from Missouri to Jackson, Mich. with a team and wagon. The team was left in Jackson for winter of 1870. Then in the spring of 1871 Mort. went to Michigan and had the team shipped to Buffalo, N. Y.

I have notes that Ambrose LeVan and Sid Campbell came back to Pekin. Later, maybe it was that they being Northerners talked too much about the slaves and the south, the Campbells stayed in N. Y., but Ambrose moved to Minnesota 1890's. His Uncle William LeVan lived with him for a while." signed Norman A. Peirce.

The following bit of history was in a letter to Florence Spicer written by Maude LeVan Ellis, March 1, 1962.

"Pekin is just a small town, about maybe twenty buildings, just never grew, it is on the brink of the hill, which runs the length of the state of which Niagara Falls came to be the starting point. I was born about two miles east of Pekin. And about $\frac{1}{4}$ mile from where I was born, was what used to be an Inn, used by the Old strap railroad running from near Lewiston to Batavia. My grandparents lived there when my father was a young man, years of course after it was an Inn. But the rooms always were and I guess still are laid out much as they were then. The bar, was in the center of the length of the house with the cupboards which I suppose the liquors were kept and a hole where they could put soiled glasses then into the kitchen. A long room which grandma used for a dining room was the call room. Across the road was a race track for horse racing. Your father would remember it, for it has been there for many years. My father would be 106 if he were living. Parts of it are built of stone."

Dear Sir:

I have in my possession a diary, which belonged to my grandfather, Ambrose LeVan, who lived near Pekin. It covers the years June 1862 through 1863 and some in 1864. They may have called Cambria their post office. In the diary I find interesting things that I would like more information on if you are able to furnish it, I would appreciate it very much. I will quote below.

Jan. 26, 1863 "Father went to Lockport as Jurer"
Aug. 19, 1863 "Father was to Pekin as Jurer"
His father was Abraham LeVan. I remember my father saying that his grandfather was on the State Jury. Would you be able to say what jury he served on? These are the only places in the diary that this is mentioned:

May 20, 1863 "The 28 Regt. arrived at Lockport had great times"
June 10 " "Soldiers picknick held in woods (Sidney Campbell's plais"
June 18 " "Rebels invaded Pennsylvania June 16, 1863"
July 15 " "Enlisted in Captain Swifts Company under Colonel McCray 66 Regt. N.Y.S.V."
July 13 " "Commenced drafted in City of N.Y. having a riot resisting draft Great excitement in Lockport."
Aug. 8 " "Went to company to drill"
Aug. 29 " "Cos I elected noncommission officers"
Sept. 30 " "Co. 8 met Elected officers I was elected for 2n sargent."
Oct. 17 " "In P.M. I went down to Molyneux Co. I was inspected"

Several years ago, I wrote to a state agency to see if there was a record of Ambrose LeVan's enlistment, and the answer was that there never was such a regiment in N.Y. state. Can you give me any information regarding the above? I can't imagine him putting this in his diary if he had not enlisted.

He and his brother, Clement, practiced on the fife and drum. I don't know if this was in connection with their enlistment or not.

Any information that you can give me on any of the above will be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Ivan R. Spicer

Dear Mrs. Spicer,

With reference to your recent letter concerning the Levan (also LeVan) family in the Town of Cambria, the Levans have long been residents of Niagra County, and although I don't off hand recall any prominent members of the family, they have always been good farmers. The type that have always been the back bone of the Country.

Your particular branch appears as Visitation #66, 1865 Census of Town of Cambria, living in a frame house valued at $700.00 and the owner of 188 acres of land in Lots 19 & 20, Township 14, Range 8.

Abraham	LeVAN	age 51,	Born	Pennsylvania, Farmer
Hanna	"	47, wife	"	"
Ambrose	"	22, son	"	Niagara County
Pauline	"	20, dau.	"	" "
Clement	"	18, son	"	" "
Seward	"	13, son	"	" "
Clifford	"	9, son	"	" "

There were other Levan families in the immediate area. Those of Lewis & Helen Levan and Thomas & Mary Levan. William P., son of Lewis served about 30 days in the union Army at the end of the war. Lewis, son of Thomas, served in a Vermont Regiment during the war and their son, Sanford, served in Battery M, 1st NY Light Artillery.

Also, there was a Clarence H. (or Charles) Levan, son of Solomon Levan of Wilson who was killed in action May 3, 1863 at Chancellorville, Virginia while serving in the same battery as Thomas, above. I do not know the relationship, if any.

Two sons of Lewis Levan of Cambria died in the War. They were Emmet who died of dyptheria at Boston while serving with the 11th United States Infantry and Lyman A. who died at Morehead City, N.C. while serving with the 23rd New York Battery.

Now to answer your questions in proper order. Pekin is a small unincorporated hamlet divided by the town line of Lewiston and Cambria. At one time back about 1840 it was destined to be quite a village, but when the New York Central railroad took over the existing Lockport, Niagara Falls RR, the road was moved a few miles south and Pekin died on the vine. It remains today a pretty little sleepy hamlet.

Property owners were picked for jury duty then as they are now. Possibly "father" was picked from the local residents of Pekin and after being accepted, then went to Lockport, the county seat, to serve on jury duty.

The 28th New York State Volunteer Infantry was the first regiment to leave Western New York State for service in the Civil War. It was made up of recruits from the counties of Niagara, Orleans and Wyoming with one company from Ontario County, the bulk of the men coming from Niagara County. They were mustered in the service for a period of two years on May 3, 1861 and mustered out in May 1863. The picnic mentioned in the diary was a celebration put on by the people of the area to welcome their boys home from the wars. As the Civil War did not end until April 1865, many of the returned veterans of the 28th Regiment re-enlisted in other regiments and served throughout the war, many of them ending up dead.

Sidney Campbell was a farmer in the area who had several sons in the Civil War. No doubt he also had a welcome picnic on his property for the returned veterans.

Although Gettysburg is located just over the boarder in Pennsylvania and the battle there took place on July 1, 2 and 3, 1863, the actual campaign lasted over two months. Some Confederate troops penetrated as far as Harrisburg, the capitol of the state. Several small towns were burned in the area and as the Union Army marched north from Virginia to prevent the invasion, both the Confederates and Union troops converged on Gettysburg for the battle that has become so famous in American History. Actually, the Battle of Gettysburg was a mistake for both armies. Neither wanted to fight at that point. Advance parties of each army met in the village and the fight just seemed to blossom into a full battle.

As the war progressed and the local Militia Companies were drawn into the Federal Army, various companies of Home Guard were organized. The 66th Company was located in Niagara County with headquarters located at Niagara Falls a few miles from Pekin.

Early in July when the first draft took effect, the immigrants in New York City did not feel that this was their war and they held mass riots that would put the 20th century civil rights riots to shame. To this day no one knows how many thousands of people were killed in New York City and just how many millions of dollars damage was caused by fire. The riots were not quelled until the 6th Army Corps was sent there fresh from the battle of Gettysburg. Many of the boys who were students at West Point, several police and firemen and untold numbers of citizens were killed.

It was thought at the time that Lockport would have riots and the Home Guard at Niagara Falls was sent to Lockport to patrol the streets. There were a few incidents at Lockport, but nothing of a serious nature.

"Went to Company Drill" probably means that Ambrose was a member of the 66th Company of New York State Home Guard as we do not have any record that Ambrose served in the war.

Up until World War I, most Home Guard and Militia or National Guard companies and regiments elected their own NCO's and officers. Usually the most popular men in the group were elected, the best soldiers being passed over as they were unpopular with the men. This always made for poor officers and the practice has been discontinued for the merit and experience system.

"Elected 2nd Sergent" means that Ambrose was popular with his friends and was elected a sergent. Militia companies in those days numbered from 50 to 100 men depending upon the local population and they usually had three sergents, 1st, 2nd and 3rd in place of the present Master, Tech., Staff and Buck Sergents.

"---went down to Molyneux Co."--Molyneux has always been a prominent family in the area about four miles from Pekin. Members of this family have always been active in local military affairs and, no doubt, there was a company in that area. The members of the Molyneux family have often served as commissioned officers from the time of the War of 1812 and Ambrose and his men went to Molyneux Corners to be inspected by the officers there. They were required to furnish their own firearms and other equipment.

In the diary of Ambrose, does he mention any of the local boys who lost their lives in the War? The little hamlet of Pekin lost over 40 men during the four years that the war lasted. To look at the place today one wonders how it could have survived with so many of its young men never returning.

We trust that the above will answer some of your questions.

Cordially, (Signed: I. Richard Reed), County Historian.

SOCIETY

THE GOLDEN wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. LeVan was observed May 5. They have lived in Eugene since 1911.

Mr. Le Van was brought up in Niagara county, N. Y.. He moved to Minnesota with his parents and sisters in 1887 and was married to Clara A. Johnson May 5, 1891, her people being pioneers of that locality near Simpson a small town ten miles south of Rochester. In 1892 he began buying grain for the H. J. O'Neil company at their elevator at Simpson, continuing for seven years. Then he farmed until coming to Eugene in 1911.

There are five children in the family, four daughters and one son. All were here, the son coming home from the Southern Pacific hospital at San Francisco. The family members attending were Mr. and Mrs. U. W. Ellmaker, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Le Van, Darwin and Naomi, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Boehringer, Dorothy and Marian and Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Boehringer and son Carl, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Koupal, Dennie, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Spicer, Jean Marie and Jimmie. Also attend were a nephew, Warren Johnson, and Mrs. Johnson, Irwin and Carolyn, and Mrs. Maltman, their first Oregon neighbor.

C. A. LeVan Retires After Nearly 30 Years On City Staff

By GLENN HASSELROOTH

On July 9, 1943, C. A. LeVan would have completed 30 years on the payroll of the city street department.

The 73-year-old veteran of civic service tendered his resignation as street foreman at the last regular meeting of the city council. It was accepted as of March 31, and he left Eugene Thursday for his place at Coburg, where he and Mrs. LeVan will have a cow, other stock, chickens, and a garden on one and one-half acres in the heart of the bean country.

"If we're ever going to have any time to ourselves," says Mr. LeVan of himself and his wife, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary two years ago, "it should be now. I'm not looking for outside work, and I think we can make a go of it."

He was born July 26, 1869 at Appleton City, Mo., moved with his family to Niagara county, N. Y., at the age of 1½, and at 18 to Minnesota. There he married Mrs. LeVan, whose girlhood home was near Rochester, Minn., home of the Mayo clinic. From that state they came to Eugene on March 16, 1911, and a month later moved into the house at 924 Fifth avenue west, their home for the past 32 years.

In service of the city, Mr. LeVan worked 14 years under C. D. Farmer, street commissioner; later spent 15 years in that position himself. During last year's readjustment of the department, which joined the engineer's department, he was given the title of "street foreman."

C. A. LE VAN

"In all that time, except for vacations," he grins, "I've been off hardly a day. I've taken care of streets, sewers, and hydrants, and I've seen a good many changes. Now I'm retiring."

He said he is a member of the First Christian church, McKenzie river lodge, AF and AM, Homesteaders, and Modern Woodmen.

Their branch of the clan includes four daughters, Mrs. Ivan Spicer and Mrs. Milton Koupal, both of Eugene, Mrs. Carl Boehringer, who lives near Crow, and Mrs. Ulysses Elmaker, Rt. F; one son, Donald E. LeVan, Eugene; nine grandchildren, and one great-grandchild.

Grandsons Keith Clark in the Marines and Bruce Clark, who is attending Columbia University in New York City, were unable to attend.

Also serving during the reception were the couple's daughter, Mrs. Gordon R. Clark (Elaine) of Portland and Mr. Clark, who were hosts of the event; Mrs. Ellmaker's sister, Mrs. Ivan Spicer, who cut the cake assisted by a niece, Mrs. Clinton Boehringer. Mrs. Ellmaker's sisters, Mrs. Carl Boehringer and Mrs. Milton Koupal served coffee and punch. Mrs. Robert Cowan and Christine Cowan assisted with gifts; Mrs. Robert Gibson, Myrna Gibson and Dale Gibson, Luther Cowan and Ray Cowan assisted with serving.

Mrs. Ellmaker was born in Rochester, Minn. and moved to Eugene in 1911 with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton LeVan. LeVan was street commissioner in Eugene for more than 20 years.

Ellmaker was born where Zumwalt Park now is located on Fern Ridge Lake. His grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Enos Ellmaker, came to the Elmira-Veneta area in 1853 by ox team from Iowa. They homesteaded on the Oregon-California Trail a mile north of Franklin and operated an inn for travelers. In 1857 they traded homesteads with Levi Zumwalt next to the present Zumwalt Park. The century farm was passed on to their son, Levi Ellmaker, who in turn passed it on to his son, Ulysses.

The Ellmakers were married in Eugene and lived there for a number of years while Ellmaker was employed as a salesman and mechanic, later moving to the century farm.

EUGENE SCULPTORS WIN HIGH HONORS IN NATIONAL MEET

(1939)

Miss Anna Keeney, of Eugene, has won the high honor of having sculpture work accepted by the National Sculpture society for exhibition at the society's exposition in San Francisco, which opens in April. Harry P. Camden, head of the sculpture department of the University of Oregon is also honored.

Miss Keeney is a native of Oregon. She was born at Falls City, and much of her early schooling was received at Arlington. She entered Oregon Agricultural college, but early in her college career went to the University of Oregon to study under Avard Fairbanks, then head of the university sculpture department, and with whom she worked for three years.

When Mr. Fairbanks, himself a sculptor of national reputation, went to Italy to do advanced study and research on a Guggenheim fellowship, Miss Keeney continued her work under his successor, Harry P. Camden, young Prix de Rome sculptor. She received her B. A. degree in June, 1928, and is now working toward a master of fine arts degree while working as an assistant in the sculpture department.

The portrait head in marble which was accepted by the National Sculpture society for exhibition with the work of nationally and internationally famous artists, is a study from life, being a portrait of Miss Florence Le Van, University of Oregon student and resident of Eugene. The original study, cast in plaster, received much favorable notice when exhibited in the Portland art museum last spring. Miss Keeney has done a number of other noteworthy portraits, and is now completing a portrait of Eleanor Cleaver, a university student. Her "Fallen Aviator" and other studies for a "Fountain of the Aviators" first brought her work before the public when exhibited by the university school of architecture and allied arts.

A biographical sketch of Miss Keeney will be included in the catalogue of the National Sculpture society. It is especially interesting that the promising young sculptor has lived the greater part of her life on a big wheat ranch in eastern Oregon, and that she cannot remember when she did not have the desire to be an artist. She always wanted to paint and model, especially to model, but she lived in a country where there was no clay.

"I never saw any art, not even a plaster cast, until I came to college," said Miss Keeney. "I had no background in art, the only pictures of statues that I ever saw being Greek statues in my ancient history when I reached high school."

Miss Keeney has always thought of sculpture in the terms of marble. She has never cared for bronze.

"The nude human body has always been the symbol to me of all that is divine and beautiful in the world," said Miss Keeney, adding that at one time she had considered the study of medicine to enable her to study and learn its needs. She recalled the horror of a teacher she had in grade school when she found the young pupil trying to draw a nude figure. Soonafter that the little girl gave up drawing, and never took it up again. It was only when she came to the university that she rediscovered her talent in the new medium.

Perhaps it is the struggle which she went through in working out her own means of expression which made easy for her the creation of her winged figures for "The Fountain of the Aviators" which she describes as "an attempt to represent the dualism of the spiritual and aesthetic nature of man with the material and physical."

A CLASSIC head, in plaster, by Anna Keeny, one of the splendid examples of sculpture being achieved by students of the school of architecture and allied arts at the University of Oregon, and one of the exhibits attracting attention this week at the Portland Art Museum.

Eugene resident since 1920, Ivan Spicer, dies at age 71

A long-time Eugene resident, Ivan Rea Spicer, died Monday after a lengthy illness. He was 71.

Spicer, who came to Eugene in 1920 and became a mechanic in the Ford garage here, lived at 2380 Olive St. His wife, with whom he was later a partner in a lumber business, survives.

Born Nov. 7, 1899, at Harvard, Neb., Spicer began learning the mechanics trade as a teenager while working in a blacksmith shop in his hometown, where he and a brother later operated a garage.

He drove to Eugene in 1920 where he married the former Florence LeVans in 1929.

Besides working in the Ford garage in Eugene, he was shop foreman for the Eugene firm's new Portland outlet when it opened. Spicer and another man formed a taxi company in Eugene in 1923, and several years later Spicer started the Yellow Cab Co. in Eugene.

He operated the Dollar Stages for three years ending in 1935, when it was sold to Greyhound. After that, he bought several stands of timber and established a milling operation which Spicer and his wife managed until his retirement in 1951.

Spicer was a charter member and tenor drummer in the Eugene Highlanders Bagpipe Band, and also belonged to the Moose Lodge, Navy League and was a charter member of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, James Ivan Spicer of Eugene, and a daughter, Jean Smith of Portland, and four grandchildren.

Donations may be made to the Cancer Fund in his memory, according to the family.

Ex-Eugenean Dies at 69

A funeral service for a former Eugene resident, Donald Edwin LeVan, will be Monday at 11 a.m. in the Campbell-Watkins Mortuary, Coos Bay.

LeVan, 69, died Friday in Coos Bay where he had lived for about 18 years. Born in Minnesota, he moved to Eugene in 1911 and was married to Bernice Thurman in Eugene in 1927.

A retired employe of Southern Pacific, he was a member of McKenzie River Lodge No. 195, AF & AM.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, Darwin, in Illinois; a daughter, Mrs. Charles Siewell, and a foster son, Ben Eremenko, both of Coos Bay; four sisters, Mrs. Ulysses Ellmaker, Mrs. Carl Boehringer, Mrs. Milton Koupal and Mrs. Ivan Spicer, all of Eugene, and several nieces and nephews.

Donations may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Ivan Spicer

Ivan Rea Spicer of 2380 Olive St., and former longtime resident of Franklin Boulevard in Glenwood, died at a local hospital April 19 at the age of 71.

He was born Nov. 7, 1899 in Harvard, Neb., where he was a blacksmith and early-day automobile mechanic.

In 1920, Mr. Spicer drove a Hupmobile from Nebraska to Eugene. He then went to work for E.C. Simmons at the Ford Garage and also was connected with the rainbow railroad car, which Mr. Simmons sponsored, planting fish on lakes and streams throughout the state.

From 1923 until 1926 Mr. Spicer was a partner in the Red Taxicab and also started the Yellow Cab service in Eugene, selling that business in 1926. One of his next ventures was the Dollar Line Stages which he sold to Greyhound in 1935.

Mr. Spicer bought his first timber from John Kelly at Mabel in the 1930's and obtained a sawmill at Anlauf which he moved to West 6th Avenue in Eugene. He and his wife, Florence, operated the mill until selling it in 1951.

Surviving besides his wife, the former Florence LeVan whom he married on May 18, 1929 in Eugene, are a daughter, Jean Smith of Portland; one son, James Ivan Spicer who lives at the home place on Franklin Boulevard; and four grandchildren.

Funeral services are pending at England Funeral Chapel in Eugene.

Miss Florence LeVan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. LeVan, was married to Ivan Spicer on Saturday evening, May 18, at a quiet wedding at the home of her parents.

Rev. J. F. Haas performed the ceremony in the presence of only immediate members of the two families. Miss Roberta Spicer played the wedding march, and following the wedding, Misses Roberta and Theda Spicer played selections on the 'cello and flute.

The bride wore a gown of apricot chiffon and carried a bouquet of yellow rose buds, lilies of the valley, and salmon pink sweet peas.

Following an informal supper, Mr. and Mrs. Spicer left for Vancouver, B. C., on a wedding trip. They will be at home at 1245 Willamette street upon their return.

Couple Wed In Lutheran Ceremony

Two local young people, Miss Patricia Esycheck and James I. Spicer, were united in marriage at St. Paul's Independent Lutheran church in Las Vegas, Nev. on Feb. 1 and are now at home in Barstow, Calif.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Esycheck, 250 Chapman lane, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Spicer, 3439 Franklin blvd.

Mr. and Mrs. Spicer went south for the wedding, and served as the couple's only attendants. The Rev. Thomas J. Daly read the single ring rites.

For her wedding the bride chose a light blue suit with black accessories. She was graduated from Springfield High school in 1956. Mr. Spicer is a 1955 Eugene High graduate.

He is now stationed in Barstow with the U.S. Army, and Mrs. Spicer is employed as a stenographer in a finance office there. Their Barstow address is 1205 Santa Fe drive.

AMBROSE A. LE VAN'S Diary - June 6, 1862 - Dec. 30, 1863
Jan. 26, 1873 thru Jan. 28, 1874
(Oct. 28 - Nov. 28, 1873 missing)

In copying this diary, I have tried to make the spelling the same as in the diary, sometimes I would forget. The spelling of words with two s's was done differently at that time - they wrote fs instead of ss. You will notice this in reading it. Several times he mentioned selling something for so many shillings. I was not aware that was being used at that time until I started copying this.
I have underlined interesting events that should be noticed.
He gave the weather report everyday with the exception of one, in all of this diary.
When he mentions meeting, he means going to church. They attended the Nazarene Church.
This being a work diary, it is too bad that he didn't mention his children. Once he mentions Ida.

One wonders why the Oct. 28 to Nov. 28, 1873 were missing. Did they go to Pennsylvania to visit relatives?

It is too bad that the time of their marriage is not in this diary. He kept a diary all of his life, and this is the only part that was handed down to me.

PROMINENT FAMILIES OF MAXATAWNY

THE SIEGFRIED FAMILY

Johannes Siegfried was one of the first, if not the first white settler in the vicinity of Kutztown. He and his good wife Elisabeth had taken up residence in Oley, where their daughter Catharine was born November 14, 1710. Some time prior to 1732 Johannes Siegfried and his family crossed the Oley Hills and settled on a large tract of land at what is now known as Siegfried's Dale. Here was born their daughter Mary Elisabeth, who is said to have been the first white child born in the Maxatawny region. She was married to Johannes Rothermel and removed to Windsor Township. Prof. A. C. Rothermel, the principal of the Keystone State Normal School, is a direct descendant of Johannes Rothermel and Mary Elisabeth Siegfried. Some time before his death, which occurred in the spring of 1770, Johannes Siegfried divided the plantation between his two sons Joseph and John. Besides these two sons he had six daughters: Catharine, wife of Frederick Romig; Susan, wife of Daniel Levan; Mary Elisabeth, wife of John Rothermel; Magdalena, wife of Anthony Fischer; Anna, wife of Jacob Fischer, and Margareth, wife of Jacob Moss. Their home was the stopping place for Moravian Missionaries, who itinerated through Pennsylvania and adjoining colonies during the middle decades of the Eighteenth Century. The family were of the Mennonite faith.

Catherine Siegfried, who was born in Oley in 1710 was married to her brother-in-law, Frederick Romig. They settled in Lynn Township and later removed to Macungie and there united with the Moravians. This union was blessed with twelve children. At the time of her death, October 7, 1793, Mrs. Romig was survived by one hundred and five grand-children and ten great-grand-children. The wife of the writer is a lineal descendant of hers.

Joseph, son of Johannes Siegfried, was married to Anna Maria Romig, a daughter of John Adam Romig. He spent all his days on the homestead, which he received from his father. His home, like that of his father, was a stopping place for the Moravian missionaries and officials on their journeys through Maxatawny to Tulpehocken, Lebanon, Litiz, Lancaster, York, etc. Shortly before his death, which occurred September 3, 1795, he was received into the fellowship of the Moravian Brethren. The following obituary appears on the Moravian Congregation record at Emaus:

"Joseph Siegfried of Maxatawny was born February 2, 1727. His parents were Johannes and Elizabeth Siegfried, and were of Mennonite persuasion. On July 3rd, 1745, he entered into Holy wedlock with Anna Maria Romig, which state God blessed with 13 children, (eight sons and five daughters, of whom six sons and two daughters survive), and with forty-eight grand-children, of whom seven are dead, and with three great-grand-children living.

"His sainted parents already loved the Saviour and the Brethren (Moravians) who in former years lodged in their home. And he too was a good friend to the Brethren; and loved our doctrine of Salvation in Jesus Christ. He truly saw that, as a sinner, his greatest need was to be cleansed of his sins by the Blood of Christ in Holy Baptism. He often felt a summons in his heart, and desired to be a sharer in this Grace, but never brought it to a firm resolution. He postponed it from time to time. During his last illness, having had a stroke in the previous year, from which he never fully recovered, this hung more heavily upon his heart; and he was at his earnest request and desire, cleansed of his sins by the washing of the holy baptism, by his bosom friend, Brother John Ettwein, who visited him and by Brother George Jungman of Bethlehem, in the presence of about thirty people from the neighborhood. At which time he shed many tears, and all who were present, were inwardly moved by the holy feeling of the presence of God.

"At the beginning of this month he was seized with convulsions and on the 3rd of September, 1795, shortly before 10 o'clock in the forenoon, he expired. He reached the age of 74 years, 6 months and a little over. On the 5th of September 1795, at the noon hour, he was buried on the family burial ground in the presence of a large concourse of people. At which time George Miller preached the sermon on God's acre from the text, Psalm 25:10: "All the paths of the Lord are mercy and truth unto such as keep His covenant and His testimonies."

Anna Maria Siegfried, nee Romig, the wife of Joseph Siegfried was born in Ittlingen near Heilbron in the Palatinate June 12, 1724, and came with her parents to Pennsylvania, September 30, 1732. Her parents were John Adam Romig and Agnes Marguerite Bernhardt. They were married in the year 1712 and resided at Ittlingen. John Adam Romig was the son of George Wendel Romich and his wife Marguerite Herner, and was born at Ruchenstein, in the Palatinate, February 3, 1680. To Joseph and Anna Maria Siegfried were born ten children, among whom were Catharine, Magdalena, Colonel John, Joseph, Henry, Isaac, Abraham, Daniel. Joseph and Abraham removed to near Bath, Northampton county.

To John Siegfried, Jr., the brother of Joseph, Sr., and his good wife Catharine were born six children: John, Jacob, Peter, Elisabeth, Margaret and Susanna. He died in 1770 and was buried on the family burial ground.

Col. John Siegfried, the friend of Washington, was born in Siegfried's Dale, Maxatawny Township, November 27, 1745. He was married to Mary Levan, a daughter of Daniel Levan, on a license dated August 25, 1769. In the spring of 1770 they removed to the east bank of the Lehigh River in Allen Township, Northampton County. Here he conducted a tavern and a ferry. On the tavern sign was inscribed this legend. "Entertainment for Man and Beast." This favorable location brought him into contact with many people and paved the way for his later popularity and fame. On July 2, 1776, he attended the meeting of the delegates of the Associated Battalions of the Pennsylvania Militia, held at Lancaster, as a major from the Third Battalion of Northampton County. He was later appointed Colonel of the Third Battalion. When Washington in 1776 was fleeing across New Jersey, after the disasterous campaign in and around New York, he sent the following letter to Col. Siegfried:

"Headquarters, Bucks Co., Pa., Dec. 22, 1776.

To Colonel John Siegfried:

Sir: The Council of Safety of this State, by their resolves of the 17th inst. empowered me to call out the militia of Northampton County to the assistance of the Continental army under my command, that, by our joint endeavors, we may put a stop to the progress of the enemy, who are making preparations to advance to Philadelphia, as soon as they cross the Delaware, either by boats, or on the ice. As I am unacquainted with names of the colonels of your militia, I have taken the liberty to inclose you six letters, in which you will please to insert the names of the proper officers, and send them immediately to them, by persons in whom you can confide for their delivery. If there are not as many colonels as letters you may destroy the balance not wanted. I most earnestly entreat those, who are so far lost to a love of their country; as to refuse to lend a hand to its support at this critical time. They may depend upon being treated as their baseness and want of public spirit will most justly deserve.

I am sir, your most obedient servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON."

Within two days after the issuing of the above call, a part of the Third Battalion was already in Philadelphia and were assigned to the command of General Putnam. They took part in the Battle of Trenton which resulted in the capture of one thousand Hessians. In the Battle of Assunpink, often referred to as the second Battle of Trenton, January 2, 1777, Rev. John Roseborough, the chaplain of Col. Siegfried's Battalion, was killed. It was after being repulsed that the British General Howe said: "I will bag the fox in the morning." The sequel is one of the best known incidents in American history. It was a part of Siegfried's Battalion under Capt. John Hays, that kept up the fires and threw up earthen works, while Washington and the rest of the army slipped away and defeated the British forces at Princeton. Col. Siegfried subsequently played an important role in the struggle for independence. On May 30, 1914, the people of Northampton erected a monument to his memory in the Mennonite Cemetery, where his ashes repose, which monument bears a bronze tablet recording some of his services in the cause of freedom.

TOMBSTONE OF COLONEL SIEGFRIED

In the spring of 1781 General Washington sent an officer to Easton to confer with Col. Siegfried, then sheriff of the county of Northampton, in reference to sending a quota of men to take part in the campaign against Yorktown. Col. Siegfried shortly before his death, which occurred November 27, 1793, together with Michael Beaver and Abraham Levan, gave ground for school purposes. He was survived by his wife Mary and seven children, Daniel, Mary, married to John James; Susan, married to Christian Hagenbuch; Catharine, Elisabeth, Jacob and Isaac.

SMULL FAMILY

"George Count von Schmull (as the name was originally written) was born July 22, 1764, at the ancient country seat of the family on an island near Yodesberg on the Rhine. He came to America about the close of the war of the Revolution, fleeing from religious persecution in the Old World. His estate, bearing the euphonious title of Von Plosh was confiscated by the government, converted into a convent for which purpose it was used until quite recently. Von Schmull settled near Germantown, Pennsylvania, where he married Susanna LeVan, daughter of a Huguenot family."

MICKLEY COAT OF ARMS

Motto: War, the Chase and Liberty.

"Upon a silver base there arises the pinnacle of a Fortress surrounded by a ditch. A deer, in its course, leaps over the same. The dome is adorned by a cap of liberty. A tradition says that the Michelet family descends from the Spanish Miqueletos, hunters in the Pyrenees, who also served as soldiers in the armies of the Spanish Kings. Some of the members of the Berlin family and many of the Norwegian family have been officers or are as such yet."

MICKLEY FAMILY

The following is from the book by Minnie Fogel Mickley - 1893
A copy of this book is in the possession of Florence LeVan Spicer.

Introduction

Joseph J. Mickley, in the preface of Murders by the Indians and the Causes Thereof, in Northampton County, Pa., October 8, 1763" read by him at a reunion of the family, has the following:

"A large number of the descendants of John Jacob Mickley (the first of the name in America) assembled on the farm, formerly his property, in North Whitehall Township, Lehigh County, where the Indians murdered two of his children, and also the family of John Schneider, on the adjoining farm, the 8th of October 1763. In commemoration of that event, the following paper was prepared and read October 8th, 1863.

"From what I have been able to gather, it appears that our family is descended from French Huguenots, the name having originally been written Michelet, but corrupted, and variously written Miquelet, Muckli, etc., and finally anglicised into the present form, Mickley; that during the persecution of the Huguenots in France, they emigrated to the bordering Dukedom of Deux Ponts (Zweibrucken), then a part of the German Empire; where they were unmolested in the exercise of their religion.

"We have authentic information that our ancestor, John Jacob Mickley, was born in Europe, in the year 1697; that he came to America in the ship Hope, of London, from Rotterdam, Holland, arriving in Philadelphia, August 28, 1733. He was married in this country to Elizabeth Barbara, daughter of Ulrich Burkhalter, and settled in Whitehall Township, Northampton County, now North Whitehall, Lehigh County, and died in August, 1769. He left three sons and two daughters.

"In preparing this account about the Indians, I have drawn from the most reliable authorities, and rejected many incredible verbal stories about Indian affairs which had been added in course of time, so that the statements may be tolerably correct. I cannot omit to express my great satisfaction in having visited John Peter Mickley, in Bucks, and his sister, Mrs. Bieber, in Northampton Co. in the year 1819, and obtained many facts from them in relation to this matter; whatever the one related to me, was corroborated by the other. From them I also learned that the 8th of October, 1763 was one of those clear, pleasant days which have frequently been experienced at that time of the year. Owing to the occurrence of the Indian murders, that day has always been mentioned by our family as the beginning of Indian Summer."

It is not within the limits of the present work to enter at any length upon the trials and hardships of our ancestors in their early frontier life; but the massacre of the Mickley children, October 8th, 1763, is of such deep interest to every member of the family that I quote in full the account as given by the late Joseph J. Mickley on the occasion of the One Hundreth Anniversary of the sad event:

"The approach of the Indians was seen by Ulrich Showalter, who was working on the roof of a building. The site being considerably elevated above the river Lehigh, he had a good opportunity to see and count the Indians. Twelve in all were seen wading across the river, a short distance above Siegfried's Bridge, to this day known as the "Indian Fall" or Rapids. The Indians crossed the river and landed near Leisenring's Mountain (now "Laurel Hill"). It is to be observed, that the greater part of this township was at the time still covered with dense forests, so that the Indians could go from one place to another almost in a straight line, through the woods, without being seen.

It is not known that they were seen by any one but Showalter until they reached the farm of John Jacob Mickley, where they encountered three of his children, two boys and a girl, in a field under a chestnut tree gathering chestnuts. The children's ages were-- Peter, eleven; Henry, nine; and Barbary, seven; who, on seeing the Indians, began to run away. The little girl was overtaken not far from the tree by an Indian, who knocked her down with a tomahawk. Henry had reached the fence, and, while in the act of climbing it, an Indian threw a tomahawk at his back, which, it is supposed, instantly killed him. Toth of these children were scalped The little girl, in an insensible state, lived until the following morning. Peter, having reached the woods, hid himself between two large trees which were standing near together, and, surrounded by brushwood, he remained quietly concealed there, not daring to move for fear of being discovered, until he was sure that the Indians had left. He was, however, not long confined there; for, when he heard the screams of the Schneider family, he knew that the Indians were at that place, and that his way was clear. He escaped unhurt, and ran with all his might, by way of dam Deshler's, to his brother, John Jacob Mickley, to whom he communicated the melancholy intelligence. From this time Peter lived a number of years with his brother John Jacob, after which he settled in Bucks County, where he died in the year 1827, at the age of seventy-five. One of his daughters, widow of the late Henry Statzel, informed me among other matters, of a remarkable fact related by her father, namely that the Mickley family owned at that time a very large and ferocious dog, which had a particular antipathy to Indians; and it was believed by the family, that it was owing to the dog the Indians did not make an attack on their house, and thus the destruction of their lives was prevented. John Jacob Mickley and Ulrich Flickinger, then ontheir way to Stenton's, being attracted by the screams of the Schneiders, hastened to the place where, a short time before, was peace and quitness, and saw the horribly mangled bodies of the dead and wounded, and the houses of Marks and Schneider in flames. The dead were buried on Schneider's farm."

"In the following history of our family I am led to regard the influence of Suzanne Mangeot, a Huguenot as one or our greater inheritances. It was through her influence Louis Michelet of Metz, became a Protestant, and as Huguenot Refugees, they were married in Zweibrucken, and their descendants in Berlin speak of themselves--not as "Berliners," but "Refugees"."

"The diary of Suzanne Mangeot Michelet, is in the possession of Dr. C. L. Michelet of Berlin, and it was a great satisfaction to me to look through it, and I wish I could have read it through--as it would have given her descendants many interesting accounts of those troublous times after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, during the times of the persecution of the Huguenots."

Prof. Dr. Charles Louis Michelet of Berlin, Germany corresponded with Minnie Mickley, the compiler of the book. Quoting from some of the correspondence:

Berlin, April 21st, 1883
Buelow Street, 28,S.W.

"Miss Minnie F. Mickley,

"Esteem Miss: You will allow me to answer your English letter of the 9th of this month, in German, as I do not consider myself sufficiently competent to write a strictly correct letter in English, without some effort. You also, as the daughter of a German, no doubt understand this language.

"All the Michelets with whom I have any acquaintance come from Metz, and I have in my possession now a complete genealogical table of the family, dated from the year 1444 up to the present day. This table is based for its truthfulness, partly, on the researches of the clergyman living there; partly, on the certificates of baptism belonging to the city, and partly on private papers belonging to my own immediate family.

"According to these researches, my great, great grandfather, Louis Michelet, was married in 1697 to Susanne Mangeot, whose diary kept by herself, we have yet in good preservation, and in it she states she was married to her husband in Zwei-Brucken.

"I can now easily imagine why this betrothed couple was not married in Metz, because, on account of the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, 1685, no marriage was allowed to be solemnized, in the then French city, in accordance with the principles of the Protestant religion, and yet they were both secretly attached thereto. They went, consequently, to the neighboring Zwei-Brucken, in the Bavarian Palatinate, to celebrate their marriage, for since the peace of Westphalia, 1648, Germany had become friendly and co-equal.

"In the Statistical Archives of Metz is found, however, the information that Louis Michelet and his wife Susanne, in 1699, openly declared their adherence to the new religion, and that in 1715, Louis now having become a widower, also declared his five children, Jean (John), Barbe, Marie, Louis (my great grandfather), and Pierre, as Protestants.

"What, however, I could not explain to myself in this connection was this: That, although the certificates of baptism of the last four children are jointly found in Metz, Barbe being born November 16, 1702; Marie, December 11, 1703; Louis (who emigrated to Berlin in 1720), December 8, 1705; Pierre, December 21, 1710; yet the certificate of Jean, the eldest, is entirely wanting, so that I even attached a mark of interrogation to his name in the genealogical table.

"Now, after what you communicate to me concerning your ancester, John Jacob, this omission plainly explains itself. The married couple evidently remained yet awhile in Zwei-Brucken to await the birth of their first born.

"Should you desire to ascertain the exact date of birth of your ancestor, you would have to apply to the Protestant of Municipal Congregation of Zwei-Brucken, and request of it the authentic certificate of baptism of your Jean Jacques or Johann Jacob Mickelet, stating such date of year as may be known to you.

"From all this, I believe that we may consider ourselves distant relatives, descending from two brothers, in about the fifth generation, and remain, with great respect,

Your devoted,

Prof. Dr. Michelet."

"Miss Minnie F. Mickley,

"Esteemed Miss: The photographs of your grandfather and father, I shall receive with many thanks, and that of myself shall not fail for you. I am exceedingly anxious to see whether the very decided family character of the Michelets has preserved itself in America as it has in the Michelet of Paris, whom I visited in 1849, and, as in certain Norwegian, Adele Michelet, who introduced herself and her husband to us.

"These family features are so unmistakable that when, at a yearly festival of the French Huguenots here, my wife, Jenny, (aSwiss lady), saw the fur-dealer, Louis Michelet, without having known him previously, she turned to me and said, "That is evidently a Michelet! In a remarkable manner is also yet familiar to my wife the saying of her great grandmother,"They were perfec Michelets!" My son, George, resembles me so strikingly in features and manners, that she is accustomed to say, "This is a geniune Michelet!"

Most humble,

Michelet,"

"Enclosed, herewith, you will receive the family Coat of Arms. So we brought it along from Metz, and so it is found in the "Book of Heraldry" in Vienna, as the Coat of Arms of the Family Michelet, in the free city of Metz, of the German Empire.

MICKLEY (MICHELET) FAMILY

"In the romantic Valley of the Lehigh and the region adjacent, a considerable number of Huguenots, principally Alsatians, settled at an early day. Among the first arrivals in Whitehall Township, Lehigh County, was John Jacob Mickley, who came to America in 1733 and was the founder of a prominent family. Jean Jacques Michelet (this was his French name) was descended from a noble and Protestant family of the city of Metz.

"In 1546 Michelet was given the choice of recanting his faith or burning at the stake. He ch ose the latter, declaring: 'Inasmuch as God has given me grace to confess the truth, He will not deny me strength to suffer for it.'

"The father of Jean Jacques Michelet, Louis Michelet (1675-1750), was a young merchant of Metz when he was married in 1697 to Suzanne Mangeot, a pious and accomplished young lady of that place. No marriage of Protestants being legal in France, they proceeded to the free city of Zweibrucken (Deux Ponts,- "Two Bridges"), where they were married, and where they also remained until after the birth of Jean Jacques the same year (1697). Louis Michelet was an earnest, devoted man, and soon after his marriage began to exercise the office of the ministry. In course of time he became pastor of the Huguenot congregation in Zweibrucken, where he continued to reside until his death.

"Upon his arrival in America, John Jacob Mickley proceeded to Berks County, Pennsylbania, where he made his home with his kinsman, Jacob LeVan. A few years later he came to the Lehigh Valley where he married Elizabeth Barbara, daughter of Ulrich Burkhalter, and established himself on a large estate on which the village of Mickleys (near Allentown, Pa.) is situated. Here he died in 1769. Many of his descendants have shed additional lustre on the honored family name. His three sons served with distinction in the War of the Revolution, viz.; John Jacob, John Martin and John Henry. The first,— John Jacob Mickley, Jr., noted as having brought the Liberty Bell from Philadelphia to Allentown, Pa., in September, 1777, in order to save it from capture by the British." (See also "Mickley Genealogy", in loco.)

Zion's Reformed Church, Allentown, Pa., (1927), is the third structure (same denomination) - on the same site where the Liberty Bell was hidden during the American Revolution (1777). In 1908, under the auspices of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Pennsylvania Legislature placed a large red boulder in front of Zion's Reformed Church, bearing a splendid bronze tablet with the following inscription:

"In commemoration of the saving of the Liberty Bell from the British, September, 1777, erected to the memory of JOHN JACOB MICKLEY, commissary of issues and member of the General Committee from Whitehall Township, Northampton County, Pa., who, under cover of darkness and with his farm team hauled the Liberty Bell from Independence Hall, Philadelphia, through the British lines to Bethlehem, where the wagon broke down Seotember 23, 1777. The bell was then transferred to Frederick Leiser's wagon, and brought to Allentown September 23, 1777. It was placed beneath the floor of Zion's Reformed Church where it remained secreted for nearly a year. This tablet is placed by the order of the Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. June 2, 1907, under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Daughters of the American Revolution, erected October 15, 1908."

the LIBERTY BELL SLEPT HERE

ALLENTOWN, PA.

MANY AMERICAN TOWNS pride themselves on being able to say "George Washington slept here." But this city, 50 miles north of Philadelphia, claims a rarer distinction. It boasts: "The Liberty Bell slept here!"

It was just 185 years ago this week, at the height of the Revolutionary War, that the Liberty Bell was hidden away in the basement of Zion United Church of Christ here. Only 15 months earlier, the bell had pealed at the proclamation of the Declaration of Independence. Now it was leaving Philadelphia in the civilian evacuation of that city.

Today the old church basement has been turned into a shrine (see photo) that all Americans can visit. The ancient, rough-hewn walls, only recently discovered, have been reconstructed and lined with the flags of the 13 original states. And nestling among the flags stands an exact replica—a gift from Pennsylvania—of the Liberty Bell itself.

The hiding of the bell in 1777 was actually a device to save metal. The British were advancing on Philadelphia, where the Liberty Bell resided at the State House (today's Independence Hall). Fearful patriots believed the redcoats would capture it and melt it for bullets to use against Washington's army—soon to begin its long, starving winter's vigil at nearby Valley Forge.

On September 14, 1777, the Continental Congress ordered all the bells in Philadelphia removed to a place of safety. Soon a long twisting line of 700 farm wagons snaked its way slowly northward, the train including the whole baggage of Washington's retreating army, most of his wounded—and the bells of Philadelphia.

No one knows exactly who hauled the Liberty Bell. Two local farmers, Frederick Leaser and John Jacob Mickley, claimed the honor. Their descendants today are still disputing it.

The Liberty Bell was one of eleven bells that made their way to Allentown, then known as Northampton Town. Somehow, citizens wrestled the huge, 2080-pound bell off its cart and into the cellar of Zion Church. There it remained hidden until June 27, 1778, when it was returned to Philadelphia after the British evacuated the city.

Foundations Rediscovered

Years later, the old stone church was replaced by a new one on the same site. The stone-and-lime walls that had housed the bell were buried and forgotten. It was not until 1958, in connection with preparations for Allentown's bicentennial celebration this year, that the original stone foundations were excavated beneath the present church structure. Jubilant citizens immediately decided to create a shrine.

Since then, the old basement's fame has spread and already more than 200 visitors a day are filing through "The Liberty Bell Church." They come to see and to honor the place where, in one of our nation's darkest hours, a unique symbol of freedom was courageously preserved for posterity.

In the middle of Bethlehem's public square, the axle of the wagon carrying the Liberty Bell cracked, spilling the precious relic into the filth.

(This true story of the Liberty Bell has been compiled from original sources—old family letters, the diaries of the Moravian Brethren in Bethlehem, Pa., and the records of the Zion Reformed Church in Allentown, Pa. No history textbook has given this detailed story, which began Sept. 18, 1777.)

WHEN THEIR WAGON was still half-a-day's ride from Philadelphia, John Jacob Mickley and his son began to pass the wounded shot down at Brandywine. They went by in farm wagons like Mickley's, with grim-faced men holding the reins.

Mickley knew about General Washington's defeat. The news had come through Lehigh Valley days ago. Washington's men had done what they could, but they weren't able to hold out against the combined attacks of General Knyphausen's Hessians, Lord Cornwallis' Grenadiers, the Queen's Rangers, the Yaegers, the Guards, the Dragoons—that great 12,000-man army under Lord William Howe. It was only a matter of time now, everybody knew, before they'd attack Philadelphia.

Mickley glanced uneasily at his 11-year-old son. Had he been wise to bring the boy along? One thing was certain: he'd sell his wagonload of grain and potatoes and get out of Philadelphia first thing in the morning.

He was not a fearful man, John Jacob Mickley. He came from rugged Huguenot stock which had settled in the village of Northampton, on the Lehigh River, more than a generation ago. You had to be tough to survive those pioneer days, and Mickley had learned not to be afraid of anything. He was uneasy now only because of his concern for the safety of his son Johnny.

ILLUSTRATION BY ROBERT SHORE

In Philadelphia's market place, he had no trouble selling his produce. When he had pocketed his money and stabled the horses, he put a hand on his son's shoulder, and they started for a night's sleep at the inn.

As they passed the State House yard, Mickley stopped to stare. The great State House bell—the bell which had been cast in England, which had rung out to commemorate every important Colonial event of the past 23 years—was being hauled out!

Nearby, a group of men had gathered in anxious talk. Mickley made inquiries.

One of the men told him: "The Executive Council has ordered Col. Benjamin Fowler to remove all bells from the city—can't have them fall into British hands. General Howe would have them melted down for bullets. They'd like that, the King's men—kill us with bullets from our own bells!"

land; now it might be melted into bullets to kill American rebels—could smuggle it past the Redcoats

Mickley led his son to the inn. He was silent and disturbed while they ate, oppressed by a sense of danger. He hadn't quite finished his meal when a stranger sought him out. "Mr. Mickley?"

John Jacob looked up in surprise.

The man wore a tattered uniform, and he bent over the table to speak in a low voice: "Colonel Fowler sends his compliments, sir. He asks if you will have the goodness to come with me to his headquarters."

Colonel Fowler was the commissary general of military stores. When such a man sent for you, there must be urgent reason. Mickley and Johnny went with the stranger.

Adventures of a Bell

Tall and gaunt, Colonel Fowler came around his writing table to grasp Mickley's hand. "I understand you have a sturdy farm wagon and strong horses," he said. "We have need of your help. I'll have my men load the State House bell on your wagon during the night. No doubt you will be carrying the usual empty sacks when you go back to Northampton? And you will be taking the usual load of manure?"

"Why, ye-es . . ."

"Good! I'm glad you have a strong wagon; the bell weighs better than 2,000 pounds. We'll hide it under the manure and the potato sacks. We've arranged for all the bells in the region to be hidden under the floor boards of the Zion Reformed Church in Northampton. That, I understand, is only a few miles from your home."

Mickley nodded, then exchanged a glance with his wide-eyed son.

Fowler added, "Tomorrow Col. William Polk and 200 troops will escort a train of 700 wagons to Bethlehem. They're going ahead to help prepare winter headquarters for the General, either at Bethlehem or Valley Forge. In any case, you won't be alone as far as Bethlehem."

Mickley and Johnny shook hands with Colonel Fowler and left.

In darkness, they hurried to the stable and watched men load the bell onto their wagon—a bell almost six feet wide at the lip and nearly as tall as Johnny; a bell that had last rung out to announce the freedom declaration of July 4, 1776, more than a year ago. By the light of the lanterns, Mickley read the inscription in the bronze:

Proclaim Liberty throughout all the land
Unto all the inhabitants thereof

The military train, escorted by Col. William Polk of North Carolina, left Philadelphia early on Sept. 19. When John Jacob Mickley joined the force at 7 o'clock, he found his wagon one of the last in the long line. The foremost already were well on their way, with Colonel Polk himself leading.

In good weather, with an easy load, it took three days to travel to Bethlehem and Northampton (the village to be known later as Allentown). But this time Mickley's progress was much slower, though he pushed his team as hard as he dared. The army train drew ahead, and Mickley thanked heaven that he had not seen any Redcoat patrols so far.

But his luck didn't hold. Late in the afternoon of the second day, as the wagon topped a rise in a valley—a narrow spot hemmed in by trees on steep hills—Mickley had a glimpse of the road below. Red uniforms!

He stopped the horses. He rose to stand on the wagon's seat, shading his eyes against the sun. He made out three mounted figures—Yaegers! There was no way to escape them now. He couldn't turn the team on this narrow road, and they were coming toward him fast.

He was trapped. But out of his pioneer background came a wild hope. "Johnny," he said; "you remember Grandpa's stories—how he used to scare off Indians?"

Johnny whispered, "Yes!"

"Well, I want you to get to the top of that rise and do what Grandpa did!"

The boy jumped off the wagon. As he disappeared among the trees, Mickley called after him: "If anything happens to me, if they shoot, follow the river! Make your way home!"

Mickley picked up the reins and drove on. He had no weapon. Before the war he'd had two good muskets, but he had given both to Washington's ill-equipped forces.

Within a minute, the three Britishers stopped him. "What are you hauling, fellow?" the leader called.

"Fertilizer," he answered.

Two of the men came beside the wagon, poking at its load. One of them snarled, "Not a thing here to take back to camp!"

"Well, let's not leave this rebel with a good wagon and horses!" the second added.

A powerful fellow, he swung off his mount. He bent to lift a rock that seemed to weigh 100 pounds. Mickley thought desperately: Where's Johnny? What's keeping him?

The Britisher swung his body like a pendulum, then let the rock fly. It crashed against the axle of the right front wheel and thudded to the ground. It seemed to Mickley that he heard the splintering of wood; he all but cried out.

At that instant, Johnny's piercing voice came through the stillness. "Amos! Fred! Job! Get the boys! There are three King's men on the road! Quick! Come on!"

The startled Yaegers spun around to stare upward. There was a great thrashing among the trees. Mickley knew that Johnny was beating at branches with a pole. It sounded like men crashing through the brush.

Clearly, the small British patrol was out for foodstuffs, not a fight. They had no taste for being ambushed by rebels hidden among the trees. They mounted and galloped off toward Philadelphia.

Mickley jumped down to examine the axle. He saw no split. He was still studying the wood when Johnny came running, breathless. "Did I do all right, Pa?" he asked.

Mickley hugged the boy. "You're a man."

Safe for the Future

Late on Sept. 23, John Jacob Mickley drove into Bethlehem, only six miles from his goal. And there, in the very middle of the public square, in front of the Moravian Brethren's Church, the axle cracked! The wagon tilted on its side, and the Liberty Bell was ingloriously spilled out in a welter of manure and empty potato sacks.

Mickley and his son went sprawling. They rose to stare in dismay. Men who saw the accident came running. When they recognized this as the bell, there was wild excitement.

Another farmer from Northampton, Frederick Leaser, had just delivered supplies to the village. He drove his empty wagon up to Mickley's, and Mickley relayed Colonel Fowler's instructions. Dozens of hands helped raise the heavy bell onto Leaser's wagon and cover it with empty sacks and bags of fertilizer.

And so, John Jacob Mickley and his son, disappointed because they had been unable to finish the job, watched Frederick Leaser take the bell its final six miles to Northampton.

When Frederick Leaser drew up in front of Northampton's Zion Reformed Church — now turned into a hospital and filled with Washington's wounded—the Rev. Abraham Blumer and a score of others helped hide the bell under the floor boards. There, with 10 smaller bells from Philadelphia, the State House bell lay hidden for a year.

In December, 1778, six months after American troops re-entered Philadelphia, it was carried back in a triumphant 80-mile parade to its proper place in the State House, which is known today as Independence Hall.

"A far better fate," as John Jacob Mickley told his grandchildren, "than being melted down for British bullets!"

THE GRISWOLD FAMILY
ENGLAND --AMERICA

EDWARD GRISWOLD

EDWARD. Born in England, 1607; m. there about 1630, MARGARET, whose family name and parentage have not been disclosed; neither have we actual records of his birth and marriage.

About Aug. 17, 1639, Rev. Ephriam Huit arrived in Windsor, Connecticut with his company and immediately entered upon his labors assisting Rev. John Warham.

Rev. Huit had been pastor at Knowle and Wroxall, Warwickshire, England, Wroxall being a part of Kenilworth Parish. He was a writer of note upon religious subjects and a powerful preacher of the Puritan faith; he was censured for his nonconformity and silenced by the Bishop of Worcester, which, no doubt, was the moving cause of his organizing his company and for his removal to New England. Edward and Matthew Griswold were members of this company, and for this reason it had been thought that the records of Knowle and Wroxall would disclose some clue to the parentage of our ancestors, but thus far they are silent.

Edward was of the sturdy intellectual type and speedily became prominent in the affairs of the new community, exceedingly active, and was frequently mentioned in colonial records. Served as deputy to the General Court Aug. 18, 1658-Mar. 14, 1660, and May 15, 1662-Mar. 11, 1663. In 1659 he built the Old Fort at Springfield for Mr. Pynchon. Also served as J. P. He was granted land at Poquonoc but he did not remove there until after the title of the Indians had been fully extinguished, 1642. But he was resident there with two other families, John Bartlett and Thomas Holcomb, in 1649. His home stood near the highway at the top of the hill; had 29 1/2 acres bounded mostly south and west by Stony Brook; east by the river. His sons George and Joseph inherited the homestead.

In 1663, with his son John, Edward removed to Hammonassett, later called Killingworth.

The present Clinton, Conn., is the original Killingworth; Main Street is the identical ground where the first settlers took their home lots. These were surveyed in 1663 by Byron Rossiter of Guilford. Edward was one of the first settlers and doubtless suggested the name from Kenilworth Parish in England, and

Compiled by Glenn E. Griswold, Cleveland, Ohio
The Tuttle Publishing Co., Inc., Rutland, Vt.

was the most prominent man in the new settlement and must be given full credit for first organizing this community. He was its first deputy to the General Court.

Among the names entered as planters by the committee we find Edward Griswold, Samuell Buell, and Jonas Westover, and in 1669 these were recorded as freemen.

Edward was largely instrumental in organizing the first church and was its first deacon. Frequently served on important civil matters, his services, counsel and guidance evidently much sought. Served on the committee to establish a Latin school at New London.

Ancient land records on file at the office of the Secretary of State, Hartford, Conn., show land grants in favor of Edward; one of 200 acres; another of 100 acres given by the town of Killingworth; he was a large land holder showing the spirit of those English settlers to accumulate large land holdings.

Margaret died Aug. 23, 1670, and is buried in the Congregational cemetery at Clinton, Conn., her gravestone marked "M.G. 1670" is the oldest monument. However it does not show or indicate the patient devotion nor the hardship endured in that vast wilderness in rearing her family.

Edward married second, 1673, SARAH BEMIS, widow of James Bemis, constable of New London, who died in 1665. She was the daughter of John and Rebecca (Bemis) Dimond.

Edward died in his 84th year, his burial place being unknown, except it may be in the vacant space next to that of Margaret.

The following children were born to Edward and Margaret; the first five were baptized in Kenilworth Parish, England; others are recorded in Windsor, Conn.:

THE FELT GENEALOGY
A Record
of
The Descendants of George Felt
of

FIRST GENERATION.

EXPLANATION OF ARRANGEMENT.—This will be readily understood. The descendants are numbered consecutively on the left hand side of the page, and a star (*) prefixed to a number indicates that the record of the person thus designated is carried forward and will be found in the succeeding generation under the same number, this time located in the center of the line. All the children of one family thus carried forward are grouped under a caption designating the parents, and the eldest child takes precedence in the arrangement.

I.

George Felt is found in Charlestown, Mass., in 1633. He was born in 1601, and tradition relates that he came to America with Endicott.[1] He was not among the first settlers of Charlestown, there being a few persons there in 1628, but the following year about one hundred people came with Thomas Graves from Salem, and laid the foundation of the town, which they named in honor of Charles the First. Charlestown was incorporated June 24, 1629, and the first church was organized November 2, 1632. The original town was laid out in two-acre divisions, and each settler was granted one of them for a homestead. We have the testimony of George Felt himself that the year of his advent in this town was that already named, for in 1681 he describes himself as about 80 years of age, and testifies "that the town of Charlestown gave him an house plott of two acres of land lying in the common on the left hand as you go to Cambridge betwixt the ground that was Rice Morrisses and Goble's, which is now in the hands of Thomas Welch Senr, which plott was given him about forty-eight years since."

The wife of George Felt was Elizabeth,[2] daughter of widow Prudence Wilkinson,[3] whose home in Charlestown was on the south side of Mill Hill, nearly adjoining that of her son-in-law. Whether he married in Charlestown, or was already married when he came, is cause for conjecture, but it is probable that they were already married and brought children with them.

[1] John Endicott reached Salem with a small party in September, 1628.

[2] Rev. Joseph B. Felt states that an Elizabeth Felt died in 1662, aged 50 years. If this was the wife of George Felt, he subsequently married another of the same baptismal name.

[3] Widow Prudence Wilkinson in her will, dated "1655, 11 : Mo : 9, day," names her son John and her daughter Eliza. Felt.

The town of Charlestown, although at the time of its annexation to Boston in 1873, the smallest in the State, covering only about 600 acres, originally embraced within its limits the territory now contained in Woburn, Burlington, Stoneham, Malden, Somerville, and parts of Reading, Medford, Cambridge, and Arlington. On the 10th of January, 1634, it was agreed at a meeting of the inhabitants, "Y^t^ y^e^ inhab. und^r^ mentioned have planting ground laid out unto them bet. the east end of the lotts above mentioned at the Creek, having new town pale on the south." Of this division "George ffelt" received four acres. This was on the "Mistick side," or beyond the river of that name and within the confines of the present town of Everett. On this side of the river he subsequently acquired considerable land, as will appear presently.

Up to this time all public business had been transacted by a general convention of the people, but this practice having become cumbersome and unsatisfactory, it was thought best to organize a new form of town government; consequently, on the 10th of February, 1634–5, the following "town order" creating a board of selectmen was passed: —

"An ord^r^ made by the Inhabitants of Charlestowne At a ffull meeting, for the Governm^t^ of the Towne by Selectmen:

"1634. In consideration of the great trouble and chearg of the Inhabitants of Charlestowne by reason of the Frequent meeting of the townsmen in generall, and y^t^ by reason of many men meeting things were not so easily brought unto a ioynt Issue: It is therefore agreed by the sayde townesmen ioytly that these eleuen men whose names are written on the other syde, with the advise of Pastor and teacher desired in any case of conscience, shall entreat of all such busines as shall concerne the townsmen, The choise of officers excepted, and what they or the greater part of them shall conclude of, the rest of the towne willingly to submit Vnto as their owne pper act, and these 13 (sic) to contineu in imployment for one yeare next ensuing the date hereof, being dated this: 10th of February 1634.

"In wittnes of this agreement wee whose names are vnder written haue set to o^r^ hands."

There were thirty-three signers to this order, among them George Felt, and it will be observed that his signature, which may yet be seen upon the ancient records of Charlestown, is written FELCH. This, or FELTCH, is thought to have been the original name, which was easily and naturally contracted into FELT. All the descendants of George have written the name Felt.

By the year 1638 the necessity of an accurate public record of their possessions was felt by the people of Charlestown, and on the 26th of the first month (March) Abraham Palmer was "chosen by the Towne for keepeing the Towne Booke, as also to Record all pprieties of Houses, Lands, Meadow or Pasture, as any Inhabitants of y^e^ Towne are, or shall bee possest of accord^e^: to an ord^r^ of Court provided in y^t^ behalfe."

Mr. Palmer, who was the second incumbent of the town clerk's office, having accomplished this, the following entry appears upon the records: —

"1638. On the 28th day of the X month was taken A True Record of all such houses & Lands as are possessed by the Inhabita^nts^ of Charlstown, wheth^r^ by purchase, by gi^f^t from the Towne, or by allottments as they were devided amongst them by a Joynt Consent aft^r^ the Gen^ll^ Court had setled theire Bounds, by granting eight miles from the old Meeting house into the Contry Northwest North^r^ly, &c. the bounds of the s^d^ Towne Lying or being bettwixt Cambridge alias New Towne, on the West South west, & Boston Land on the East as it app^rs^ upon Record by the sever^ll^ grants of Gen^ll^ Courts to all the affores^d^ Bounds."

George Felt was found to be the owner of the following property within the limits of the town: —

"1. One Dwelling house with a garden plott, scituate on the south west of the mill hill, butting southward upon Charls river, northeast upon crooked lane, bounded on the norwest by Nicolas Trerrice, and on the southeast by Ben. Hubbard.[1]

"2. One milch cow common.[2]

"3. ffive acres of wood land by estimation, more or lesse, scituate in misticke feilde, butting south upon the high way towards the south river, north upon the woodland, bounded on the west by Prū Wilkinson, and on the east by Rob Hayle.[3]

[1] and [2]. These two were within the limits of the present Charlestown District of Boston.

[3] Within the present limits of Everett.

"4. Haulf an acre of meaddow by estimation, more or lesse, lying in mistick marshes, butting west towards the north river, bounded on the north by Will Dade, and on the south by George Bunker.[1]

"5. ffive acres of woodland by estimation, more or lesse. scituate in mistick feilde, butting northeast upon Nicolas Stowers, southwest upon Ric. Palgrave, bounded on the northwest by Phillip Drinker, and on the southeast by Rice Morrice.[2]

"6. ffifteene acres of woodland, more or lesse, scituate in mistick feilde, butting northeast upon Abr. Palmer and James mathewes, southwest upon Ed Convers, bounded on the northwest by Thō Lynde, and on the southeast by James Pemberton.[3]

"7. Thirtie and eight acres of land, more or lesse, scituate in waterfeilde, butting northwest upon ffrancis Norton, southeast upon Rich Palgrave and Thō Peirce, bounded on the southwest by Edward Sturges, and on the northeast by horne pond."[4]

Thus it appears that George Felt was the owner of a very respectable property, as has previously been intimated.

On the 19th of January, $16\frac{4}{11}$, Elizabeth Felt, the wife of George, was admitted to the communion of the First Church, and a week later, January 26th, presented her three children, Elizabeth, Mary, and George, for baptism. No record has been found to show that the father was a member of the Charlestown Church. Elder John Green, in his entry of the above mentioned baptisms, calls the name Felch, although he recorded Elizabeth, the mother, at the time of her admission to the church, as Felt.

Some time during the year 1640, George Felt obtained three hundred acres of land from John Philips, a Welshman, at Broad Cove on Casco Bay, in Maine, and by 1643 had become one of the pioneer settlers of North Yarmouth. "The advent of George Felt in Broad Cove may be said to be the birthday of North Yarmouth." This locality was then called Wescustogo by the Indians. Upon this land he built a stone house, or garrison, but his title to the property not proving sufficient, he re-purchased it in 1643 of Richard Vines, the agent of Sir Ferdinando Gorges, who held a patent of all the lands embraced within the territory of Maine, east of the Sagadahoc River. After a few years' residence at Wescustogo, George Felt returned to Charlestown and took up his abode on "Mistick side," and when the town of Malden was incorporated, May 2, 1649, he was found to reside within its limits. About this time he disposed of a portion of his "Mistick side" property, as witnessed by the following deeds: —

"Know all men by these presents, that I Georg Felch, Inhabitant of Charlestown, on Mistike syde, doe by this acknowledge that I have sould, and am full payd for it, unto James Barret, of the same town, three akers of Arrable land, more or lesse, which I bought of ffrancis Mills, which sayd land lyes on Mistik syde, within the rayles, bounded on the east syde by Richard Kettell, and by the cuntry high way on the west syde, bounded on the north by Edward Carrington, and on the south by A high way. And the sayd James Barret is to enjoy and to hould the sayd three akers of land for him and his heighers for ever.

"In witness hereof, I, Georg ffelch, have set my hand to a bill of sale of this same, the 26th day of the 3rd moneth, 1648." This land was within the present limits of Everett.

"Know all men by these presents, that I, Georg Felch, of Charlestown, do acknowledge that I have sould unto Gardy James of the same towne, half my Ten Aker Lott, lying on Mistik syde, the other halfe of which Lott my mother Wilkinson occupieth and enjoyeth, and I doe hereby resign over all my right, titell, and interest in the sayd half ten Aker Lott unto the sayd Gardy James, to be his and his heigres for ever.

"Witness my hand this 1st day of the 2d Mo. 1649."

In a deed[1] given Aug. 4, 1664, to John Phillips of Boston, in which he describes himself as of "Casco in New England, mason," he disposes of his "dwelling house with the barne, out houseing & Land and meadow ground," also twenty acres of land "belonging to the houselott," and "allso sixteen acres and a halfe of swamp," two acres in "Charlestowne Common," twenty-four acres in "Charles-towne comons on Misticke side near spott pond," and fourteen acres of meadow "lying in Charlestowne bounds." At the time this deed was given he had already returned to Casco Bay, and this was the closing out of his possessions in Massachusetts.

During the time of his absence from Maine, George Felt retained the ownership of his possessions there, and about 1660 returned to Broad Cove. The deposition of his son Moses, made Nov. 30, 1733, and recorded in Book 17, page 76, of York County Records, in which he states "that he lived in North Yarmouth in Casco Bay, ab[t] fourteen years before the Narragansett Indian Warr broke out," fixes this year as the time of his return.

In 1670 he added to his possessions by another purchase from John Philips, of 2,000 acres of land at Broad Cove, for which he paid the sum of sixty pounds. He had already lived upon it three years and improved it.

In 1675 the Narragansett War broke out and continued until 1678. We have no account of George Felt's flight from his home, but are told that North Yarmouth was deserted during the war, and undoubtedly for this period he sojourned elsewhere. After peace was restored he returned, and continued upon his plantation until 1684, when, by a piece of glaring injustice, he was despoiled of the accumulations of a lifetime. In order to clearly show how this was brought about, the following account, adapted from an article written by William H. Sargent, Esq., of Portland, on the "Derivation of Titles in North Yarmouth,"[1] is presented in connection with facts obtained from other sources.

The title to all lands in Maine originated in a grant made by King James I, in April, 1606, to the Council of Plymouth. The Council on the 10th of August, 1622, granted to Sir Ferdinando Gorges and Captain John Mason "all the lands situated between the rivers Merrimack and Sagadahock, extending back to the great lakes and the River of Canada." Gorges and Mason obtained a new patent from the King, but in 1634 divided their property, Gorges taking all east of the Piscataqua, and Mason the western part. Gorges' patent for his portion, procured from the King, bears date April 3, 1639. He obtained also power to govern his province, and appointed Richard Vines his steward general, who, as Gorges' agent, sold to George Felt the land which he had already purchased of John Phillips, the Welshman. At this early day no provision had been made for the recording of deeds, and many of the older evidences of title were overlooked when the practice of recording land had become established.

[1] Published in Old Times in North Yarmouth, page 424.

In 1630 the Council of Plymouth infringed upon its grant to Gorges by giving to John Dy and others the Province of Lygonia, a tract lying between Capes Porpoise and Elizabeth, and extending forty miles inland. This did not include Broad Cove, where George Felt had his possessions, that being situated farther east. The following year a company came over in the ship "Plough" to settle under this last named patent, but being dissatisfied with the country, dispersed. About 1643, Col. Alexander Rigby obtained a nominal interest from the survivors, in the Province of Lygonia, evidently with the hope of being able to oust Gorges and thus gain a tangible interest in the property, and commissioned his friend, George Cleeves, as deputy-governor, and soon after set up a claim to all the lands as far east as the Sagadahock, thus bringing Broad Cove in North Yarmouth within their claim. "This gave rise to interminable disputes and strife between the Rigby and Gorges factions, that continued, every now and then breaking out afresh, and were never finally composed till both claimants had either submitted to or sold out to Massachusetts."

When the Narragansett war occurred the settlement of North Yarmouth was deserted and the town destroyed by the Indians. After the return of peace in 1678, the survivors of the war returned, the title to the property was purchased by Massachusetts of Gorges' heir, Sir Thomas Danforth appointed Provincial President, and at a court held by him at York in 1680 North Yarmouth was incorporated as a plantation. June 23d of this year George Felt conveyed to Walter Gendall of Spurwink, "one hundred acres of upland lying and being on the eastward side of George Felt's ould house in Casco Bay, about eighty rodd from s^{d} house, vizt: beginning at a three forked bla(ck) oake tree neare the highway, being marked on both sides, and so down to y^{e} water side, and then to runne upon a square untill the whole hundred acres be fully compleated and accomplished, with priviledg and full propriety and benefitt of the sea down to low water marke: bredth of his s^{d} tract of land, with four acres of fresh meaddows lying about three miles from Felt's ould feild, and two acres of salt meddows at the head of Great Cove wh^{r} Walter Gendall pleaseth to lay it out, with all the meddows belonging to the hundred acres of upland, with all the mines, minneralls, woods, underwoods, proffits, priviledges or lybertys, easements, and all other appurtenances to the premises belonging or any way apartaining."[1] Gendall subsequently purchased other tracts of land, established a profitable saw-mill, and became a leading citizen and man of means. He was one of the trustees appointed to "lay out" the town, and in doing this, as the 2,000 acres belonging to George Felt happened to be wanted in the new division to the settlers, it was apparently taken without leave or license, presumably by claim to defect in the title, and was divided among the new comers. Mr. Sargent adds, "I cannot close this sketch without a passing notice of one of the most glaring bits of injustice ever perpetrated by the cupidity of men. This was the course pursued by the new comers, by which the venerable George Felt was despoiled of the labors of a lifetime, and deprived of the large tract twice purchased by him, the second time from Gorges, on whom all of the titles depended. Instead of his right to his 2,000 acres, a petty sop of a few small lots was finally, after long importunity, thrown to his heirs, instead of their rightful inheritance. This is made all the more noticeable because they did respect Walter Gendall's title to what he had purchased from this very same Felt. If one title was good, so much the better should have been considered the one that had never been alienated. But then the one man was poor and old; the other was rich and influential."

Mr. Sargent is evidently in error in intimating that the 2,000 acres taken from George Felt was the same that he purchased of John Phillips in 1640, for in a petition to Governor Andros in 1688, George Felt himself stated that about 18 years before he had bought a plantation or farm of John Phillips of Boston, at a place called Great Cove in Casco Bay, containing about 2,000 acres, for which he paid 60 pounds, that he had occupied it three years before the purchase; and after the Indian war, it was withheld from him by Casco people, and he being impoverished could not recover it. He was then suffering from want, being about 87 years old" Further evidence is found in a deed[2] given March 20, 1727, by Moses and George Felt, the son and grandson of George Felt of Broad Cove, to the committee of North Yarmouth, in which they recite that "whereas the said George Felt formerly bought of John Phillips of Casco Bay afores[d], a certain Tract or Parcell of land lying at Broad Cove, in Northyarmouth afores[d], containing three hundred acres, beginning at y^e^ falls called Felt's falls, and so down the Broad Cove or bay, to a Red Oak Tree near the water being the bounds of the lands which y^e^ committee of the town of Northyarmouth formerly granted to Walter Geñdall, and from s^d^ waterside and falls to run up into the wilderness, upon a square, until the said Three Hundred Acres be fully compleated, and also three acres of salt marsh at Broad Cove and four acres of fresh meadow at some distance from said Felt's house: which lands and premises the aforesaid George Felt again purchase of y^e^ agent of Sir Ferdinando Gorges about y^e^ year 1643: and the said Felt built a house thereon and lived in it, and possessed and improved y^e^ said land and premises above forty years without molestation, and until y^e^ year 1684, excepting one hundred acres thereof lying next to the land of y^e^ said Walter Gendall, and the afores^d^ three acres of salt marsh, and also the four acres of fresh meadow which the s George Felt in y^e^ year 1680, sold to the said Walter Gendall, who improved the same till driven off by the Indian Enemy in the year 1688. And the s^d^ George Felt, in the year 1684, gave and granted the remaining two hundred acres of the afores^d^ tract of land unto the said Moses and George Felt, to be equally divided between them, who continued in the peaceable possession of the said house and land until drove off by the Indians in the year 1688."

The above serves to show that Felt's original purchase was 300 acres, the title to which was confirmed by repurchase of Gorges and never afterwards disputed, while the 2,000 acres of which he was deprived was that purchased of Phillips in 1670 for the sum of sixty pounds. Undoubtedly Phillips' title rested upon an Indian deed, to which sort at the time of the resettlement of North Yarmouth no respect was paid, and which were subsequently decided by the Court to be invalid, valid titles resting only upon the Gorges patent.

After the disposition of a portion of his property to Walter Gendall George Felt returned to Malden, notwithstanding the statement made in the deed given by Moses and George Felt 3d, and previously here quoted, that he lived at Casco Bay "until y^e^ year 1684." This move was probably rendered necessary by the fact that he was aged and feeble and unable to longer struggle for existence upon his farm. His wife accompanied him and May 29, 1681, "upon hearing the petition of James Nichols, Sr. of Malden" (his son-in-law) the General Court ordered "that George Felt and his wife be accounted inhabitants of the town of Malden and accordingly the Selectmen of the town to take care of them."[1] This care was given after a fashion and the same year Goodman Cully was paid 10 shillings for "Hows room" for them. Thus the once possessor of over 2,000 acres became the first town charge of Malden. In 1684 George Felt conveyed all that was left of his 300 acres at Casco Bay to his son and grandson and was undoubtedly able to live upon the proceeds of the sale for a time, for it was not until October 1, 1686, that the town of Malden was called upon for further aid, when it was "Voted, that the Selectmen are to take care of ould felt till the County Courte." June 22, 1688, George Felt petitioned for aid and redress in the following pathetic form:—

The Humble Petition of George Felt Sen^r^ of Mauldon,

"To his Excellency Sr Edmund Andros, K^nt^, one of his Maj^tie^ most honor ourable privy bed chamber, Capt Generall and & Gov. in Chief in and over his Maj^tie^ Territory and Dominion of New England in America[2]

SHEWETH:

That it is my grief that I am compelled to trouble yo^r^ Excellency at this time But having about eighteen years since purchased of one Jn^o^ Phillips of Bost, Gent., late Deceased, a farme or Plaintaintion at a Place called the Great Cove (in Casco Bay) containing about two thousand acres of upland and marsh as by a firm Deed under s^d^ Phillips hand and seale, for which I then paid him sixty pounds money, and improved s^d^ Farme or plaintation severall years before I bought it so that the whole time of my occupying it was about one and twenty years, But some time after the late Indian Warr it was withheld from me by some of the inhabitants of s^d^ Town of Caskoe Bay and being by s^d^ warr much impoverished I could not recover it out of their hands. I also am now forced to suffer for want of convenient care taken of me in my present distresse being about Eighty seaven years old and very crasy and weak,

Therefore, yo^r^ Petition^r^ recommendeth his case to yo^r^ Excellencies prudent consideration humbly beseaching and earnestly begging that if it seem meet and Convenient yo^r^ Excellency would be pleased to favor yo^r^ petion^r^ that he may have confirmation of his s^d^ lands und^r^ such moderate quit rent, as well as an ord^r^ to y^e^ Townsmen of Maulden aboves^d^ for something at present to relieave y^e^ petitioner in this his extreem poverty. The which shall farther oblige yo^r^ petion^r^ as in duty bound daily to pray for y^r^ Excellency."

This redress was denied him, and we find further aid extended to him by the Selectmen of Malden, viz.:—"June 8, 1691, voted that there be raised 4 or 5 pounds for the present supply of george felt and his wife to be paid in provision or in money."

[1] General Court Record.

[2] Massachusetts Archives, Vol. 128, page 282.

The aged couple were now evidently growing feebler, and the town voted, March 14, 1692, with a prudent provision for rebate in case its charity should prove overgenerous "that the towne doe alow goodman nicols aleuen pound in or of money for this present yeare ensuing for the maintanance of his father and mother felt, if ether of them dy with in the year, after funiral charges, what is left to return to the selectmen or there order." The record ends here. The sturdy pioneer whose advent at North Yarmouth was reckoned as its "birth-day," and whose courageous manhood helped to establish it firmly upon the foundation of prosperity it enjoys to-day; wronged in his old age by those who should have aided him instead; driven out to seek a home of charity; assured that his "funiral expenses" were provided for, died in 1693, aged 92 years, and his wife "much advanced in years" followed him in 1694.

ONCE OWNED BY JABEZ FELT

"Cobblestone building, a two story grocery store at East Victor N. Y. The front trimmed with stone slabs. These stones became available for buildings at the completion of the first Erie Canal from Buffalo to Albany, N. Y. in 1824. Many of the masons who had worked on the Canal were unemployed. Wages were $1.00 per a ten hour day. This became a widely practiced industry 1828-1860. The house walls were 15 to 20 inches thick. The secret for the mortar has been lost.

This building was still standing in 1963. Elaine Brown took a snapshot of it and mailed it to Florence Spicer. She also took pictures of tombstones of Eunice Eddy, Caleb Eddy, Cordera Felt Eddy and other members of the Eddy family in cemeteries in Victor and near Farmington (Hathaway Corners). Florence still has these pictures.

In 1971 Florence visited in New York at Lockport, and stayed with Muriel and Kap Kenyon. They took her to see many places where the LeVan and Eddy families had lived, and a trip was made to Farmington, where they met with Elaine Brown, who took them to view the cemeteries, where the Felt and Eddy families were buried. A memorable experience.

BUELL FAMILY

IN

FIRST GENERATION.

1. WILLIAM BUELL, or BEWELLE, or BEVILLE, of Dorchester, Mass.; and Windsor, Conn., was born at Chesterton, in Huntingdonshire, England, about 1610, and emigrated to America about 1630. He settled first at Dorchester, Mass., and thence removed to Windsor, Conn., about 1635–6, where he died, 23d of November, 1681.

"William Buell, Sr., was in the first land division in Windsor. In his Will he gave all his tools to his two sons, Samuel and Peter, and gave his daughter, Mary Mills, £5 more than any of his other daughters.

"William Buell gave his son Peter the land given him by Windsor, and half of his tools, and the other half to Samuel.

"William Buell and his wife, in October, 1650, were indicted in Plymouth Colony as Baptists." Baylies II, 211.

"In October, 1650, John Hazel, Edward Smith and his wife, Obadiah Holmes, Joseph Terry and his wife, the wife of James Mann, William Buell and his wife, were indicted for continuing their meeting from house to house on the Lord's Day, contrary to the order of the Court; but it does not appear that any punishment was inflicted." See Baylies II, 211.

[Windsor Records, March 29, 1652.]

"Accounts made with William Buell, for work done in the Meeting Howse, etc.: "The Elder's Pew, Deakon's Pew, Magistrat's Pew, and their Wives' Pew, formerly paid, and for the fower rowes of seats in the Meeting House when the dours are up. We find that his work comes to £28. 19s. 00d. And for the new worke about altering the Magistrat's wife's Pew, and others in that rang, comes to £4. 3s. 8d.—the holle sume is £33. 2s. 8d.

"William Buell, Sr., of Windsor, died November 23d, 1681. His Will, dated July 26th, 1681. Inventory offered by his wife, Mary, dated July 26th, 1681, £147. 2s. 7d. Mary, his relict, made oath, March 6th, 1681–2, that she had made a true presentment of his estate. Widow Mary Buell died at Windsor, September 1st, 1684. William Buell's mother probably came with him to Windsor, as the Windsor Record says: 'Goode Buell died at Windsor, December 3d, 1639.'"

William Buell was one of those Religious enthusiasts known in Old and New England as Puritans, of whom Russell wrote that they were "the most remarkable body of men the world has ever produced." They came out from Society and the Churches, became dissenters, non-conformists and recusants, inasmuch as they refused to subscribe longer to the tenets either of the Church of England or of the Pope of Rome.

Under their leaders—mainly ministers who had been clergymen of the Church of England—they formed themselves into societies, and, on account of the persecution to which their conduct had given rise, they were secret in their meetings and reticent in their Religious speech.

The hand of God was plainly visible in this Religious Movement, for it appears the time had arrived when He should people America with men of powerful mental qualifications, strong minds and bodies, and still stronger Religious fervor and faith; and their Religion was indeed remarkable, inasmuch as they threw off at a stroke all the trammels of forms and ceremonies, which they considered anti-Christian, and went back to the Gospel and example of Christ as their guide in Religious belief.

This new Religion—as it was miscalled, being the oldest and only Religion on Earth—soon brought down persecutions, extreme and cruel, so that to save their lives the Puritans were obliged to flee from their own to some other Country, where they could serve God in their own way, and have Religious Liberty in reality.

For the above reason many of the early Emigrants studiously concealed their Origin and derivation. The vessels sailed from England in those times, bound for Barbadoes—without any intention on the part of any person on board of ever going to Barbadoes, or anywhere else but the peaceful shores of New England.

The Puritans, as a body, went further back than Christ in the World's History for guidance in their worldly and Religious affairs. They adopted the Hebrew ethics and faith, inasmuch as they were men whose minds had derived a peculiar character from the daily contemplation of superior beings and eternal interests.

Not content with acknowledging in general an overruling Providence, they habitually ascribed every event to the will of the Supreme Being, for whose power nothing was too vast—for whose inspection nothing too minute. To know Him—to serve Him—to enjoy Him, was with them the great end of existence.

"They rejected with contempt the ceremonious homage which other sects substituted for the homage of the soul. On the rich and the eloquent—on nobles and priests, they looked down with disdain, for they esteemed themselves rich in a more precious treasure, and eloquent in a more sublime language. Nobles by the right of an earlier creation, and Priests by the imposition of a Mightier Hand."

These are the men to whom America owes the preservation of Civil and Religious Liberty.

From the above remarks some idea may be formed of the personal character of William Buell.

Like the famous Banyan tree of India, his branches have stretched out over the broad territory of the United States, and wherever they have reached and rested they have also taken root and become new Banyans or Buells.

The following document is a copy from the 1st Volume of Land Records of Windsor, Conn., December 13th, 1667:

"William Buell had made some exchanges of his meadow land in the Great Meadow with George Phillips; he had let George Phillips have all the breadth of the Westerly end of his Meadow, and in depth fifty-three rod of land, or, more definitely to express it, to the right understanding of it, William Buell has partly by exchange of one hundred and three rod of his Meadow, in the lower end

THE EDDY HOMESTEAD

Eddyville, Middleboro, Massachusetts. "America's most historic Eddy home." Land purchased 1661 by Samuel Eddy. Pilgrim October 1630. Building erected 1803 by Capt. Joshua Eddy of the Revolution.

We do not know how Caleb Eddy, born 1781 is connected with this family. Florence Spicer has done extensive research, and she hopes that she can find the answers some day. The Eddy Family Association has published a large volume on the family in 1930 and a supplemental volume in 1968, as well as a book on the Family Association. These have been studied with the hope that Caleb's parents can be found. The search will continue. Mrs. C. L. Brown (Elaine) of Moravia, New York has been very helpful in the search on this family. Our correspondence started in 1963, and there have been many letters written to libraries, county clerks, and various people in the states of Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York and other states in this search.

The next two pages are a copy of the letter written to Lorette Eddy by her cousin, F. R. Aldrich, dated December 1st, 1864.

Note the use of writing in two directions on the last page.

Fowlerville, Mich
December 7th 1864

Dear Cousin

Your kind letter came to hand in due time, and glad was I to hear from you. I had been looking for it for some time, but did not despond of not hearing from you some time or other, I knew that something was ~~delaying~~ hindering you so I concluded to wait patiently. I was glad to hear that you prospered so finely with your school. Our folks also were happily surprised to hear that you were a teacher and had such good success. I suppose if you teach this winter you have commenced ere this. I have dropped pedagogism for a while at least, though I would try my hand or brain at something else. A teacher has to try sometimes both hand and brain. How did you got. It is not very well but Add is as tough as a bear as she always is. Now for the news. Well [illegible] Fowler has at last got married. Who do you think is the happy Groom. Just Benjamin from down north. They were married a week ago to day. Burt is going to enlist in the Home Guards. He gets 2nd Lieutenant and I think Burge Fowler is Captain. We have a new Landlord, Mr Corbet from Pinkney. He has brought the Band. Charley Fowler waits on one of his daughters so you have lost Charley. I tell you he has spruced up much since you left. There was room for more spruceing don't you think so? And there is more yet. Charley and Dick are going into the Cavalry this winter, expect to avoid the draft if there should be any. I am enjoying myself more than myself. We have supper parties every week and the way we carry on is not slow. There is to be a dance to Mr Tanner's tomorrow night. Our Sociables are down. And our Good Templars Society is about gone up. And in fact Fowlerville is about defunct. If we get a railroad from [illegible] to Howell it will doubtless eventually go through this place and then there will be some prospect of our City's growing. Bill McEwen teaches the Village school. That [illegible] here. Let it go [illegible] Palmer is learning Millinery. Mag [illegible] fancy Millinery shop. Ha! Ha! [illegible] the fancy, I hear you say, and it's so [illegible]

Spencer and Fanny [illegible] have moved to the upper lakes. [illegible] Spencer intends to buy a farm this fall. [illegible] Charley Fowler borrowed his buggy [illegible] to look up a place [illegible] from north and who had been in attending school has lately come home married. He married [illegible] the day she was [illegible] to keep Millinery shop [illegible] I don't know what her name was [illegible] this is all the news [illegible]

From your Sister Cousin [illegible] Aldrich

[illegible] best respects [illegible]

find that Lorette? Did you have to whip much? I never really whipped a student yet but I have punished them one way and another but to take a good one I never did. I had a hard school to manage last winter, but thank my stars, I need not whip if they did not keep straight I could just tell them to leave and they had to skedaddle. I expected to have been in business in Detroit long before this. But have been disappointed so far. But I now expect another position. Had a letter from Detroit not long since and I think that I shall get a place there yet. I am waiting patiently for something to turn up to my luck. I received a letter from Emmer and one from Abbie Cooper not long since. Aunt Emmes folks are well. Abbie intends to go to school this winter. Mother has been visiting to Jim's and had my shirt pan but she is through now and I have my own pen. I never could write with a gold pen good for anything. Aunt Ethas just finished ironing and is seated by the south window looking down towards the City (?). Ha! Big City, Uncle Caly has gone out hunting. But perhaps you did not know that Uncle has returned. Well he has. He arrived home 3 weeks ago. Left Jim in Central City doing well. We heard from him the other day. He is making clear from $5 to $7 per day. pays $9 per week for board, and sometimes makes enough in one day to pay for a weeks board. He hopes to be home next fall, and if he continues well and has good luck as he is now having he will make it pay well. Miss Randal is here, but is now going to go to the Village to take the stage for Brighton. I have been out this morning to look at my traps. Uncle and I set 4, and last night a fox got in one, but the scamps got out again. So all I saw of Mr. Fox was a little of his tail in the trap. Jo and Addison have

In the Beginning

Information from Eaton's "Thomaston, Rockland, and South Thomaston, Maine", from their first exploration, A.D. 1605; with family genealogies, Volume I by Cyrus Eaton, Member of the Mass. Historical Society, also of the Wisconsin Historical Society, Published in 1865 by Hallowel, Master, Smith and Company.

"1784-----

"new settlers continued to arrive; among them was Lt. Joseph Perry, who was soon followed by his brothers Job and William. He came this year from Marshfield and settled at Perry's Hill in what is now South Thomaston. He had served in the army of the Revolution; was twice married, and became the father of 20 children, many of whom still remained; was 69 years a member of the Baptist Church, and, with his brothers was among the most estimable early citizens of the place. William was for 46 years an irreproachable member of the Baptist Church in Rockland, where he died at a good old age."

The chronology of the family tree on these pages comes from Volume 2 of the above work, plus information obtained from living members of the Perry family at this date, June 16, 1948.

Much of the information was furnished by Minnie Perry Pearson and her son Dwight.

The following is copied from a Deed recorded in Madison County, New York at the County Seat of Wampsville.

"This Indenture, Made the Twenty Seventh day of January in the year One Thousand Eight Hundred and Sixteen between Ernest Augustus, Duke of Cumberland; Charles Herbert Pierrepoint, Esquire commonly called Viscount Neward, in the part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, called England; Masterton Ure, Esquire, of Edinburgh, in that part of the said United Kingdom, called Scotland, and Charlotte Johnstone, of London, in the part of the said United Kingdom called England-- of the FIRST PART, and STEWART JOHNSON of Lebanon, in the County of Madison and State of New York of the SECOND PART. Whereas Sir John Lowther Johnstone, late of Wester-Hall, in the County of Dumonet, was in his life time, seized in fee of divers parcels of Real Estate, in the State of New York, whereof the Premises hereby granted are parcel; and being so seized, did make and publish, in due form of law, his last will, leaving date the Seventh day of August, in the year One Thousand Eight Hundred and Eleven, whereby he devised all the Real Estate- whereof he was so seized in the said State, unto the said Ernest Augustus, Duke of Cumberland; Charles Herbert, Viscount Newark; and Masterton Ure, and their Heirs and Assigns. And whereas the said Sir John Lowther Johnson, having so made and published his said last will, afterwards departed this life, without revoking his said will, being still seized of said Real estate and leaving the said Charlotte Johnstone, his widow and relect.-- And whereas the said parties of the FIRST PART have, by letter of Attorney, bearing date the Nineteenth day of April, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Thirteen, duly appointed and constituted Rovert Troup, of the City of New York, in the said State, Esquire, their Attorney, with full power and authority to execute, in their names and on their behalves, good and sufficient Deeds of Conveyance to the purchasers of any part or parts of the said Real Estate; and also, with full power and authority to the said Robert Troup, to substitute and appoint under him, an Agent, for the purposes of executing the said Deeds; as by the said Letter of Attorney, or the Record thereof in the Secretary's office of the said state, in Lib: Deeds MRR, page 396, etc. reference being thereunto had will fully appear.--And Whereas the Said Robert Troup has by Letter of Substitution and Attorney, bearing date the Twenty Second day of October, in the year last aforesaid, duly substitute and appoint JOSEPH FELLOWS, of Geneva, in the County of Ontario, in the said State, Esquire, under him the said Robert Troup, to be the Attorney of the said parties of the FIRST PART for the purpose of executing the Deeds before mentioned; as by the said Letter of Substitution and Attorney, or the Record thereof in the said Secretary's office in Lib: Deeds MRR, page 420, etc. reference being thereunto had, will also fully appear. Now therefore, This Indenture Witnesseth, that the said parties of the First Part, for and in consideration of the sum of Three Hundred and Twelve Dollars and Fifty Cents of lawful money of the said State, to them in hand paid by the said party of the Second Part, the Receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, have, and each of them hath granted, bargained, sold, aligned, conveyed and confirmed, and by these Presents do, and each of them doth grant, bargain, sell, alien, convey and confirm by their said Attorney, JOSEPH FELLOWS, unto the said party of the Second Part, and to his heirs and assigns."

(The description, which contained fifty-nine acres and an half acre be the same, more or less.)

"In witness whereof, the said parties of the First Part by their said Attorney, JOSEPH FELLOWS, have hereunto set their hands and seals, on the day, and in the year first above written ernest by JOSEPH FELLOWS his Attorney(L.S.) Nemark by JOSEPH FELLOWS his Attorney (L.S.) Masterton Ure by JOSEPH FELLOWS his Attorney (L.S.) Charlotte Johnstone by JOSEPH FELLOWS his Attorney (L.S.) sealed and delivered in the Presence of Jacob Dox, State of New York. Recorded the 21st day of October 1820, at 1 of clock P.M."

The above piece of property was sold and the Deed recorded in Liber Q of Deeds from Stewart Johnson and his wife, Abigail to Constant Merrick. It was recorded on October 21, 1820.

DEED TO SELL PROPERTY

"This Indenture made the Seventh day of October in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty between Stewart Johnson and Abigail, his wife of the town of Lebanon, County of Madison and State of New York of the party of the First Part and Constant Merrick of the Town and County afore said of the Second Part witnesseth that the said partys of the First for and in consideration of the sum of Six Hundred and Fifty Dollars to him in hand, paid by the said party of the afore Second Part the Receipt whereof is hereby confessed and acknowledged hath granted, bargained, sold, remissed, released, aliened and confirmed and by these Presents doth grant, bargain, sell, remiss release, align and confirm unto the said party of the Second Part and to his heirs and assigns forever -- All that certain piece or parcel of land, the Northwest Subdivision of Lot #63 in the Town of Libanon -- (Land description being same as in deed of Purchase.) -- Stewart Johnson (L.S.), and Abigail Johnson (L.S.) signed, sealed and delivered in the presence of Jacob Hartshorn, Philander E. Hartson, State of New York, Madison County on the Seventh day of October, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty, before me, Jacob Hartshorn, one of the Commissioners of the County of Madison, personally came Stewart Johnson and Abigail, his wife, to me, known to be the same persons described in this deed, who severally acknowledged that they executed the within Deed for the use and purposes in the same mentioned and the said Abigail, on a separate examination apart from her husband, acknowledged that she executed the same volentarily without fear, threats or confiscation of her said husband, and examining the within Deed, no material erasures or interlineations excepting the words: (and Abigail, his wife) interlined between the second and third line from the top, noted before signed, I allow the same to be recorded, Jacob Hartshorn, complete and recorded 21st day of October 1820 at 1 of clock P.M. (Signed by: Jacob Hartshorn)"

The following copy of a letter written by Mrs. C. A. LeVan on Nov. 3, 1940 at Eugene at their home at 924 W. Fifth Ave.

St Clair Co., Missouri,
County Court Clark,

Dear Sir:- We are trying to get Birth Certificates - My husband, Clinton Ambrose LeVan born July 26th 1869 - Appleton City, St. Clair Co., Missouri - would there be any record of it - how do we go at it to get one. Son of Ambrose & Lorette Eddy LeVan.

His folks lived there about two yrs. then moved back to Pekin N. Y. - we were there two years ago but did not think of Birth Certificate then - just wanted to see the country & town where he was born, was named Clinton after the new town that had just sprung up. His father Freighted by Ox Teams from there to Sedalia or some where in that locality - Was at Blacks mith Shop at A city when the man was killed & helped to carry him out -- when there we happened to inquire of a Mr. Holland (in 1928) he was running for office then & he turned around & said yes that is where the B. Shop was just across the street & the man that killed him just died last week. That was all we could learn, but when we got to N. Y. a cousin, his father was there also another Bro-in-law - he had the old deed to his fathers 40 A. so I wrote Mr. Holland & he went to Court House & looked it up it was about 10 miles from there over near where the Jesse James gang stayed. Father LeVan has often told about seeing them on his trips & how polite they always were. It was near the Monegaw Creek.

Thanking for your trouble.

Sincerely,

Mrs. C. A. LeVan

The answer came from Osceola, Mo. Nov. 9, 1940 advising her that he would have to write to the Bureau of Vital Statistics at Jefferson City, Missouri.

"Pioneer History of Clarksfield" by Dr. Weeks from page 127, Mary J. Bristol and Esok Bristol lived with Elihu B. Johnson.

Abigail Coy Johnson must have been living with E. B. Johnson, her son in April 1852, when he sold property to go to Mich. She died Nov. 11, 1852. Haven't located her grave.

He owned property in Michigan from June 1852 to July 1865 as follows:

Deed recorded in Liber 20 Deeds on pages 437 & 438 on June 25, 1852. This was from Gustavus & wife Sarepta Heywood of Fawn River Tp. to Elihu B. Johnson , 160 Acres in SW¼ of Section 2, Fawn River Tp., St. Joseph, Co., Michigan.

Deed recorded on July 13, 1865 in Liber 40 of Deeds on page 567 from Elihu B. and Sarah S. Johnson to Henry W. Pearsall. Property located in N½ of the SW¼ of Section 2, Fawn River Tp. This Deed also described property in Branch County described as the E½ of S½ of SW¼ of SW¼ Section 21, Tp. 7, South Range 8 West.

(9) Betsa Fellows, m. (1) Haskins and (2) Lang. She was the child of Leonard Fellows and Arminda Johnson. ("Pioneer History of Clarksfield, Ohio" by D.F.E. Weeks, 1908). There is some confusion about the name of #1 child of Arminda and Leonard Fellows in the mind of this compiler as the record received from Mrs. Orla Jenkins, Rte. 3, Rochester, Minn. on Feb. 11, 1969 names Betsa as the first child and married to Major Potter, and the Weeks book gives Land and Haskins as her husbands, also the name is Betsa Marie in one place. I am assuming that there were two different children here.

"THE FELLOWS FAMILY"

Compiled by Orlando Ray Fellows in 1956 with the help of Oell Ruth Fellows Newton. It was microfilmed from the records in the NSDAR Library. The Evergreen Chapter of Ainsworth, Nebraska had this record put in the NSDAR Library. It was in Section VI of new microfilm #0913003.

"Leonard Fellows was a schoolteacher and a carpenter. Arminda Johnson came to America in 1815 with parents and brothers and sisters at about age 8. She was the 5th child and the 4th daughter of Stewart and Abigail Coy Johnson. Stewart was born in Sweden and died Aug. 21, 1850 age 79 years, 10 mo. and 10 days. Married Abigail Coy, June 26, 1800. Abigail was born April 3, 1770 in Sweden and died Nov. 11, 1852, aged 82 years, 7 mo. and 2 days. They celebrated their 50th anniversary on June 26, 1850."

The above has many errors in it. Abigail's son Elihu Bosworth Johnson stated in the Census of 1850 that his mother was born in Conn. and his father was born in Rhode Island. All of their children were born in New York State. They were living in Lebanon and owned property there, which they sold not long before Stewart died. He had died before the 1830 Census were enumerated and his daughter Arminda gave the information to the enumerator, from all appearances in reading this. Stewart and Abigail didn't celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary, as he died Aug. 21, 1830. This is from the Johnson Bible in the possession of Warren Johnson in Eugene, Oregon. (See pages 236-240 in this book) A copy of the Certificate of Death gives the information that Stewart Johnson, the father of Arminda Fellows, was born in Rhode Island, and her mother was born in Conn. (See pege 276) She was born in New York, and her death certificate was issued in Rochester, seat of Olmsted Co., Minn.

An interesting item in the Fellows Family book was the one about Estel Paxton, husband of Abigail Arminda #66, who weighed over 600 # and went with the circus. He also operated a livery stable and at one time was a cream buyer, and considered the largest cream buyer in the state.

Teresa Norton Fellows, the widow of Oliver Leonard Fellows and her daughter Flossie #50, made a home for the Norton parents. Later Teresa and Flossie went to Walterville, Oregon about 1900, where Orlando Fellows lived. Flossie taught school, while Teresa made a home for them. In June 1901, they went to Belknap Springs, Oregon so that Teresa could take treatments in the hot springs. They were there four weeks.

In about 1919, Clara LeVan learned that her cousin Deltie Fellows Rickets was living in Salem,where Clara and Clinton LeVan and their daughters Sarah and Florence visited them. Some of the Fellows relatives would stop off in Eugene to visit the LeVans while on their way to Coos Bay, either to visit other Fellows relatives or they lived there. This continued for about ten years.

LETTER FROM Irwin Johnson, Simpson, Minnesota to his sister, Mrs. C. A. LeVan, 924 Fifth Avenue West, Eugene, Oregon on April 28, 1937:

"Dear Sister: I reseaved your letter a weak a go Tuesday was glad you reseaved the chest & liked it. I don't see how it got split did you reseave the kee & the two bolts you did not say. As to Mother's old letters, I did not see or hear any thing about them. I went through her trunk the other day & all I found was her best bonnet, her tating shuttle that I youst to play with when I was a kid & Grandfather's old raisor that I had had for years and did not know what had became of it. I had it hollow ground & used it to shave with for years, then I hurt my rite elbow & could not shave myself sins, so did not youse it so I supose she toock it to pair her corn with as she youssed to youse it for that before they went south & always sed she for got to take it with them, then I had it hollow ground.

"Her Mother's Brother, Wm. Barber, (Aunt Ann Elisa Barber) lived near Norwalk, Ohio & her Uncle John Whitmorsh He was a brick layer, he marred her Mother's sister (Aunt Matilda), & lived in Norwalk & Thersa Whitmorsh married a man that ran a dining car in Kansas & another sister was married to a man that ran a resturant on south Clark Streat of Chicago in the tough district. I was to his place 41 years ago, but have forgoten their names. I looked them up for her when we were at the world fair in 1893. They lived up town on Garfield Boulavard & the sister from Kansas was visiting there & I took Mother up to the house for a few days & went & got her. The one in Kansas (Alfred Foreman) came to visit her in St. Joseph & wasn't very highly impresed with them. They wes to utterly to to, simillarly to the way I have herd Sarah's man discribed to me. Then there was Elawese Barber, Wille Barber, Frank Barber her cousins that ran a restaurant rite near the fair grounds. Well she went to see them & they acted to me like they thought we had come to camp on them & kind of gave us the frosty smile till they found out we had room & board paid for, that is breckfast & rooms whether we youssed it or not, then they kinda softened up. They ran a good restaurant & it was handy so we youst to go in get our meals & pay for them & never say Kiss our A--, go to hell or any thing els & Ella &*Kitty apolijised to Mother & sent word for us to come down & make a visit but I was to busy, she went. *(Kitty Root, Merton Roots Mother. She kept house for Gertie Willey's Father & raised Gertie--her Mother's name was Hattie Haskell. She was Kitty's sister).

"Then she had a half-brother. She never saw him. His name was Rowe, he youst to rite to her when we lived in St. Jo, but he was a Bar-tender & rote his letters on paper advertising red taf. Rye Whiskey & she rote him a temperance letter & he never rote again. He was in Cincinate, Ohio I think he was working on a patent smoke consumer or burner to reduce the smok nusence in big cities & thought he had the world by the tail & a down hill pull on it. I have a boock called psalms that her father had when he died & her Stepmother sent to her when we lived down St. Jo. The covers were off when I found it & you can have it if you want it. I found that & a 32 calaber revolver in the old buro that Etta gave Francis. The pop was loaded & you can have that too, if you want it. I was surprised when I found it as that was the first I ever new Father or Mother had any thing like that & I had never owned such a thing my self & I don't think this one will shoot. Her Cousin Kity, I don't remember her Sir name, but her mother was a sister of her mother. Her mother had 2 sisters & 2 brothers. An Edward Barber, he was a fur buyer at Oceonto, Wis. in an early day before she came west & she calculated to go & be his boock keeper at Oceonto when she came here to help Sara Ann Johnson get moved as every one of Grandfather's relations thought she ought to because they toock her when she was 6 years old & gave her a home while her father was in California & her mother couldn't take care of booth children. Well she came here & got bit by the love bug & never went to her uncle's & he was sore & she never herd from him. After he was an old buck & died about the time you was born & I don't know where his money went, but he was rich. Then she had a cousin Henry Haskell. He wanted to marry her & she didn't think so, so he went to Tahalase, Florida & started an ornge grove & died there. He youst to rite to her & sent his picture when I was a kid. They were all English & her father was Scottish. Rowe is a Scottish name.

"Well, I had a birthday I didn't have to work. The only one I remember that I didn't have to work & it was celebrated with snow fluries all day. It was nice Thursday & Friday & we sowed our oats & part of our barley. That is the first we could get on the land. Friday nite it rained all nite. Saturday it rained all day & nite. Sunday it snowed all day but melted as fast as it fell & it has rained every few hours ever sins. Sunday there was a blizard went south of us in Iowa, cut across the south west part of Minn. & hit the Dakotas. It came from the south east & went north west; a freak & snowed from 6 to 11 inches. Half of the people hasn't sowed a kernel yet & can finish if I get another day; but the most of the ground is very wet & the roads are fierce. Dirt roads are imposible & the gravel ones have lots of places that are only mud trapes & teams & tractors are busy pulling out cars & trucks. Grass is growing espesilly quick, feed is very scarce & half the stock runs the fields, tramping what little there is in the ground & grubing, trying to live. It is hell. Love from Irwin"

(161) Florence Lucile LeVan and Ivan Rea Spicer. Ivan was born Nov. 7, 1899 at Harvard, Neb. He was the son of Milton James Spicer and Sarah Alice Campbell Spicer. He started working at the age of eight, shining shoes in front of his father's Barber Shop. While in high school he and his brother Bill ran the local motion picture projector. In high school his teachers saw his potential and urged him to remain when Ivan needed to leave school at the age of 14. He had to help his family and so began working as a mechanic in a blacksmith shop, which was later converted into a garage. Here he learned the mechanics of a Model T Ford. He tried to enlist in the Army and went to Kansas City, Missouri, where his brother had enlisted and learned automotive mechanics. The recruiting office closed the day he arrived there, so he was spared from World War I.

Ivan and his brother were engaged in the garage business in Harvard, Neb. after the war, and made enough money to move to Oregon. They left there on Nov. 11, 1920 and drove through Texas, New Mexico and California, as the weather and roads were better that route, even so the roads were very poor and full of ruts that were frozen, so that they had to pick the best rut to travel in. This was in Texas.

In 1923 Ivan and a partner went into the taxi cab business in Eugene. He later sold out to his partner and started the Yellow Cab Company. His health caused him to sell, and he went to California and stayed with a cousin at Norwalk, who nursed him back to health, this was the fall of 1926 and spring of 1927. He worked for Earl C. Simmons in the Ford Garage in Eugene, and in 1930 he went to Portland to be Shop Foreman for a new Ford Garage that Earl Simmons started. He remained in that position until Nov. of 1931, when the business went broke, because of the depression.
While working in the garage in Portland, he met Frank (Duke) Hollingsworth, who had worked for bus lines for years. He and Ivan formed a corporation and went into the Bus business. They named it Dollar Stages. They started this in 1932and sold out to the Greyhound in 1935.
Ivan tried several ventures before he bought two trucks and he and his brother Bill hauled logs. Through this he studied the lumber business, and decided to buy some timber and built a sawmill. He purchased a tract of timber from John Kelley above Mable on the border of Lane and Linn counties. He built the sawmill on west Sixth street in Eugene, starting it before the street was paved. He and Florence were partners in this venture and the mill started operating in 1937. It was called Spicer Lumber Company. They later bought a large stand of timber on the Siulsaw from the Shaw-Walker holdings. In 1951 they sold the mill and balance of timer to Jack O'Neil.
In 1950 Florence and Ivan b ught some registered Aberdeen-Angus cattle and purchased a farm on Gimple Hill southwest of Eugene. They worked at this until 1956, when they sold the cattle and later the farm.
Ivan was a tenor drummer with the Eugene Highlanders Bag-pipe Band. He was also a member of the Moose Lodge, the Navy League, and the Sons of the American Revolution.
He died on April 19, 1971 in Eugene and is buried in the Rest Haven Memorial Park in the same lot where Donald and Clinton and Clara LeVan are buried.

Dear Daughter & Family we are reasenable well at preasant your mother has had a gathering in her ears but is beter now she has ben stewing because she did not get a letter from you but Irwin just ownd up to her that he carried your last letter she wrote you about two weaks before he thought to mail it he says Clara will think Pa carried it so that will be all rite. Your mother dont like to trust me with her letters for fear I will forget to mail them, but she is losing confidence in him now. We have had lots of rain this spring the high water did not bother us here but it has hurt our trade as it throws the Kansas City trade here and the trade we have ben geting goes to Chicago. Irwin went to St. Louis last weak with a trane of cattle for Nels Moriss he says it looks hard thare whare the flood run over them. Wish you and the girls had ben here to picked some of your mothers roses. She had bushels of them and as pretyas you ever saw. We had hard rain and hail storm yesterday the hail ware small and not do much harm and we neaded the rain as the ground was geting dry on top the wind blew hard and looked bad when the storm same up. Thare is a woman acrost the street about your size the man is small they started for the next house to get in the sellar. Thare was a high fence betwene the houses the man cleared it at a jump and left the woman. She cleared it at one stradel it was worth the money to see them thare. Thare will not be much fruit this year we had a hard frost when they ware in bloom and killed them bad I have treas in my yard that are ten or twelve feet high would have had lots of peaches this year if it had not ben for the frost crops are looking farley well here now and with good weather from this on think we will be all rite. Hoping this will find you all well and with love to all I will close from your father.

W. Johnson

July 30, 1905

Dear Daughter. We are real well and hope you all are up there. I think our hot weather is over and it is cooling down. They think the corn crop is going to be good. It is 15 dollars from St. Joseph to St. Paul from now till 30 of October if I was able I would come up to see you all.

I see by the paper Charley Kinney is married I wonder if it will be Donald next for it does not seem Charley is only a little Boy to think of him.

I have 6 more little chickens now I have 12 Pa went up to Athelstan and went to the Townsand Place to some of those frog Ponds in the Woods and Shot 35 frogs there was a boy went with him and done the running for him. and dressed the frogs he had a half a gallan in a gallan Pail and Ice on them. They were good and he Bought 11 chickens that wayed two pounds each 10 cts P. unt. he brought them home in a little box in his hand they were nearley the size of a quail it seemed to do him good. We had Fried Chicken last Sunday and today. We csn use fome more butter soon if you can spare it. Pleas Write love to you and all. I wrote Ruth a letter the 5 of this Month . From your Mother. Mrs. Warren Johnson

Dear Daughter

This is a beautiful day a little cool and windy froze Ice in chickens dish like good thick window glass last night. Pa isnot so well he had a Bad dizey spell coming home last night he thought he was well when he left the office when he got a little Past the Street car tracks where we cut a crost those vacant lots that the old Willows was on he went to step up on the walk on that side and he turned disey and had to Stop and lean aginst a tellaphone pole then he started and got a little over half a Block on Pryor and he thought he must fall so he tried to let himself down But we think he fell his right arm was cold to his elbow and ther was No Puls in his Wrist it was in his elbow Mr. Madison young Mr. Dart and George Addcock Brought him in a cab and it took all three of them to get him in the house and into Bed it took them all and me to help and then they Rubed his arm and then we sent for Dr. Weary he was his choice Dr. and I but his undershirt sleave then we rubed with hands and then Mr. Big Brush then Roy Shay came and when he found out how he was he asked for the Alchol he warmed some in his hand and then pored it on and rubed did that for while then wraped it in Hot Flannels. We had done that before roy came then his arm was red like a blister but it pained him all night and some this afternoon he got up at 5 oclock this morning when he fell it was 5 at night. He took medasen evry hour all night till 4 oclock at 5 he took 3 of Morses Indan Root Pills they opprated real good. He is up reading now he went to closset 4 or 5 times today. Roy and Wife stayed all night and up till most eleven. I went to bed at 9 but did not get to sleep till after 3 this morning. I was up nere 20 times with him. He thinks he will be all right now Dart was here 5 times before bedtime Young 3 and Addcock 3 and Mr. Macklelan that lives whare Irwin did. It was a rush of blood to the brain I think he thinks he eat to much dinner he was sick to his stomach the Dr. gave him something to make him vomit that helps to start circlation he did that the first thing. Two little boys 8 or 9 came to the house for me they aaid they thought he wanted me I went rite down the I told myrl that he was sick down the walk would she tellephone for Ray. She did till she got him. He had just got his work done and came right home. I have been bothered some with disiness the last 5 or 6 weeks but those pills have helped me. I stewed the Pumpkin caned one gallon had two white boled full more that made one pumpkin pie for today. I gave Mrs. Dart one bole of Pumkin She filled my bole with nice mince saus then I made a mince pie and Pa had no super no breakfast and cbicken broth and bread for dinner I had Rasen cake. He had been taking some for his dinner. The sun still is shining. Maggie Hays now Blake came to see me the 16. Her husband her 4 children her neice 18 years old. She is taking her home to help her as long as she can keep her as two years She had taken care of his old mother 82 old. She took care of her $2\frac{1}{2}$ year They buried her in February. She has a girl 8 a boy 6 a boy 4 a girl Baby 13 months name Ruth for Ruth LeVan. She wanted to know all about her. When I told her you had three more girls she said she is trying to keep up with me. They ware all real nice all played to still that we could talk right along till babys ears began to ache agin. I told then Clint was looking a new home last summer. They both said to tell you and Irwin to come to Waterllou, Oklahoma there is the most helthful climet that Mr. Blake ever found and he has been quite a traveler he has 160 there a good 8 roomed house on it all kinds of fruit set out. They have been there 9 years he owns a 160 in Arkansas the house on it is much the same Mr. Blake said come and they would treat you all right they all went up on top of the By Standpipe after breakfast and left Bobby and me I was eating my breakfast they said far me not to wash a dish so I picked up the dishes and Put them on the Gass Stove had a little fire water cold when I would hit the dishes together and make a noise baby would Say allright. She did not cry But Played and walkedholding on to every thing she came to. She drumed on the gassolean stove then on the wall then she went to the little old green chair and laid her head aginst the post and freted a little then I took her. She went to seleep then they came back. Her mother took her. Her Papa wanted to sweep. The neice went to washing the dishes he wiped them he must be nere Irwins age he is tall with Black hair and Blue eyes very dark. Maggie would not leave any of the work undone evry bed had to be made every washboles slop buckets washed and wiped. Mr. Dart is here Pa is talking to him y ou would not know he had bin sick. Hoping this will find you all well from your ever loving Mother.

Mrs. Warren Johnson

Mr. Blake said he had to cut the Ice 3 three times in Nine years they had lots of Pairs and Blackberries and Peaches no end to the crop this year there cherries frose this year. Pa is going to work.

South St. Joseph, Mo. 8-8-1909

Dear Daughter & family I thought I would drop you few lines to let you know howe we got along. We are so as to get around. I am some beter than I have ben but ame not well yet my feat bother me yet but the swelling has gone out of them. I have had a terible time with them they ware swelde so I could not get my shoos on for a while and I was swelde clear up on my bowels so if I made a dent in them it would stay for half an hour but the sweling has all left them now. I only weight 261 now quite a drop from 330 but I feal first rate only my feat numb and tender but I think I will get all rite it has ben fearfly hot hear this sumer but we have had plenty rain it rained all through June a perfect flood and the botoms are all wiped out but the crops are good on the up lands. Business has ben poor this sumer corn was so high folks would not fead and I think thare is a short crop of pigs this year thare will be fare crop of aples but no peaches to speak of it is fearful hot to day just rite for corn though and that is what we nead pastures are good and stock cattle are selling good as I can think of anything to interest you I will close with love to all from your father. W. Johnson

Friend Roy, yours in hand have put in bad week this weak. My dropsy is geting along fine but I have ben having the ague and shaking like the devil and they have doped me till I could not walk yesterday with out some one to stidy me but I am feeling beter today. Ate some diner today could not eat anything for two or three days and I got prety weak but if I do not have any more shakes think I will get all rite the weather has ben nice and fine the last two days could sit out dores the first time since I have ben here. Think it will all rite now. Got a letter from Mr. Blanchard was glad to get it am sory business is no beter but such is life have not herd from the misses for some time have writen her twist since I got a leter from her thinking of nothing more will close with regards to all yours am. W. Johnson

Dear Wife I have ben puting in bad weather. Am all rite only one foot I grased my ancle and my foot swelde up and has ben paining me bad and I cant get around the Doctor lansed it this morning and got out some pus he thinks it will get beter now. It needs to es it has been awful sore. I am all rite otherwares.

The weather is fine will write to Coy in day or two with love to all I remane yours as ever. W. Johnson

3-9-1910

Friend Roy am all rite except my feat they are in bad shape cant hardly bare my weight on them am going to the hospital today as I cant wate on myself will make a Draft for fifty to day it takes lots of money here. Send my mail the same as before got a letter from the misses this morning. Sory to hear that Fred is doing no beter. Yours I am W. Johnson

Simpson, Minn.

Dear Father. I received a letter from Ma today but she did not tell me much how you was said she sent your letter to Irwin but he has not sent it over here. Warren is here to stay to night from school & from what he said I thought you had the ague. Well I have been pretty sick but am better but not well yet guess I could have had quite a hard sickness if I had give up and went to bed I looked in the glass one day & I looked whiter than I supposed I ever could get.

Well I am sorry you have to be down there alone, sick it makes us all feel blue. I wish you & Ma both could come up here I suppose the children would bother you they are such little rascals. Florence is into something all the time and if I scold her she will come to me & say Honey Hoeny Nice Mamma & soon or if she cries she will Say Love me Mamma. Love me & if Sarah tells on her she is mad & will say Sarah naughty girl or tattle tale. They are a bad pair.

The snow is all gone only a very few little patches around the water seemed to go into the ground the fields looks dry in places & the roads they say are real good.

Clint & Ruth went to Rochester to church last Sunday they are holding big meetings there. He had quite a talk with Fred Postin he is a member of the church there he was asking about you he told Clint he was at Hot Springs 3 months once but did not say what for.

Well Leaches have been home a week I guess they had a fine time they came back by Washington, D. C. & stopped there a while to view the capitol.

Well the stock is getting uneasy now and are anxious to roam around and it takes so long to get grass in this country. We get better than 2 doz. eggs a day now & have three geese laying I have 14 in all. Well nothing bothered our apple trees last winter we have 2/3 barrel apples yet we sorted them over & I made 2 gallon of mince meat the other day. Well I guess potatoes are not worth anything this spring. I am to send Ma a jar of butter soon churned yesterday & as soon as I can will churn again & send it. Well the teacher is having school S turdays lately to review before examinations so I dont get much help with the work. I promised Clint to help clean seed grain Sat. Hazel does not have to go to school so she can stay with the babies.

We wanted to get 2 or 3 shoats to feed as we have more swill than the other hogs need but they are not to be had we have two hogs that we are faling we will have to keep them just as long as we can I guess.

Well I intended to write often to you while you were down there but when I got sick I could not read or write my head burst so.

Well there are several buyers for the Andrews place this spring so I guess it will be sold right soon we have it plowed so they have to pay us for that. Josh & Harl thought they were sold out yesterday but that fell through.

Well I must close hoping this finds you improving. Your loving daughter.

Dear Sir:

It is our sad duty to tell you that Mr. Warren Johnson, the senior partner of our firm, died at his home this morning at one o'clock. As you probably know Mr. Johnson has been ill for the past year and a half during which time he has been unable to look after his business affairs.

The business will be continued just the same as it has heretofore and no changes will be made in the personnel of our working force.

Thanking you sincerely for your many kindnesses in the past and hoping to hear from you in the near future, we are,

Yours very truly,
JOHNSON & SON,
By R. O. Shay.

OBITUARY

Commission Merchant Succumbs after a lingering illness.

Warren Johnson, commission merchant, died at his home, Pryor and Ohio avenues, at 1 o'clock Monday morning, after a lingering illness. Death was due to dropsy and other troubles. The funeral service will be held at the residence Tuesday noon, and the body will be forewarded to Simpson, Minn. for burial. The funeral party will leave over the Great Western at 2:30.

Mr. Johnson was one of the oldest livestock merchants at the local yards, having been engaged in the business here for more than twelve years. The style of the firm was Johnson & Son. The deceased was sixty-four years old and he leaves a wife and two children. Erwin Johnson and Mrs. Clara LeVan, both of Simpson, Minn. These were at his bedside when he died. Mr. Johnson was a member of the Mason lodge at Simpson.

The funeral of the late Warren Johnson was held from the Christian church at Simpson Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Forster officiating, at the conclusion of which the body was taken in charge by the Masonic order and laid to rest with the usual formalities in the pretty cemetery at Marion. Past Grand Master Stebbins presided, assisted by Chas. Callaghan and the officers and members of Pleasant Grove Lodge No. 22, of which Mr. Johnson was a member. The beautiful floral offerings and the large attendance at the funeral marked the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

The following are some of the letters exchanged between Clara and Clinton LeVan when he went to Oregon in 1908 to look for a place to move the family to from the farm near Simpson, Minnesota.

The spelling and the punctuation is theirs.

Dear Clint: We are all well as usual we got along fine coming home from town Ruth and Donald went to the Grove yesterday to the school picnic, Ruth got an invation to the graduating exercises Laura Vollett invited her.

We received your Post Cards, I have been watching you travel on the time table. Mr. and Mrs. Brown were here last night. We delivered the cattle this morning. Elliot sold four Lilly and I went to the corner with them they got along fine. Harry said the Holstein weighed 900 and the other 920. Rommel was here to try to buy them when we got home from town he was terribly worked up because he did not come and look at them before and I told him you said once you wondered why he never came here to look at stock when he came to Bennets and Leaches. Brown talked like he was going to let Rommel have them and he said he told you if he could pay more when he got them he would make it right with you.

Bert Light was telling the boys this morning there was a washout on the road you went on and wondered if it caught you. I am not going to worry about you I have slept real well since you went. Harry and Donald went to the Grove Thursday. Yesterday Harry got the Manure spreader and he tightened all the bolts there was one of those rakes off and hauled three loads out but didn't get it all out of the colts stall be is going to plow corn now.

Griff Haney was over to Leaches Friday and the man that ownes the place where he lives is in Oregon. Newton I think the name is and he was going to sell to Griff but he is homesick and is coming back he says all you see is people tramping around trying to find a claim to camp on so Lilly told me. I did not see him.

Well I intended you should have most of the money for that can of cream and Dave Kinney took up so much of our time I forgot it and I was so disappoin ted I cried when I found I forgot your night shirt so I mailed it to you to Salem for 13 cents.

Mrs Haney and Ethel were to Leaches visiting Friday and Ethel Parks, and Myrl Emery was here and the crowd was back and forth about 50 times all but me.

I see by the time table you had to stay over in St. Paul I wish I could have went that far with you. Dons folks go to Minneapolis to day and start about Tuesday I think Mrs. Brown said.

Your folks havent enquired if we are dead or alive.

We had a little shower in the night and it looks rainy but the sun is shining now. I will try to send you some money if I can for I am afraid you will need it I will look after things just the best I can cont worry. Well the babies are just as sweet as ever.

With love Clara

My dear Wife and Famly: I am at Portland at last. I left Spokan Saturday at 5.P.M. and got to Seattle Sunday at 9A.M. I went and founr Will Rogers and he went around some with me. We went down to the Depot and found I could get a train for Portland at 1:15 P.M. and it would give me a chance to see the country by day light so I came on and arrived here at 8:30 P.M. last night. I will go to Salem sometime today I am feeling fine the climate is so refreshingbut what I have seen of the country so far is very rough and on the other side of the Caskades it dont look good to me but on this side it is very nice and green. I have not bin in any of what they call good land yet they say here at Portland it is a rare thing for it to freeze much.

Write me my Darling and send it either to Eugene or Salem I will get it for I can have it forwarded to me.

Board is cheap here I believe it is cheaper than it is at Minn.

I am at a fine Hotel $1.00 per day house. I am going to leave my laundry here this morning. I have not spint yet for anything outside of plates for the Camera more than $5.00 so you see my expences has bin light. I would have stayed in SEattle one more day only I was so anxious to hear from you. Oh how is the Kids does Sarah ever say where PaPa gone bless her and Florence bless her and all the rest lots of kisses for you and all of them.

I will close for this time love to you and I ask God every night to watch over and protect you all.

Good by for this time from your loving Hubby.

Dear Clint: We got your letter from Portland was glad to hear from you and that you are enjoying yourself. I suppose you have got our letters by this time. We are all well Sarah says PaPa went way off on the cars.will come back sometime I guess. But the worst trouble she has is when it rains, when the sun shines she wants every one to see.

Well when I started this letter I expected to send it today but I had to leave it and the first thing I knew the mail had gone so I will write a little along till Monday and send it just the same.

Well Thursday night we had a hard storm I was terrible frightened but I did not let the children know the wind blew terrible and the rain came down in sheets and Donald and Hazel went to Rochester with cream yesterday and Elliot with Hay and they say it took most of the cedars around Martins house out by the roots and blew Lloyds barn down and one of the sheds on the the fair ground and broke over trees all along the road and we have been having a bad storm today and looks like more tonight. Ida just called to have Ruth come up to practice in quartet for to-morrow Childrens Day. She and Donald went, she went alone last night.

Well we washed yesterday and made ice cream say it was good but it didnt last long. Gladys Allen and Gladys Butlin were here the girls froze it. Hazel and Donald had 20¢ and took the cream and I guess they looked the town over pretty good thought they had a big time. I gave them some bread and butter and radishes and they got some cakes.

Well I guess about that money I better pay the fire insurance with it. It will be due about the 27.

Cory has the measels and when he vomits it nearly kills him the Dr. said he must stay in bed about 4 weeks or it was apt to prove fatal and the line is so out of order we cant find out how he is to-night. Lilly is up there. I dont know if he is worse or if the rain kept her she sat up with him last night.

Well Mr. Whitney is looking after your welfare pretty close and looking after that sheel I suppose it is here. I got the bill today that Hymes had shipped it out from R.

Frank Snyder and Mr. and Mrs. Geer and Ruth are the quartet.

Monday morning; Well I am waiting for the rest to get up and will write a little this letter is in chapters. Well Saturday night we had a hard storm in the night. I got the children up we went down cellar it was off to the east and went north the worst did they say they had a small cyclone at Oronco. and those two storms was the worst lightning I ever saw.

Well childrens Day is over I am glad of it Donald took the girls up early and came back and took Lilly. Elliot went to see Cory and his horse and colt were both sick the horse Dr. did not know what was the matter they both have had the distemper but were about over it. Cory is pretty bad.

Brown was here and assesed us the other morning said he would like to take that trip himself he was thinking quite a bit about it but didnt know as he ever would get time and money.

Well we have had breakfast and it has rained terrible hard and there were terrible looking clouds went over there wont be any corn plowed today.

Well we got 57 lively chickens out of the incubator and 22 others 79 in all with four hens I cant get any more eggs to Mackens so will set our own and Leaches. They all die in the shell Irwin says he dont have any trouble at all that way. Guess Donald and I will go to Simpson and Post this and see if we get a letter. Donald is nearly busting to see PaPa he has so much to tell you. He said tell you Hello he would not write this time.

Your loving wife Clara

Dont worry we are getting along fine.

Irwin made a cheese yesterday, he said Fan was getting so fat you would not know her. He said the rye would not be fit to cut for 2 weeks yet.

Simpson, Minn.
June 7, 1908

Dear Clint; "This is Sunday the children are about ready for church. I suppose you have been to church this morning. Donald and I went to Simpson last night. I went in the Hotel and Mable was there. I visit a while and Irwin came in and he laughed and told them I hadnt been away for a year and as soon as you were gone I went to running around nights.

It rained here some last night and thundered and lightned hard. Well we have a hen come of from place with 12 chickens. and we have 3 goslins the others all died.

The roses are in blossom some we have the horses in the yard.

Well I thought I would send you some money as I had a chance. I have most another can of cream. Lucy has not made out her bill yet.

Well I haven't much to write.

With love.
Clara

Say I forgot to tell you I will be glad to see you when you get home. Send some Post Cards to Orv and Trese, No. 1, Summer St., Lockport.

June 14, 1908

Dear Clint: This is a nice day but the wind is cool. We are all well as usual. Sarah was helping clear the breakfast table and singing "there is a nigger in heaven" as loud as she could and Ruth nearly had a fit over it. It has been quite rainy this last week but we kept the sheep dry and sheared Friday and Saturday forenoon and looked after the lambs, and Irwin came and helped Ruth and Donald take the four calves and the two colts and Fan all down to his pasture. It is a foot high blue grass and white clover and Warren stayed all night. He and Donald went down and took salt to them this forenoon and they were fine. Donald took Fannie to Fox's Friday and bred her again and Fox said to bring her in three weeks again so I sent her down. It was so rainy we had to keep the sheep in the orchard and yard till it is short. We put Mike and Zeke in the pasture.

The corn has all been through once and about 2 acres the second time and the potatoes have all been plowed, and the garden is in pretty good shape. We are getting along fine so do not worry stay and see all you can just as long as you want to. The rye is green as can be yet.

They baptised to the river over near the Dutch church to-day when they got to the river there was an Irish Picnic down there, your folks went and then they started to come back to Butlins to baptize and then they changed their minds again and so your folks came on up here and stayed. Nels took Ida in his new carriage.

Cory came to Elliots after hay and they had the barn fixed for shearing and were shearing so he came and got a load here. Elliot loaded it for him and he gave me $5 and will settle up some other time.

Mable Chase wrote to Ida she wished she knew when you were coming to Eugene and she would meet you at the train and give you a welcome and take you home with her and make it as pleasant as she could for you on a Post card she wrote 298 Fifth Street so if you did not meet her at church maybe you can find her.

Billie lied to Leaches and Elliot whiped him and he went home and fold they sent him home.

Elliot sold hos Gray mare for $200 and he said he believed if he had said 225 he would have got it. They are going to try to feed the colt milk it eats some oats.

Well the twine came and Donald and Billy got Leaches and ours there was 70¢ freight on it and I paid it. Lillie, Elzada, Helen, Ethel, Myra and Ruth and Dobson and wife all go to Winona. Lillie comes back Wednesday morning on the N. W. and Elliot goes on with her to see John and Hattie married. Hymes has ordered us another wheel and will get after the R.R.Co. for the other one.

I am sorry you got caught in the washout but I dont worry about you. I trust in God to take care of us all Bless you. Bert expects to start Wednesday and I saw Mable and bit her goodbye and Ruth took her a note for you and I put $4 in it for you but they laid off on account of the washout.

I dont think we will have strawberries till you will be home.

Monday morning this is a beautiful day very little wind and warm I suppose Ruth is on her way to Winona long before this dont worry about us for we are getting along just lovely.

With love and kisses

Clara

Ask Ma for one of Pa's old shirts that fits him I want to make him some sometime.

Simpson, Minn.

Dear Clint: We are all well. Ruth got home from Winona last night and she thought she had a grand time.

Cory has been having a bad spell again had one a few days ago. They telephoned out this morning that he had the measels. I guess he is pretty bad. Elliot feels terrible blue he didn't go to Johns wedding yesterday. Lilly went to Winona and from there to the wedding. Elliot was to meet her at R. but he took a load of hay up and went to see Cory. He didn't want to go to no wedding and Cory sick. Gladys Allen is keeping house for him. I suppose Lilly will stay with Ollie a few days.

Well Bert Lights started yesterday it rained through the middle of the day yesterday. Cultivated a while yesterday for noon this fore noon the corn and potatoes will have been through twice and the potatoes in the garden and the sweet corn once it is a fine stand. Had a letter from Ma last night said Pa was not very well he had been away from home lots said they had lots of cold rain there.

Well that boy is nearly dying for a letter from PaPa and you must write to him soon. We have a good reason to be proud of him he is such a good boy while you are gone and the children are all good Baby Sarah had a hard cold on her lungs but is alright now and just the cutest baby and Florence set on the floor and plays by the hour and is just as good as gold and has two little teeth.

Rob. spoke about Theadore Carey that lived on Breckenridge place said he lived in Portland and was a carpenter.

Ida said Frances Bromleys name is Mapes he was a miner and lost one eye but they had heard that they went back to Tillamook to live where her mother died said he had big brown eyes.

Well my dear I hope you are having a good time don't worry about us we are getting along fine. It acts like rain again to day and the wind blows for a change.

Well I have over $7. I could send to you if you need it let me know and I will send it I sent $4 by Mable if you don't need it I will keep it toward the Wilsey Interst.

The syringa bush is a beauty. There is not as many roses as usual the Peonies have not come out yet.

Bangs has got a steer calf gives a good big mess of milk. Donald thinks the heffer is making bag.

Well good by dear how I love you.

Dear Wife

I arrived here last night from Portland I was to late for the male so I went to the P O this morning and I was sadly disapointed for they was no male for me I did count so much on hearing from you I have seen some of the most butiful country since I left Portland I ever saw and this town is a City of roses I do not know what to do I want so much to hear from you before I leave here and I had aught to go on to Eugene I believe I will stay a day and see if I cant hear from you by that time I will have to go the time is toing and I have only got into the land I wish to see.

My Pet why have I not got a letter wating for me here I can imagene most every thing but I Pray every thing is well at home oh my darling how I want to hear from you and the children I have not bin to see Wood yet I am going this morning Salem is a very fine little City not as big as I expected to see.

Well MaMa I am all most homesick this morning I am so disapointed.

Well I will close for this time from your love.

God bless you and the children.

C. A. LeVan

June 25, 1908

Dear Clint; I have written you two letters to Eugene in care of Dorr and sent a note and $4 by Mable and talked with Mrs. Light and now I will send you a telegram to day so you will not worry. We are all doing fine baby is getting fat as can be and two little teeth stick up and look so cute and Baby Sarah is so sweet too.

Well we were certainly blest such terrible storms as we have had and such a flood took all the flood gates out but one and carried them down the creek aways I got Irwin to come over and Harl and Harry came too of course Harl didnt do much it took some of the woven wore out on the east end it took most two days to repair it but we are fixed up fine again I lost some chickens but that was the extend of our damage. While in R. the water was way out on Dubuque street and took all the board side walks away clear to Van Dusens. Lots of people down on fifth street had to move out. Corys horse was sick and Elliot went down Sunday and he stayed and Monday night was the storm. Oh I cant tell you it was terrible I was up and down all night. I thought I would get the children down then I would think let them sleep if they can. I believe I was nearer God that night than ever before. Well Tuesday morning the river rose all at once was 2 foot up on Corys house Elliot at the door with horse and buggy ready to take Cory to Gerties, washed butments out so R.R. is not safe and trains were laid off and down on Root river water was 3 feet up on Jerrys barn he lost 2 horses and a colt. Corys horse died and the terrible losses that everyone had horses and cattle and small houses going down stream and they thought 2 bodies. But I thank God we were all safe. Poor Harry Butlin it nearly ruined his corn and potatoes. Now dont let this scare you for we are alright and I want you to see the country. The Barley just started to head Sunday. Elliot said it would be three weeks yet and Irwin said it would be a long time yet before the rye is fit. Now if you can get over the mountains you can get a claim on that side cant you Josh says Rob Hanson homesteaded a timber claim and why wouldnt that be a good idea and buy one joining it he said you could I would like that just as well as the other and then we could prove up on it and pay up and we could maybe bargain for a place near Eugene and rent it a year. I should like a place near there. Your mother is telling me to tell you so and so be an engineer and live in town and so on but I dont care I want a claim someplace and I dont think much of the Burns country either but if we could sell that is what worries me how soon we can sell here. If you thought you could bargain for a place and hold it that might be all right you know best.

Laura wrote the cherries froze solid on the trees at Baker city and they are going to move down near Roseburg the R. R. Co. told them that was the place to go so you do what you think is best for our good and let the rest do as they please. I would like to have you see all the country you can.

I paid the fire Insurance.

I want you to stay a day or two with Pa and Ma and have a good visit and see the sights along the way but I will be glad to see you our work is going on good the corn is being plowed the 3 time and when we get done I am going to have Donald go over and help Irwin plow some. Our new calf is doing fine and the hogs are going well and the calves and horses down in Irwins they say are just Booming.

I wrote to Bliss about the Interest and told him you were not home and I would pay it as soon as I could or I would have you tend to it as soon as you came home and I didnt expect you for two weeks yet. I havent heard of anyone making hay yet. I expect you have surely got my letters before this I got yours last night the train came about six. I think we will have strawberries for supper.

I try to look after everything just as you would but I suppose you will see lots of blunders.

Well dear I dont know how to tell you any better what to do but I think if we had 2 timber claims that would be a pretty good investment dont you and get a place near Eugene.

Will close as your father says train time.

With love Clara

My Dear Wife

I received a tellegram from you yesterday and was surprised it will be imposible for me to do anything in the line of buying now till we see if we can sell but my Dear this is the place for us I am satisfied of that. I have been around the community and talked with the farmers and no one ever once said that this country is hard to make a living in.

Oh my Pet it would have done you good to bin with me on one trip in the country we cant get over the mountains on account of the snow and I have bin talking with a number that has lived there disinterested parties and they say it is not fit for a white man to live in and that the land will never be worth anything they say that stuff will grow there and do well if it was not for the frosts but they say they oft en have frosts that will kill their crops in July and it gets down to 40 and 50 below zero in the winter and is very hot and dry in the summer and windy and I believe if I buy a home here and put the money on it that I would spend on a farm in that country I would be just as well off and we cpuld live like white folks.

Dave is going over there as soon as he can and will let us know what he thinks of it and if it is worth anything there will be a chance later on I would have went if could but as I can not I think I will start home as soon as I get your letter you had better not write any more here. I will write you when I start and when I expect to get to your fathers. I was never so takrn up with any place as I am with this the only trouble I hear is you can make a living so easy that it makes a man lazy.

I will be very glad to get home again it seems along time since I see you. O my Dear how happy we will be when I get home tell every body the farm is for sale so it will be advertised and when I get home we will see what we can do about selling well Pet this is the last sheet of my tablet. I took from home so I think I have done pretty well but I have not written anything at all but when I get home O wont we have a good time visiting.

Well I will close for this time. Good by my Dear Kiss the Darling Kids and keep Lots yourself.

Dear Clint: We are well the wind is in the east and raining I sent Donald over to help Irwin plow corn and about ten it began to rain. I suppose you were frightened to get a telegram but I thought I must reach you some way or you would start for home. I will be glad to see you but I thought as long as we were getting along fine there was no need of your coming till you see all you could. I am glad you have friends there.

Well your folks and Ida and Etta and Kids and Grace was coming were all here yesterday. Grace had to go and stay with Pauls wife they have a baby. I was up there to your folks the day before and Ruth was going to make ice cream and your mother asked us to make it the next day instead and I killed a chicken and about dinner time in walked Etta and Kids and your folks never came till five and they brought your letter dated 22 and Ida cranked about us going out there and your folks talked and wanted to run our business and I neerly came telling them it was none of their affairs and then Etta was going to stay all night and wented Donald to take the wagon and tie the plow behind I told her Ruth could take her home that night it was most dark and Ruth took her to your folks and she stayed there I dont suppose they liked it but I knew if she stayed Donald could not get started till most noon she dont seem to care whether Irwin gets his corn plowed this year or next.

Well Sarah has been writing you a letter and if you could see the faces and such spelling as she writes. Well such a face as Ida got on when I read about Tim and you going to Chase's. Tim whats he out there for she said.

Dident Mable Dorr give you that letter with the money in it and tell me where you are going to stop on the way home so I can keep track of you. Lillie wants you to bring some logan Berries and I thought may be you could bring a few cherries dont try to bring a lot because it will be so much trouble just so we can see what they are all like. Dont stay more than two days at St. Joe because when you get that near home I shall be anxious to see you wish I could afford to come that far to meet you but that would be impossible for I am the boss you know.

It looks pretty rainy but the sun is trying to get out. I want to set out some late cabbage today I have a few set and the rain drove me in the wood chucks are eating the garden quite bad and they took every bit of Lillies lettuce.

Well dear I am trying to look after everything I may sell the wool before you get home they were paying 15¢ and last night were offering 17¢ and Elliot and I think we will wait a while yet for I think maybe we will get 20¢ yet. Owen McCoy is taking a buyer around.

Well dear do just as you think best about a claim if we cant do better we can look one up after we get out there but I was quite taken up with two timber claims on that side of the mountains if we could sell the timber and keep the land that might be valuable for fruit some time too or fence and pasture it you do just as you think best and if you want to buy and can see your way out to bargain and hold it till we can sell I am willing. I could not hardly write your mother was talking such nonsence and everything to me and they put off getting paper and everything till the last minute.

Well Ruth is going to take a jar of Butter up to send to Ma so you will have some of that when youget there I churned over to Lillies and churned a jar for us all at once.

Well Goodby My Precious one with love. Clara

My Darling Wife and Children,

I arrived here about 4 oclock yesterday. Your father was at Dorets sitting in the yard he was surprised to see me he said we would go over and surprise your mother but she was out in the back yard and spied us before we got there and came to meet us I see her when she first see me through the trees and see her start and run as fast as she could toward the back gate she was very g lad to see me. Your Father said did Clara know you was coming this way I told him you did he said well she did not say anything about I told him she did not intend to.

They both seem to be well your Mother said she just got a jar of butter from you a few days ago and as I eat it I had to think of the one that made it and perhaps had a hard time to get time to work it over. I think I will start home from here to morrow I will drop you another card when I find out what time I can get there.

I cannot write much now but when I get home we can talk a whole lot.

It seems to me I never Loved you half so much as I do now you are a perfect angel as far as I can see.

Do you spose Sarah will know me when I get home bless her how I love her and all of the rest. Havn't I been going at a great rate but the nearer I get to home the more anxious and loving I feel.

I suppose Tim is home by this time. I have had a fine trip back this far. I have been so well all of the time and when I was in Eugene I felt so fresh and rested all of the time. O that is the finewt country I have seen in all of my travels.

Well I will close for this time.

Good By Darling God Bless you all I will be with you soon.

My Dear Wife and Family I am at Portland at last I left Spokane Saturday at 5. P.M. and got to Seattle Sunday at 9 A.M. I went and found Will Rogers and he went around some with me when down to the Depot and found I could get a train for Portland at 1.15 P.M. and it would give me a chance to see the country by daylight so I came on and arrived here at 8.30 P.M. last night I will go to Salem some time to day I am feeling fine the climate is so refreshing but what I have seen of the country so far is very rough and on the other side of the Caskades it dont look good to me but on this side it is very nice and green I have not been in any of what they call good land yet they say here at Portland it is a rare thing for it to freeze much

Write me my Darling and send it either to Eugene or Salem I will get it for I can have it forwarded to me

ROWE FAMILY

(1) William Rowe (Robert?) a Miller by occupation married Sarah Wyatt, b. about 1800 in England. Her brother Richard Wyatt raised her children.

CHILDREN

2. I. Ed. William born in England
3. II. Caroline born in England
4. III. John Theopolis, born in England, died Toledo, Ohio ca. 1876, married Elizabeth Barber, March 24, 1845 at Horningsham, Wilts., England. A Miller by trade.
5. IV. Anna, born in England.

(4) John Theopolis Rowe, born 1821 in England, married Elizabeth Barber, who was born Aug. 30, 1824 in Horningsham, England. She died Aug. 1, 1878 near Box Grove, Markham, Toronto, Canada. He married (2) Mary Ernest. She married (2) John Herrick.

CHILDREN

6. I. Sarah Wyatt Rowe, born Sept. 30, 1845 Horningsham, Wilts England. Died Dec. 23, 1929, Simpson, Minn. Married Warren Johnson, April 30, 1865 at Marion, Minn.
7. II. Aurelia Wyatt Rowe, born Mar. 1, 1847, Horningsham, Wilts., England, died Noonan, N. D. Married (1) John Preston in 1866. He died. Married (2) George Dunford about 1870.

CHILD of John Theopolis Rowe and second wife.

8. I. J. Rowe. Died in Cincinnati, Ohio.

JOHN THEOPOLIS ROWE; Several stories have been told about him. Uncle Irwin Johnson wrote in a letter that he deserted his wife and went to California in 1851. A letter dated 1903 among Clara LeVan's letters, which is unsigned, states that "Our grandfather, John Theopolis Rowe, died 27 years before that" which would make it 1876, and was buried at Forrest Cemetery in I.O.O.F. grounds at Toledo, Ohio." His grave has not been located, and from correspondence, there is no such cemetery in Toledo. Elizabeth Barber Rowe was unable to take care of both of her children, when her husband deserted her, and she lived with the Elihu Bosworth Johnson family, that was when she was five or six years old. (She- Sarah Wyatt Rowe)

The 1850 Census of Erie County, Ohio, Milan Tp. lists John Rowe age 29, Elizabeth, age 26, Sarah, age 5, and Arelia, age 3, and William Barber, age 24, Carpenter, all born in England and living in household #443.

In one letter among those of Clara Johnson LeVan regarding John Theo. Rowe, it says that he died of consumption. Another letter says that he died in an explosion at a flour mill. To date this has not been proved.

Warren Johnson has a Bible that was given to Sarah Wyatt Rowe by her father in Walled Lake, Michigan, March 21, 1859 at age 14 years. It says she was baptized and united with the church there at that time. There is no name for the church. Florence Spicer has written to Walled Lake to locate the church, but has not had an answer.

The Barber, Rowe, and Haskell families came to America together. They probably embarked at Liverpool, and came into New York Harbor. See pages 322, 323, 324 and pages 336 and 337 about their voyage from England to America. So far the name of the ship has not been learned.

BRISTOL FAMILY

(1) CYRUS BRISTOL, born 1789 Watertown, N.Y. possibly. Died Sept. 6, 1844, Hartland, Ohio. Buried in Hartland Cemetery. Married Elizabeth Roberts at Reading, Steuben Co., N.Y. by Judge Dowe Esp. near Auburn, N.Y. Served in War of 1812 as Private in John Richardson Co., Regiment of N.Y. State. Militia commanded by Col. Chapin, an independent rifle Company. His Will was probated at Huron Co., Ohio. Vol. A. Page 153.

Elizabeth Roberts was born in 1796 in N.Y. and lived at Fawn River, St. Joseph Co., Michigan in 1855 and in 1860 Census, her son Esek age 30 was living with her on Section 3 of Fawn River Twp., dwelling #1680. It is interesting to note that her son Cyrus Bristol was also living in the same township in 1860 in dwelling #1681. Arminda Fellows who was also a widow at that time lived in dwelling #1683, and Elihu Bosworth Johnson and his family lived in dwelling #1684. Luciano A. Tisdel, the father of Erwin Tisdel, lived in dwelling #1688. The Fellows, Johnsons, and Bristols were born in N.Y. and may have moved to Ohio and Michigan together.

Elizabeth Roberts Bristol died in 1862 and is buried in the Freedom Cemetery in Fawn River Twp., Strugis, Michigan. She was left a widow and requested a pension because Cyrus had served in the War of 1812. These records were furnished by the General Service Administration. She had to have witnesses that she had married Cyrus, and had her brother, Benjamin F. Roberts, and her sister, Lydia Florence, sigh for her.

BARBER FAMILY

(1) JOHN BARBER,born in England on about 1757, died in England on April 17, 1842, married in England to Catherine Jerrett of (Gerrett) They may be the parents of Edward Barber, or they may have been the parents of Edward's wife, who was Jane Barber, since she had the same surname, although it is said that the two families of Barber were not related. Catherine Jerrett died on August 19, 1835, aged 63 years and John Barber died on April 17, 1842, aged 85 years.

(2) EDWARD BARBER, born Jan. 24, 1791 at Horningsham, England. Came to America from Liverpool to New York in 1840. He was a cabinet maker in England, and a farmer in Ohio. They lived at Wakeman Twp., Huron Co., Ohio. He died at Wakeman on Dec. 13, 1867 at age 77, and is buried in Congregational Cemetery at Clarksfield in the Stiles Family Plot. He married Jane Barber in England about 1814. She was born Nov. 14, 1792 in Horningsham, England. She died of Cholera soon after arrival from England and probably is buried in the vicinity of Sandusky, Ohio.

7. V. William, born Jan. 16, 1828, Wiltshire, England, came to America with his brother-in-law, John Roe, in 1848. He was a carpenter. He married Hannah Eliza Stiles, May 5, 1853 at Clarksfield, Ohio. She was born Mar. 19, 1834 and died Dec. 5, 1922. He died April 11, 1913. Hannah Stiles was the daughter of Henry Stiles and Sally Maria Starr.
8. VI. Edward, born June 3, 1836 in England. Died about 1872 at Green Bay or Oconto, Wis. He married Anna. He was a fur buyer. He wanted Grandmother Johnson to go with him to Wisconsin, when he went there, and to keep house for him, as she was a young girl then, but she chose to go to Minnesota with the Johnson family and her uncle never forgave her for this.

EDWARD BARBER came to the United States in 1850 with his entire family except his son William and his son-in-law, John Rowe, who had come in 1848. The follwoing account of their voyage was written by his granddaughter, Mrs. Katherine Haskell Root, when she was an old lady. It was written from her own recollection as a small child and the account told to her by her mother.

"We came to this country in a sail boat in 1850. We landed in Sandusky and came up to Milan, up the canal, and before we got our things three of the family died. Mother's mother and Aunt Sarah's oldest girl and mother's little boy two years old. Father bought a place in Milan and the folks were buried in Milan. The people were so good to us, helped us take care of the sick and the dead. Mother had Hattie, Henry, Katherine, John and Edward, who died.

We brought John Grey here, too. Mother's folks all came with us. This was the year of the cholera, this was what killed the people.

We were lost on the ocean six weeks before we saw land. They had given us up as lost in New York. Uncle William Barber and Uncle John Rowe came here some time before us and they came to New York to meet us. They were just going when they saw the boat coming.

After living in Milan awhile we sold our house there and bought on Milan Street for a time. Then we bought seven acres and a log house in the country joining the Bishop property. Father was a shoemaker by trade. He was well off in England but having bad luck and so much sickness took his savings. He had typhoid fever twice and we all had ague. Father walked to Monroeville to work every day through the woods. There were no piked roads and cattle were in the woods and on the roads everywhere. We went to the Webb Settlement School and there were no houses until you got to the school house.

I spoke of being lost on the ocean. Mother said when they found out we were lost there was an uproar and some swore and some prayed and some danced and some sang. All got out of provisions and water all but sea biscuit which you had to take a hammer to get a piece off. They finally sighted a ship but as there were pirates on the seas the sailors did not know what to do but they thought they might as well be killed as starved so they hoisted the flag of distress and the ship came to our boat and put us on the right course and gave us provisions. Before they found the course, where we were in the sea the boat was surrounded with sea porpoises until the water was black with them. Now I do not know where we were but mother said it was so warm we almost smothered and then in a few days it was just as cold. The captain of the boat fell and broke his leg and was delirious was the reason we were lost.

I was born in Brixton-Deverill, April 27, 1846. Mrs. K.M.Root"

Sandusky was an important port of entry and shipping center at that time. For many years it was a stopping place for all vessels that sailed the Great Lakes. Passenger boats from Buffalo landed thousands of immigrants there who then went off into the interior to make new homes.

The John Gray whom Mrs. Root mentioned with his brother Samuel, worked for her father in his shoe shop in England. Both brothers wanted to come to America with him but their parents objected, John was of age, came anyway bur Samuel was younger and his parents would not consent to his leaving home. Mrs. Root told that a few years later they were seated at the supper table one evening when they saw a man with a bundle over his shoulder walking up the lane to their house. It was Samuel Gray who had waited only until he was of age to join them and his brother.

The entire trip of Edward Barber and his family was full of misfortune. At that time each family was required to bring its own provisions for the voyage. While they were off their course their supplies ran low. Mrs. Root's mother had flour which she shared with another family whose provisions had given out. She was given in exchange some pieces of jewlry. One piece now in the possession of Miss Gertrude Willey of Norwalk, Ohio is of yellow gold with a cloisonne design set with ruby colored stones. Mrs Root said that it was worn on a velvet ribbon as a bracelet.

When they landed at New York one of the chests in which Edward Barber and his wife had packed their best clothes and most valued possessions was missing. William Barber stayed in New York for several days after the rest of the party went to Ohio trying to locate it but it was never found.

Soon after their arrival at Milan Mrs. Edward Barber died, Mrs. Root says of cholera. As the story was told by Mrs. William Barber her husband's mother was so delighted with the climate of the new country that she spent all of her time put of doors and caught a cold from which she died.

Aldrich's History of Erie County, Ohio says:-

"The older residents of the county will remember the cholera scourge of the years 1849 to 1859 and their may be still remaining a few who recall teh first visitation in 1832. During the years 1849-1859 the scourge was indeed terrible and hundreds of people fell victims to its ravenous greed. The medical force of the county at that time was small and those here had little knowledge of the disease or the means of its cure or prevention."

The Federal Writers Project Guide to Ohio, in describing the effects of the cholera epidemic on Sandusky; says:-

"Since 1832 there have been half a dozen minor outbreaks of cholera. The outbreak of 1849 was the greatest of all and the most tragic. Business came to a standstill. Half the people fled the city, many of them never to return. An observer reported: 'So malignant was the epidemic that it was no unusual thing for business men to be attacked in their shops and stores, go to the cabinet warehouse and engage their coffins, and tehn go home, lie down and die before their coffins could get there'. Nearly 400 people died in little more than two months and Sandusky became a city of the dead. Slowly the plague died away ...former residents returned and new additions of immigrants again swelled the city's population."

Both accounts of Mrs. Edward Barber's death may be true and the "cold" which she contracted may have been cholera. She was buried in Milan but later when a railroad was built through the town the cemetery was in the way so the bodies were removed to other burial places and there is no record of her final resting place.

It was told that neighbors brought the newly arrived Barber family sweet corn but did not explain how it was to be cooked. When asked how they had liked it they said they had not been able to cook it tender enough to eat.

Edward Barber made his home with his son William. He was a cabinet maker but did not work at his trade in this country except as he helped his son who had also learned that trade in England. He took charge of the garden and was noted as a gardener.

When William Barber built a new house on his farm on Maple Street he included a bedroom with an outside entrance on the first floor for his father's use but he did not live to see the house completed.

He died on December 13, 1867 and is buried at Clarksfield, O.

CHILDREN

39. I. Gertrude (Gertie) born May 5, 1872 at Huron Co. Ohio. She died 1955. Clara Johnson LeVan corresponded with her in 1887. She was the one that owned the property that Mrs. Jerome Bauer bought, located near Norwalk, O.

Mrs. Jerome Bauer lived next door to Gertrude Haskell for many years and took care of her in her last illness. When she took possession of the house, she found a shoe box full of old correspondence and kept it, knowing there was valuable information there. When Mr. Henry Timman called on her in search of information regarding Gertrude, and the Barber family, she showed him the material in the shoe box. Among the things was a sort of diary listing the dates of births, deaths of the Haskell and Barber families.

Florence Spicer made a trip to Norwalk in July 1971 and Mr. Timman took her to visit places where the Bristol Barber and related families had lived and to see their graves in the cemeteries. They called on Mrs. Bauer, who showed the shoe box and some of it's contents to them. Mrs. Bauer gave the small diary to Florence Spicer. Mrs. Bauer had been collecting rocks from the various states that she had visited and requested that Florence send her a rock in exchange for the diary. This was done. The little book is most interesting as it also has recipes on some of the pages. Many pages are erased, and it looks like they had kept a record of the cost of groceries in it.

Some of the recipes are so interesting that they are being included here. (They are called recept in the diary).

GEORGE E. HASKELL is a son of George Haskell, whose father was a physician in England. George Haskell was born in 1813, in Wiltshire, England, and was there bound out to learn the shoemaker's trade, which he followed for some time. On January

1[illegible], he married Mary Ann Barber, [illegible] born March 19, 1815, in Wiltshire, England, a daughter of William Barber, a cabinet maker. George and Mary Ann (Barber) Haskell first located in Devizes, England, where four children were born, namely: Hattie J., William Henry, John T. and Catharine. In 1841 the parents, accompanied by [illegible] children, sailed from Liverpool, after a voyage of ten weeks landed in New York. From there they proceeded via the Hudson River, Erie Canal and Lake Erie to Sandusky, Ohio. On arriving at Milan, Erie county, George [illegible] had only four dollars left, but was [illegible] at his wages at his trade. Some [illegible] removed to Norwalk, and resided on Main street, where he conducted [illegible] business. He then purchased [illegible] a small tract of land in [illegible] township, Huron county, meanwhile working at his trade at Monroeville. [illegible] bought the home farm where [illegible] 22, 1886, being followed [illegible] by his wife August 5, 1889, [illegible] buried at Norwalk. He [illegible] an industrious man, having [illegible] good property by economical [illegible] Politically, he affiliated with [illegible] party, and in religion he was [illegible] of the Episcopal Church. The [illegible] born to George and Mary Ann [illegible] were as follows: Hattie J., deceased wife of R. M. Willey; William H., [illegible] grower in Florida; John T., of [illegible] Kans.; Catharine M., unmarried, living in Ridgefield township; George E.; [illegible] S., wife of John E. Wheaton, of [illegible] county, Kans.; and Annie O., wife [illegible] Brady, of Belleville, Kans. [illegible] the latter three were born in the [illegible] States.

George E. Haskell was born September [illegible], 1850, in Norwalk, Huron county, Ohio, and attended the common schools. When his brother had all left home, this son remained on the old place, and assisted in [illegible] duties. On December 28, 1887, he was united in marriage with Adelphia Saunders, who was born in 1868 in Oxford township, Erie Co., Ohio, the youngest of seven children of Leroy W. and Eliza (Skinner) Saunders. Mr. and Mrs. Haskell began wedded life on the home farm in Ridgefield township, Huron county. He well deserves the prosperity which has rewarded his years of toil, and his hospitable cheery manner, combined with sterling worth, has won him scores of warm friends. In politics he is a Republican; in religion he is a member of the Disciple Church, his wife being identified with the Presbyterian denomination. They have two sons and one daughter: Le Roy George, Clyde Vernon, and Mildred Pauline.

choice, Mrs. Ellen M. (Muir) White, to whom he was joined in wedlock in [illegible] 1868.

Mr. Hakes holds membership relations with the Grand Army of the Republic. He has a very wide and favorable acquaintance throughout the county in which his entire life has been spent, his upright character and sterling worth having gained him an enviable place in the regard of many friends.

WILLIAM BARBER.

William Barber, who for many years has been successfully identified with general agricultural and stock-raising interests in Wakeman township, was born in Wiltshire, England, on the 16th of January, 1828, his parents being Edward and Jane Barber. In the year 1850 they crossed the Atlantic to the United States, coming direct to Wakeman township, Huron county, Ohio, where they joined their son William, who had made the voyage to the new world in 1848. Edward Barber, the father of our subject, was a cabinet-maker by trade but after coming to this country turned his attention to farming. Unto him and his wife were born six children, namely: Mary Ann, Sarah, Matilda, Elizabeth, William and Edward. All are now deceased with the exception of William, whose name initiates this review.

William Barber obtained his education in the parish schools of his native land and early in life learned the cabinet-maker's trade, working at that occupation in England until he set sail for the United States in 1848. After landing in this country he first went to Summit county, Ohio, where he remained for a year, being employed at his trade. On the expiration of that period he came to Wakeman township, this county, and bought twenty acres of timber land, which he eventually developed into a good farming property. He has given his attention to general agricultural pursuits almost exclusively throughout his entire business career, though for a few years he also worked at the carpenter's trade to some extent. As time passed by and his financial resources increased he added to his holdings by additional purchase until at one time he owned two hundred acres of rich and arable land, having cleared the timber from one hundred acres. He cut down and burned enough good timber to have made a fortune at present prices. In addition to cultivating the various cereals best adapted to soil and climate he has also been engaged in the raising of stock, both branches of his business returning to him a gratifying annual income. The neat and thrifty appearance of his farm bespeaks his industry and systematic methods. His crops are of the best, his stock is comfortably housed and in fact everything about the place indicates the supervision of a practical and progressive owner.

On the 6th of May, 1853, Mr. Barber was united in marriage to Miss Hannah E. Stiles, a daughter of Henry and Sarah Stiles, of Clarksfield township. The Stiles family were among the early settlers of Huron county and took a prominent part in community affairs. Mr. and Mrs. Barber are the parents of eight children, as follows: Anna E.; Frank M., a resident of Chicago; Ella, the wife Charles Peck, of Viola, Illinois; Edward, living in Delaware; Jane, at home; [illegible] follows farming in Wakeman township; Ida, also at home; and Wil- [illegible] who makes his home at Lorain, Ohio. On the 6th of May, 1909, Mr. and Mrs. Barber celebrated their fifty-sixth wedding anniversary, on which occasion all of their children, as well as a large number of friends and neighbors, were with them.

Politically Mr. Barber has always given his allegiance to the republican party, casting his first presidential vote for Fremont in 1856. Though not active in politics as an office seeker, he has always kept well informed on the ques- tions and issues of the day and served in the position of township trustee and also as a school director for many years. His religious faith is indicated by membership in the Congregational church, with which his wife and children are also identified. He has always been active in church and Sunday-school work and was instrumental in organizing a Sunday school in the local school- house of which he was superintendent for many years. He is public-spirited to a marked degree and well merits the esteem and respect which are uniformly accorded him, being a high-minded gentleman of the old school whose entire life has been characterized by industry and integrity. He has endeavored to exemplify the teaching of the Golden Rule in his daily life and his influence is always found on the side of right and progress. The worthy poor find in him a sympathetic and helpful friend. He has now passed the eighty-first milestone on life's journey and for sixty years of this time has been a resident of Huron county, within the borders of which he is most widely and favorably known. Coming to the new world in early manhood, he has felt that the country fully realized his expectations and in this land, where labor is unhampered by caste restrictions, he steadily advanced and as a result of his persistent energy and un- tiring industry gained a place among the substantial and representative citizens of his community.

I got a letter from Aurelia sins I wrote this one but I have been waiting Oh dear dear my dear Sarah I am for
Your poor Mother

Mr. Henry Timman of Norwalk, Ohio has done considerable research for this compilation. He has located a grandson of William Barber, who said that his grandfather walked from Hartland to Milan to work in the shkpyards, and carried his toolchest on his back.

The following is an excerpt from a story compiled by Miss Griggs, a descendant of Edward and Jane Barber:
"We came to this country in a sail boat in 1850. We were lost on the ocean six weeks and they had given us up for lost in New York. The captain fell and broke his leg and was delirious was the reason we were lost. Mother said when the passengers found out we were lost there was an uproar; some swore, some prayed and some sang. We got out of provisions, all but sea-biscuit which you had to take a hammer to break. Finally they sighted a ship but as there were pirates on the sea the sailors were afraid to signal. However, they decided it was their only hope so they hoisted the flag of distress. The ship came to our rescue and put us on the right course and gave us provisions".

"After surviving that voyage it seems a cruel thing that they should arrive in Sandusky, Ohio in the midst of a cholera epidemic and three of the family- one of them my grandfather's mother - should die before they were settled in their new home." (This would have been Jane Barber wife of Edward Barber and mother of Elizabeth, who married John Theopolis Rowe.)

The following is from a letter from Mrs. Jerome Bauer of Norwalk, Ohio, who was a neighbor to Gertie Willey, a grand daughter of Jane and Edward Barber.

"Gertie Willey from whom we bought this place told us so many times how her people, the Haskells came here in 1851 from England. Seems her mother was only 5 years old when they came across. Gertie never knew her mother as she passed away when Gertie was only 11 months old. Grandmother Haskell raised her. She also stayed with an aunt in Kansas for a while when she was old enough to keep house, she did so for her father. Gertie never married. I have a beautiful broach pin that she gave me that her grandmother gave her which was exchanged for a crock of lard from some rich folk on the boat as they came accross seems the rich folk had jewelry but no food. I also have the grandmother's sewing box she brought from England."

This makes us wonder about the pin that was grandmother Johnson's that is now in the possession of Florence Spicer. She believes that this was obtained in the same way on the boat coming across.

Clara Augusta Johnson and Gertie Willey, a cousin corresponded until Clara was about 15 years old. Gertie lived at Monroeville, Ohio then.

The Barber and Haskell records are from Clara LeVan's letters and "Commemorative Biographical Record of the Counties of Huron and Lorain, Ohio - Chicago J. H. Beers & Co. 1894. Barber on pages 397 and 398

SOME ADDITIONAL NOTES

The death certificate of Warren Johnson #23 in the Johnson Family section has been misplaced. The record read that he died of Diabetic Sclerosis. His sister died of Diabetes, also.

The following is among notes regarding my search on the John son Family, which may have some meaning in additional search. "In November 1833 Samuel E. Johnson and his sons (afterward well known citizens of the Twp) migrated from Livingston Co., N. Y. and located in Section 1 of Nottowa Township, just south of the reservation line. He died in 1939. Fordyce Johnson and Stephen Barnabee located in Section 34, south of the Indian Village about 1834." This is from "History of St. Joseph Co., Mich, Vol. I by H. G. Cutler, General Historian page 231. These Johnsons have not been connected to our line, but it is possible they do belong to our line.

In attempting to find the parents of Stewart Johnson, I have sent to the General Services Administration for the Revolutionary War Service records of several Samuel Johnsons, as well as Edmund Johnson who served from Rhode Island. I am not sure about any of these men, but feel that Stewart"s father probably did fight in that war, since Stewart was born in 1776 and fought in the War of 1812.

An amusing note in a letter from the county clerk of Madison County, Wampsville, N. Y. in a letter dated Oct. 30, 1968, is as follows: "Samuel S. Johnson served 30 days in County Jail for assault and battery in 1827."

Also in the same letter "Samuel Johnson, Sr. Born in Ireland. Settled in Peterboro 1806. Died 1827. Wife Sarah Anderson died 1830. Sons Samuel Jr., 1797 and Alexander, 1803."

In searching on the Coy line, I have the note, Wm. B. Coy, Phy. Commenced practice in Mad. Co. Sept. 24, 1738.

I do not know the names of Abigail Coy's parents, and did find the following heads of families in the 1790 Census, which might be investigated more. This is from Stafford Conn.
Aaron Coy; Union, Conn. Archabal Coy and Levy Coy; Somers, Conn. David Coy; Middletown, Conn. Edy Coy; Lebanon, Conn. Joseph Doy; Ashford, Conn. Luke Coy.

ELLMAKER (OELMACHER) FAMILY

(1) Elias Ellmaker, born 1652 at Gaulhof Dist. of Nuremberg, Germany, married Mary Magdalena Bremer, whose mother was Frau Bremer, born 1630 - a French Huguenot. They had 12 children. Jphn Leonard was the 12th child.

(2) John Leonard Ellmaker, born Dec. 21, 1697 at Nuremburg, Germany, married Anna Margaret Hornberger, born Mar. 3, 1703. He came to America in 1726 and settled in Lancaster Co., Pa. He had 220 Acre homestead on Mill Creek in Earl Twp., Pa. He died on his homestead in May 1782. Anna Margaret Hornberger was born Mar. 3, 1703, the daughter of John Adam Hornberger and Maria.

CHILDREN

3. The 4th child was Jacob, born Feb. 16, 1749, married (1) Elizabeth Hoffman on Nov. 8, 1774, m. (2) Margaret Teehorne Aug. 26, 1779.

4. Nathaniel was the 6th child.

(3) Jacob Ellmaker died Aug. 25, 1824 at Perry Co., Pa. He served in Revolutionary War, 10th Batt., Col. David Jenkins, Capt. Gero. Rees' Co in 1777 - later in 8th Batt., Maj. Henry Markley, Capt. War record of William Goodrich, who married Sarah Marvin and is #2 in the Goodrich Lineage here. "He was deputy from Wethersfield to the general Court holden at Hartford, May 15, 1662, and also one of the grand jury." His being called 'Ensign Wm. Goodrich' in 1676 just after the close of King Philip's war, may justify the inference that he was in some way connected with that terrible conflict."

OUR ANCESTORS IN EUROPE

THE PALATINATE

In the twelfth century the political State of the Palatinate was formed under the royal house of Hohenstaufen. Prince Conrad was invested with the electoral dignity by his brother, the Emperor Frederick I. It remained a distinct realm for seven hundred years, until 1801. By the treaty of Luneville, dictated by Napoleon, the Rhenish Palatinate was parcelled out between Hesse, Oermstadt, Baden, Leiningen-Dachaburg and Nassau.

During the thirty-years war the Palatinate was almost devastated. Population was reduced from 500,000 to 50,000. Twelve hundred towns and villages were burned. It was from this section that discouraged Germans went, full of hope, to look for homes in a new land.

The above taken from "Genealogical Publications of the National Genealogical Society No. 1 "Genealogical Research Among Pennsylvania German and Huguenot Families" by Charles R. Roberts.

THE STORY OF THE MAGNA CHARTA

There were efforts to give and establish in the Anglo-Norman, or English nation, a certain definite set of laws which we would call a Constitution. Therefore, the uprising of the barons, in 1213-1215, may be termed the culmination of desire for a tangible form of government. The spirit of enlightenment was upon them, and their eyes were wide open to the abuse of the kingly power, and the outcome was the Magna Charta, the first great public act of the English nation after it realized its own identity.

In his first coronation oath, John swore that, bad laws being destroyed, he would substitute good ones, and exercise true justice in his realm. Fixed laws was the subject of the greatest interest, and it was championed at the first by the northern barons. Saier de Quincey being one of the leaders in the matter.

In the year after his second coronation, John was so unfortunate as to lose his great duchy of Normandy to King Philip, and, although only a few of the English barons retained ancestral estates at this time in that territory, consequently the pride of the nation was offended, for it was their king who had allowed himself to be robbed, and even this sentimental fact helped along the general disrespect for their king.

Pope Innocent of Rome commanded the immediate election of Cardinal Master Stephen Langton, an Englishman by birth, but then a stranger to England. This drastic decision of Rome revealed to John the undisputed and unlimited power, and ambition of The Church. The Pope excommunicated John in 1209. These acts held the attention of the barons, and the fixed laws were put off.

On Tuesday, 5 May 1215, the barons assembled in Wallingford, Berks, and formally renounced their allegiance, and were absolved by a canon of Durham, and then unanimously chose Robert Fitzwalter, one of their number, the feudal lord of Dunmow Castle, in Essex, and of Baynard Castle, in London, their leader in the war, bestowing upon him the rather grandiloquent title - "Marshal of the Army of God and the Holy Church", thus conveying the impression that theirs was a Holy War,—a crusade against King John to "recover the Liberties" their forefathers had a hundred years before. Now, the barons were ready to carry their threat into execution.

Although it was on this day, 19 June, 1215, that John put his seal on the engrossed copy of the Magna Charta, he had confirmed and granted and sealed it on 15 June, previous, as its date tells.

The twenty-five men whom the barons selected as the executors of this great charter, were certainly some of the most celebrated men of the nation of their time, with regard to descent, to valor and to intellectual endowments. They went about their duties after being sworn into office. The list included "the Earl of Clare", Earl Warren.

Three times, in 1216, 1217 and 1225, the Magna Charta, amended was reissued by John's son, following a general amnesty extended to all who had been in arms in its interest. This is the epitome of the great events which brought out the Magna Charta.

Pages 9-29 "The Magna Charta Barons" by Browning - 1915

THE MAGNA CHARTA BARONS

In the list of names of barons and knights, and their sons and others, who have been identified as having been in arms with their men, in the cause of the charter, many remained loyal to the king till his death. Among his supporters who remained faithful throughout his trouble was William Plantagenet de Warren, Earl of Surrey.

These men were "barons by tenure", under the feudal laws then prevailing. They were owners of fortresses, or castles, and lordships and manors, and were the "head of the family". Their tenure as barons being by virtue of royal grant, for which they had to swear allegiance to the king, and be ready always to come to his aid with money or armed men on demand.

Some of the Barons, and others, in arms to procure the Great Charter from King John, 1213-15, were: Richard de Clare, Saire de Quincy, and Robert de Vere.

The famous meadow, or plain, a stretch of pasture, upon which the barons encamped, and where in the royal tent, King John at last sealed and delivered to them the long desired Charter of Liberties, the Magna Charta in the week of 15-21 June 1215, is situated on the southwest bank of the Thames, between the market town of Staines and Windsor Castle. (Page 67 "The Magna Charta Barons" by Browning.

There is a tradition that the Magna Charta Barons often held consultations in the great hall beneath Reygate Castle, in Surrey, near to Runnemede, which was one of the seats of the family of Warren, ancient Earls of Surrey. At the time of the baronial uprising, this castle was held by William de Warren, sixth Earl of Surrey, who apparently was more friendly to the king than to the barons, as his name appears as one of the supporters in the preamble to the Magna Charta.
